Lloyd's Column

Sheridan Ford, member of the legislature from Detroit, tells a story of a visit to a gospel mission at which an evangelist was preaching on temperance. The speaker exhorted his hearers to vote for prohibition that every brewery and distillery might be driven to the bottom of the sea.
"Amen!" came a lusty voice from the audience. "Yes, and we'll drive every saloon into the sea, too," continued the evangelist. "Hooray!" came the response from the same voice. "Why are you so enthusiastic, my prohibition friend?" inquired the speaker.
"I ain't no prohibitionist," came the response; "I'm a deep-sea diver."

To and fro marched the sentry before the gate of a certain field—so many paces this way, and then the same number the other. A gentleman, almost as broad as he was long, approached the marching figure and addressed him as follows: "I say, may man, can I go through here?"
The sentry paused in his perambula-tions to gaze at the ponderous figure of his questioner. Then he replied:
"Well, I don't exactly know, sir, but a cartload of hay managed to get through this morning."

Smart Young Man—"What do you think of Brown?"
Indignant Old Gentleman—"Brown, sir! He is one of those people that pat you on the back before your face, and hit you in the eye behind your back!"

"My married sister quite often leaves her three small boys for me to have, honor, and obey while she goes shopping," related the bachelor. "It is not so much of a task as you might imagine, either. Among other things the little lads are passionately fond of attaching tin cans to dogs' tails. I keep a larger boy employed to provide the necessary material. Some days he appears with as many as sixteen dogs and cans, and my nephews have a delightful function. The eldest has evolved a plan for tin-canning ten dogs at one time and letting them all off together. The result is everyday that he or anybody else could ask. It is very easy to keep the children amused if you only know how."

Properly Punished.
"Gone!" shouted the widely excited individual, waving his arms in the middle of the street. A crowd gathered quickly.
"Gone! gone!" he shrieked again
and yet again.
"What's the matter? Cashier eloped with your money?"
"Wife ran away?"
"Lost a child?"
"No, no, no. But it's gone!" Fifty-seven people held their breath, and then asked as one:
"What's gone?"
The excited individual became suddenly calm.
"Yesterday has gone, my friends," he said, with a glad smile, "and today is going. You may die tomorrow or today. Now, without loss of time, you should take out a policy of life insurance with my firm, the —"
Then seven and fifty strong men seized him and bore him to the nearest horse trough.

Disappointment
An officer attached to the White House tells a story of a small boy whom President Wilson encountered at Scranton, Pa.
The president was speaking to a crowd from the steps of a seminary for girls. The boy pushed and shoved his way through the crowd until he found himself squarely in front of the president, whereupon he shouted excitedly:
"Where is it? Where is it?"
Mr. Wilson stopped his speech and said good naturedly: "Well, my boy, I suppose I am 'it.'"
At this the youngster's face assumed a look of disgust. "Oh," he said in a lower tone, "I thought it was a dog fight."

A Remedy for Bores.
The mayor of a western town hit upon a novel scheme to rid himself of a bore who had pestered him for some time.
The mayor's doorkeeper was a good-natured, obliging chap, and he could never find it in his heart to turn the bore away. Just as sure as the mayor was in, the bore was certain to be admitted. One day the mayor determined to end the persecution. So he said to his door-keeper:
"Henry, do you know why Smith continues to come here so regularly?"
"No, sir; I can't say that I do."
"Well, Henry, I don't mind telling you in confidence that he's after your job."

Why Not Face the Facts About Armor Competition?

To the People:
The policy of the United States Government for many years has made real competition in armor-making ineffective.

The Government might have asked the three armor plants for bids and let the entire tonnage to the lowest bidder. That would have made competition effective.

The result of such a course would have been to drive two of the three manufacturers out of business, and leave the country with facilities of only one plant in time of need.

The Government in fact has always asked for bids from the three manufacturers, but no matter what the price quoted, each year's business was divided among them.

Armor makers serve but one customer—the Government, just as a public utility serves but one customer—a community.

The solution of the public utility problem is regulation of rates.

The solution of the armor problem is for the Government to fix the price.

We voluntarily agree to accept any price fixed by the Federal Trade Commission. Isn't acceptance of that offer better than the destruction of an industry built solely to serve the Government?

"From that day," says the mayor, "I saw no more of the bore."

Remittance Wanted.
For hours the sympathetic mother had listened to her son's tirade against the college that had expelled him in disgrace and against his father for abetting them in it.

"But, dear," she said at last, "you really cannot blame your father for being angry. You must see that you have made a very bad return for all his unremitting kindness."

"Al, that's just it," retorted the irate student. "If it hadn't been so confoundedly 'unremitting' I could have pulled through."

"Why did you slap your baby sister's face?"
"Cause th' rest uv 'er was wrapt up."—Judge.

"What makes Carol so disliked?"
"She got the most votes for being popular."

Waiter (to westerner, who is in restaurant with city niece)—Shall I bring you a half-portion, sir?

Westerner—A what?
Niece (interposing)—That is the way you order in these places, Uncle.

Westerner—O, it is! All right, bring me a half-portion, and a quarter-section of beef and a few acres of celery.
