QUARTERLY STATEMENT

State Auditor Smith Issues Statement of Expenses of State for Months of July, August and September

(By Herald Correspondent)
Lincoln, Nebr., Oct. 27.—Secretary of State Pool is preparing a complete roster of Nebraska soldiers who served in the Mexican, Civil and Spanish-American wars, giving name, residence, company, battery, vessel or regiment, and from what state mustered into the service. The list has been gathered by the assessors of each county and should be accurate. To date only four counties have failed to provide the secretary with the necessary data, but those counties probably will comply with the law in the near future. The book now under course of preparation, the first since 1895, should prove of incalculable value to the many veterans now residing in this state, as it will contain the names of several thousand brave men who offered their lives in defense of their country.

Attorney General Willis E. Reed went to Washington, D. C., Friday, October 22, where he will appear for the people in the western freight rate case, known as Rate Order No. 19. He will be assisted by Ed. P. Smith of Omaha. This case is a descendant of the C. J. Smyth vs. Aimes rate case of the '90's. Next in importance was the Newberry rate bill, which is now a matter of history and for which the legislature appropriated $10,000 and employed Hon. John L. Webster of Omaha as attorney on behalf of the state. Before leaving for Washington Attorney General Reed held a conference with Attorney General Fred Farror of Colorado, in reference to the irrigation case now pending in the United States Supreme Court, which has to do with the waters of the upper Laramie in Wyoming. If the case is lost to Nebraska it would result in diverting these waters from the irrigation projects of the northwestern part of the state, especially in the Scotts Bluff country. Attorney General Reed's department has had the most and heaviest litigation which has ever come before any attorney general in the history of the state.

Captain McMillian of the aviation corps, while making trial flights last week. The photos were from a height of several thousand feet and one of the state house and grounds is extra good. The trial flights of Captain McMillian established the feasibility of securing photographs of forts or the position of an enemy in time of war, and the value of aeroplane service in connection with the National Guard. During the maneuvers, bombs were dropped and timed to explode within a short distance of the ground. This particular bomb was invented by memers of the aviation corps, and is different from the usual class of explosives of the kind, it not being necessary to hit some-
