COUNTY AGENT LEADER

VISITED ALLIANCE TUESDAY

Charles E. Gunnels, county agent leader, was in Alliance Tuesday afternoon, conferring with President Chihl of the Box Butte County Farm Bureau concerning the choice of a successor for F. M. Seidell, who has resigned as county agent to become appraiser for the Federal Farm Loan Bank. Several available men are considered and the directors of the association will decide upon one at an early date.

COUNTY LABOR BUREAU PROVES EFFECTIVE

Farmers Who are Going to Need Help Should Make Wants Known Early as Possible

The organization of the state-wide system of labor bureaus, directed by the Agricultural Extension Service through the State Labor Bureau at the State House, Lincoln, Nebraska, is now almost completed. The Box Butte Farm Bureau is handling the work of the Box Butte County Labor Bureau. The Alliance Commercial Club and the Homingford Community Club are each working in connection with the county bureau and replies addressed to them will receive prompt attention.

The Alliance and Homingford bureaus have undertaken the task of listing all labor available as well as trying to fill all calls for labor. They are endeavoring to fill their demands within the locality, but in case there is a surplus of labor or a shortage of labor, workers are shifted to meet the need. The local bureau reports its needs to the county bureau, which in turn will try to supply the needs within the county. A shortage or surplus in the county, under the plan, will be met by shifting men from one county to another. The county bureau makes its reports to the State Labor Bureau.

However, it is felt that most of the demands for labor can be met at home without importation of labor from other sections. "This is not a labor importing bureau," said County Agent Seidell. "Each community is expected, so far as possible, to supply its own needs. This is being done to a very large extent by a canvass of the local supply of labor."

The solution of the labor problem seems to be in the willingness of city or town to volunteer their spare time for work on the farm, when labor is most needed. It is stated that in Fairmont, for example merchants and their clerks have offered to close shop and help the farmers when work is heaviest, leaving the stores in charge of women or keeping them open only at night.

Labor needs are perhaps not so pressing at this moment as they will be when the machinery of conscription gets into full swing and as soon as the "peak load" season arrives.

Engineer Routh has returned from a vacation of a week spent in Wyoming and Colorado. He reports an excellent time. His family accompanied him and have returned to their home at Ravenna. Mr. Routh is at present employed on the "goat" in the Alliance yards.

What The VALVE-IN-HEAD Means to THE EIGHT

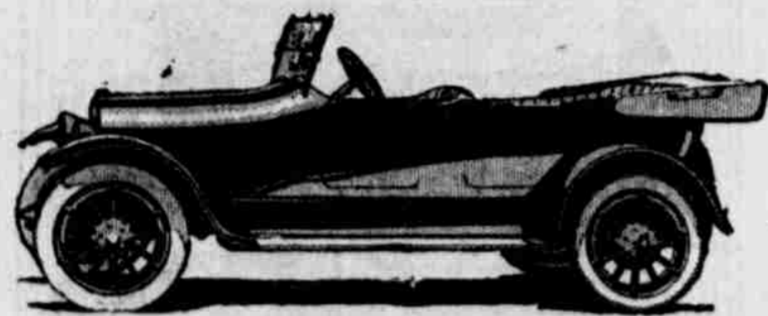

A NEW TRIUMPH has been written into automobile engineering history by the combination of the two great features of engine design—Valve-in-Head and the Eight. Heretofore the advantages of the silken-powered, flexible Eight were somewhat offset by additional gas consumption over fours and sixes. The Eight was not so accessible. Oiling the motor while running was more difficult than in the four or the six. It took almost an engineering miracle to give you in the Eight the fuel consumption of the four—its accessibility and oiling at high speed. But ingeniously combining the great Valve-in-Head principle with the Eight, the miracle has come in the Jackson Valve-in-Head.

Its gas consumption of 17.7 miles to the gallon in owners' hands is better than most fours and sixes. Your foot throttle automatically regulates the oiling as you feed the gas. The higher the speed, the greater the oil flow to all moving motor parts. When idling the oil supply is automatically reduced. The accessibility of the Jackson Valve-in-Head Eight is as simple as the four. Everything is within easy reach. You can adjust all the valves in 12 minutes. Now—every reasonable excuse for not enjoying the advantages of the Eight is wiped out by the wonders of the Jackson Valve-in-Head Eight. A fifty million miles test—5000 Jackson cars averaging 10,000 miles—proved by astounding performances the success in combining the Valve-in-Head and the Eight. Jackson power was increased 20 per cent. Do you know of any other motor of the same displacement or weight that gives—or claims to give—equal horse power? Its silk-like smoothness is almost unearny for a piece of machinery. You can creep along at 11 1/2 miles an hour in traffic in high. From a standing start you can speed up to 30 miles an hour in 7 seconds. Climbing a winding eight per cent grade over four city blocks, the Jackson Valve-in-Head Eight went over the top at 30 miles an hour in high.

Summed up—the Jackson Valve-in-Head Eight means emergency power; absence of gear shifting; ability to surmount anything; comfort in traffic and quiet, smooth going that leaves you without fatigue at the end of a 300 mile one-day trip.
