FARM ANIMALS

AVOID SPREAD OF INFECTION

Thorough Disinfection is Essential to and Efficient in Preventing Contagion.

In any outbreak of infectious disease among animals thorough disinfection of the premises is essential to preventing the spread of the contagion. Certain substances, such as fresh slaked lime or unslaked lime in powder form, chloride of lime, carbolic acid, corrosive sublimate, formalin, formaldehyde gas, and compound solution of cresol possess the power of destroying bacteria with which they come in contact. To make the use of such substances of value, however, the work must be done with the utmost thoroughness.

In the disinfection of stables and premises the following directions should be carefully observed:

1. Sweep ceilings, side walls, stall partitions, floors, and other surfaces until free from cobwebs and dust.
2. Remove all accumulations of filth by scraping, and if woodwork has become decayed, porous, or absorbent, it should be removed, burned, and replaced with new material.
3. If the floor is of earth, remove 4 inches from the surface, and in places where it shows staining with urine a sufficient depth should be replaced to expose fresh earth.
4. All refuse and material from stable and barnyard should be removed to a place not accessible to slaked lime.
5. The entire interior of the stable, especially the feeding troughs and drains, should be saturated with a disinfectant, as a 3 per cent solution of compound solution of cresol (U. S. P.), which would be four ounces of the compound to every gallon of water.

The best method of applying the disinfectant is by means of a strong spray pump, such as those used by orchardists.

This method is efficient in disinfection against most of the contagious and infectious diseases of animals, and should be applied immediately following any outbreak, and, as a matter of precaution, it may be used once or twice yearly.

AID TO VETERINARY'S WORK

TELL SHEEP'S AGE BY TEETH

When Purchasing an Animal One Should See to It That None of Molars Are Missing.

A lamb has eight small first-teeth on the lower jaw. When the animal reaches the age of about one year, the middle pair are replaced by two permanent teeth, at the age of about two the teeth on either side of these permanent teeth are also replaced with a permanent pair; at the age of three the next teeth on either side gives way to a permanent tooth, and at about the age of four, the last 3 back teeth are replaced in like manner.

Briefly, then, a sheep with one pair of permanent teeth is a yearling; sheep with two pairs is a two-year old; with three pairs, a three-year old; and with four pairs, a four-year old.

After a sheep is four years old, one cannot tell by the teeth about the age. However, one who is purchasing a sheep should see to it that it has not lost any teeth, or that the teeth have not become long and shoe-peggy in appearance.

Have Some Sheep.

A nice herd of sheep will fit in almost any farm operation. Look up the pros and cons of the question very carefully and we believe that you will include them in your next year's schedule. If you have not the cash or inclination to start with an entire purebred flock, buy the best ewes you can and grade up with a purebred ram.

Important Stock Function.

It is an important function of live stock on the farm to furnish a market for the crops grown, enabling farmers to convert the grasses, forage crops, legumes, and so on, into higher-priced finished products and to return to the soil the plant food taken from it.

The happy climax to a pleasant romance occurred at the Methodist parsonage Saturday afternoon last, when Prof. Homer E. Alder of the schools at Hyannis was united in marriage to Miss Ruth V. Shotwell, a former teacher of music in the same schools. The groom has been superintendent of schools at the above mentioned town for two years, and is doing very successful work. The bride's home was at University Place, but she also taught music for the course of two years at Hyannis where she became acquainted with Mr. Alder, the event terminating in a happy marriage. Rev. J. B. Carns of the Methodist church pleasingly performed the ceremony.

Mrs. I. E. Tash will be hostess to the Woman's Club tomorrow afternoon, and the program will be entertaining with music and literary. Mrs. E. H. Boyd entertained on Wednesday afternoon in honor of Miss Clark, a guest of Mrs. Bogue, and the time preceding the two-course luncheon was filled by a musical program rendered by Mrs. Edith Swan Zediker, Miss Burnett and Mr. Unacke of the School of Music. In her usual bright manner, Miss Burnett sang two selections, "The Merry Lark," by Nevin, and "Pierrot," by Johnson. Mrs. Zediker then agreeably favored with "The Erl King", Schubert-Liszt, captivating her listeners from start to finish of the grand selection, "Souvenir" by Drdla, and "Siciliano", "Rigodon," by Francover-Kreisler, were artfully rendered by Mr. Unacke, violinist, and the musician again exemplified his mastery of his instrument, and also pleased his listeners. The musical program closed with "The Spirit Flower" by Campbell-Tipton, rendered by Miss Burnett. The entire party felt that they surely were favored with an exceptional entertainment. American Beauty roses were effectively used by the hostess in the attractive arrangement of the rooms and luncheon.

Miss Malinda Franck was hostess to the first year German club of the high school Saturday evening last. The evening's entertainment was all suggestive of the German language, games and music being about this time. The whole affair was very enjoyable, and was arranged by Miss Franck, who is chairman of the German club, and Miss Franck, who is chairman of the German club, and Miss Franck, who is chairman of the German club.
