

BIG STOCKER AND FEEDER MARKET

what restricted receipts, with an immense demand to supply, a condition wholly in favor of the selling side.

The following editorial from the Drovers Telegram of recent date gives very interesting data with reference to the September business in stocker and feeder cattle, hogs and sheep at Kansas City and at the other markets, also.

Among the many reasons Kansas City is drawing cattle and sheep this season from exceptionally broad areas is the rapid growth of its stocker and feeder business. In the month of September, for example, according to a compilation by the Chicago Live Stock World, Kansas City made a highly gratifying comparison in stocker and feeder cattle and in feeding sheep business. Developments in October to date in Kansas City point to a continuance of such a showing.

Here are the figures on stocker and feeder cattle shipments from leading markets in September and in the same month a year ago:

	Sept., 1915	Sept., 1914
Chicago	36,144	113,868
Kansas City	133,684	76,862
South Omaha	70,107	20,858
South St. Paul	31,752	25,767
East St. Louis	29,840	22,838
Sioux City	15,261	9,211
South St. Joseph

Total

357,506 302,877

This table shows Kansas City's unquestioned leadership in stocker and feeder cattle business. The big gain reported by South St. Paul, Kansas City believes, may be due in part to the routing of shipments to this market through that point, for probably more cattle have come here from the Northwest this season than in any other fall in the history of the live stock industry. The fact that South Omaha shows a relatively unimportant increase indicates that Kansas City is so popular as a stocker and feeder market that feeder buyers who formerly patronized Chicago are turning to the local yards. That they are finding satisfactory results here is evidenced by the return trips some of the new buyers have already made and by the additions to the trading contingent on this market. Kansas City's receipts last month were affected adversely so far as its immediate territory is concerned, by wet weather, so the increase in stocker and feeder business in comparison with other markets is gratifying indeed.

In feeding lambs and sheep, Kansas City's September showing is fully as favorable. The shipments from this market reached 130,243 head, compared with only 43,831 the same month last year. The September total was the largest on record in Kansas City with the single exception of October, 1911, when 159,864 feeding lambs and sheep were sent out. Comparisons follow:

	Sept., 1915	Sept., 1914
Chicago	175,417	43,831
Kansas City	411,204	337,907
South Omaha	39,394	17,391
East St. Louis	20,421	4,384
Sioux City	24,215	24,422
South St. Joseph	54,230	20,954

Credit must be given Kansas City, in addition, for a business in stock hogs surpassing that of any other market in the country. If Kansas City continues to grow as it did last month, this market may be able to claim leadership in feeding lambs and sheep as well as in stocker and feeder cattle and stock hogs. The interchanging of feeders from cattle to sheep is becoming so common that Kansas City is bound to demonstrate to flockmasters that it will pay them to help make Kansas City the leader in all classes of unfinished stock business.

Maude Muller on a summer day,
Watching her meadows rank with hay.

Thought she'd sell a car or two,
To buy herself some "fixin's" new.

The day was hot, the fields were gay,
The judge came riding down that way.

"I'll ask the judge," said the maiden fair,
"Where to find a commission firm that's square."

With modest mien the maiden stood
Just where the stream came from the wood,

And proffered to the thirsty man,
Refreshing drink and palm leaf fan.

When thirst was quenched and cooling breeze
Had made the traveler more at ease,

He noted the maid who stood near by,
With crimson cheek, and sparkling eye.

"A boon, fair maid," the judge opined,
"I must confer on one so kind.

Name now your wish, and if it be
Within my possibility,

Right glad am I to grant your prayer.
It will be naught unwise, I swear."

The maid looked up with 'witching grace,
"If you'll but tell me some good place

Where I may ship a car of hay,
And get GOOD returns at an early day,

Your debt will be most amply paid.
"Why, that is easy," the good judge said,

"Allay your doubts, and calm your fears,
Ship where I've shipped for twenty years.

They treated me square, they'll treat you the same.
Just wait one moment, I'll give you the name."

And forth from his pocket this card he took:

HOME PHONES 227 & 247 MAIN BELL 6227 MAIN
ESTABLISHED 1889

CARLISLE COMMISSION CO.
WHOLESALE HAY & GRAIN
756-738-746 LIVE STOCK EXCH. BLDG.
KANSAS CITY, MO.

The maid accepted with grateful look,

And touching the spur to his dappled gray,
The benevolent jurist rode away.

Maud took his advice and shipped her hay
To the good firm mentioned, and truth to say,

Shipped not only one car, but all the year through,
And bought from her neighbors and wealthy grew.

And blessed the day when the judge came down,
Where she stood by the brook in her last year's gown.

That glorious, sunny, summer day,
When she didn't know what to do with her hay.
