Hot Water Each Morning Puts Roses in Your Cheeks

To look one's best and feel one's best is to enjoy an inside bath each morning to flush from the system the morning day's waste, sour fermentations and poisonous toxins before it is absorbed into the blood. Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of combustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken each day leave in the alimentary organs a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not eliminated, form toxins and poisons which are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which are intended to suck in only nourishment to sustain the body.

● If you want to see the glow of healthy bloom in your cheeks, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, you are told to drink every morning upon arising, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless means of washing the waste material and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire

Musical Column

RYTHM IN MUSIC

For a long time primitive man had experienced keen pleasure in his crude unsystematized and ungraceful dances, which he kept up for hours at a time, and which were nothing more than a series of whirling of the body, stamping of the feet, and wild gestures of his hands. These contortions of the savages, known as the savage dances, were performed to the accompaniment of the hand clapping and stamping of the spectators in rythmical accents, thereby employing their innate instinct for rythm, derived from the nature of all life, in their earliest and lowliest efforts for civilization and culture. One day a savage idly beating two sticks together suddenly perceived himself interested in what he was doing by the sounds he was producing from the continued beating; and then it was that a different and artificial agency was employed as accompaniment to the savage dances, displacing human means of rythmical accentuation and achieving one of the first steps of mental development toward civilization. From that time on all manner of crude devices were made for the purpose of beating out rythmical accents for their dances. Then suddenly a savage, perhaps accidentally, struck a hollow log and was immediately impressed by the sound given forth, and set about to hollow out logs to be struck for the dances, and the next step was made for advancement, for they had discovered that more than mere accents was to be desired and that was resonance of sound. And so was discovered the principle that hollowness is the first condition of resonance; and thus began the invention of the drum. It was the savage himself that first drew a skin over a hollowed out piece of wood and beat it and found the sound to be desirable; and this style of drum has never been improved upon to this day. The improvements have been made in the quality of material used; the length or width of the drum; the tightness of the head; holes in the sides, and so on. And so the rythmical element of nature cropped out in her highest achievement, Man, as among his first attempts at enlightenment, self-development, and mental expansion.

Melody originates at a very early date, so early that it has often been considered prior to rythm. But this, to my mind, can not be, for first, because of the close relationship of the rythmical element of nature and the instinct for rythm in man, man first gives expression to his feelings or emotions in rythmical gestures in the savage dance. Then second, and what is very important, music may be divided into three stages—first, the drum stage; second, the pipe stage; third, the lyre stage; and this is the exact order in which they come, and is proved by the savage tribes of today. The lowest of the tribes used the drums only, and instances of this are found among the savages of Australia, the Bering nations, and the Eskimos. The next higher and more developed savage uses the drums and pipes, while the most developed peoples use the drums, pipes and lyres. The drums are the only musical instruments that were ever used alone. Drums are used with the pipes, and both drums and pipes with the lyre. Mythology gives proof of this also, for in Greek mythology we find that Athena gives up the flute for the lyre as the flute distorted her face; and Apollo receiving the lyre throws away the flute which he invented and praises the lyre as producing sweeter sounds ever heard by men or gods. But before that Herodotus tells us of the cymbals used by the Curetes before the invention of either flute or lyre. The cymbals belong to the drum class. Even Egyptian mythology corroborates this theory that methods of rythm originated before melody. And so we may say that the root of all music is in rythmical sound.

Besides used for dances the drums were used in all religious ceremonies; used by medicine men and wizards as possessing supernatural power; used to influence the weather, the fertility or sterility of the soil; and in fact for all national or tribal affairs.

Returning to the dances it is interesting to note the use and effect of the dances upon the spectators and dancers. In the various dances lovemaking, tilling the soil, and war were portrayed. Even personal hatreds were portrayed and in all of these so vividly and accurately in the gestures that both the spectators and dancers were driven to deeds of violence either upon themselves or upon neighboring tribes. There is pretty much of a resemblance between these savage dances and our modern ragtime, and next week I am going to deal entirely with ragtime, and it is going to sizzle. You, who have read these articles and if you have been interested, will you not tell your friends of the article on ragtime for next week, for it will be delivered red hot from one long disgusted with that special commodity.

Mrs. Thomas O'Neal, S. King St., Chadron, Nebr., says: "I had more or less trouble from my kidneys for several years. I suffered severely from an attack of lumbago. My back became very lame and painful and I felt tired and languid nearly all the time. Doan's Kidney Pills were finally recommended to me and I began using them. I was soon freed from the annoyance."

Takes Charge of Oil Well

A. D. New, former sheriff of Sheridan county, passed through Chadron Sunday on his way to Ardmore, to supervise the drilling of the well of the Ardmore Oil Co. Mr. New doesn't claim to know much about oil, but he is a strict business man, and for that reason has been placed in charge of the work. The company has ordered 1,800 feet of eight-inch casing, and the drillers are now at work preparing to put it in the hole as soon as it arrives.—Chadron Chronicle.

LADIES! SECRET TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Bring Back its Color and Lustre with Grandma's Sage Tea Recipe.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of fuss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

This is going to be a gala season for Rocky Mountain Parks,—Glacier, Yellowstone and Estes Parks—all on the Burlington's through-service lines. These Parks, with their wealth of scenery, their magnificent "out-of-doors"—have gotten their grip on Eastern people.

THERMOPOLIS HOT SPRINGS in the Owl Creek Mountains, on the Casper-Billings Main Line, and HOT SPRINGS, BLACK HILLS are unrivaled in their wonderful waters and rheumatic cures.

Send for booklet of the locality and the tour you have in mind. Shall it be Yellowstone, with its ninety-mile auto scenic tour via the Cody Gateway? Shall it be Glacier Park, the climax of the scenic grandeur of the Rockies?
