The Past as a Lesson.

The past, even our past, is nothing except as we, quickened by its examples, instructed by its experience, warned by its voices, assisted by its accumulated instrumentality, shall reproduce it in the life of today. Its once busy existence, various sensations, fiery trials, dear bought triumphs; its dynasty of heroes, all its pulses of joy and anguish and hope and fear and love and praise, are with the years beyond the food. "The sleeping and the dead are but as pictures." Yet, gazing on these long and intently and often, we may pass into the likeness of the departed—may emulate their labors and partake of their immortality.—Rufus Choate.
