

BRIEF BITS for BUSY FOLKS

At last lodge, B. of R. C. No. 314, has plans made for a big dance at the Armory on Friday evening, February 28. The popular fire department orchestra of six pieces has been engaged for the evening and already the tickets are selling like hot cakes. The boys have no designs on huge profit, but rather just an enjoyable evening for their friends. If you have not already done so, you should secure a couple of the tickets. The price of admission will be $1 per pair.

Any soldier discharged for disability may get full information relative to rehabilitation and vocational education by writing to Mr. Uel Lamkin, District Vocational Officer, Federal Board for Vocational Training, Division of Rehabilitation, 315-324 Chemical Building, St. Louis, Mo.

The grain elevator is not superseded, but it's a has-bin.—K-B.

Cashier J. O. Walker has purchased the T. J. O'Keefe farm four miles north of Alliance. The place is one of the best in the county comprising a half section of well-improved farming land and brought the snug sum of $20,000.

The club room at the fire hall is to be refurbished at once. The new pieces of furniture have been selected and nothing will now stand in the way of the boys getting what they fully deserve in the way of better equipment. The cost is about $300.

The auto show which will be held in Omaha, March 10 to 15, will mean more than merely a show in the annex and auditorium proper," says Clarke G. Powell, manager. A great many of the prominent dealers in Omaha have recently moved into their own establishments; several new buildings have been built which compare favorably with the best in the country. Dealers as a whole are cleaning up, decorating and getting ready for the show. There will be more cars on exhibit this year than ever before. Late word has been received from the factories that many of them were not able to get cars out for the eastern shows but they will have them ready for the western shows. There will actually be more 1919 models shown at the Omaha show than any other show in the country.

The bill rendered some weeks ago to the city for the street traffic signs erected during the Penrose Romig regime was ordered paid by the City Council at the last meeting. While originally the signs were sent on approval they were used and destroyed while in the care of the city and the council took the stand that the bill of about $11 was a just one and should be paid.

Beware of the "Slicker Citizen" who tries to trade you stock in some more or less doubtful enterprise for your Liberty Bonds which are the safest security in the world. He is not only unpatriotic but is interfering with the government's plan of war financing.

Dan R. Conway, at one time employed as foreman of The Herald composing room, passed through Alliance Sunday enroute to Billings, Montana. Dan has been at Scottsbluff since leaving this place. His wife and baby left Sunday morning from this city for Iowa, where they will visit with Mrs. Conway's parents for a few weeks before joining the husband at Billings. Dan is an exceptional printer and the members of the typographical union regret his departure.

A word of appreciation before the undertaker arrives is better than a whole armful of flowers after.—K-B.

Attorney T. A. Munson, of Sterling, Colo., had business in Alliance Saturday. Mr. Munson is handling a number of civil cases growing out of real estate disputes which makes it necessary that the cases come to trial here. He is one of the prominent legal lights of northeastern Colorado and in the last election was defeated for the office of District Judge by the small majority of one hundred votes. His opponent, republican, conceded the election of Mr. Munson, in fact, until the official count was made and the true result determined. The district is normally six to eight hundred republican.

Dan Watson's sale held Monday was one of the best to be held in this section for some time. The livestock brought mighty good prices and all went well. The day was ideal for the holding of a public auction and Mr. Watson had spared no expense in the use of printer's ink. Verily, the road to a successful sale begins at the fountain head of publicity—the columns of The Herald.

Mr. Keith manager of the A. H. Jones Co. branch in this city, made a business trip to Casper and other Wyoming points this week in the interest of the company. Mr. Keith reports a business much greater than was anticipated and prospects for the coming season mighty good.

One of the important features of the conference will be the election of a state regent.

Sam Trenkle, living on the Worley ranch southwest of Alliance, will sell off his personal property and eight hundred acres of land at public auction, next Wednesday, February 26. Just what his plans for the future are we do not know, but we do know that Sam realizes that a public sale depends largely upon the proper advertising and is therefore taking advantage of the exceptional value of The Herald columns as an advertising medium and in this issue has a full page announcement of the sale. Turn to it and read it carefully—it will pay you well.

When you hear a knocker complain about the cost of munitions that were never used, remind him that it was the knowledge of these munitions and trained soldiers getting ready for the big drive that made Germany realize how hopeless was her task.

The preheater for the light plant used by Supt. Campbell some time ago will now be purchased and installed. At the city council meeting last week instructions were given the committee to order the equipment at once. While the improvements planned will cost about $1400 they will be the source of a great saving in fuel and will in a very short time earn the cost for the city.

The war is practically ended but war work is not. The tremendous labor of the details of adjusting the accounts and paying the bills will occupy the time of a large force for many months to come. A. Isaacson, recently returned from eastern markets, says New York is not the New York of old. In all walks of life women are to be found filling positions formerly held by men. The elevators of the large hotels are all manned by fair ones and on every hand there is the evidence of the effect of war upon the industrial life.

Comparatively few Nebraskans have any idea of the enormous proportions to which the ice cream business of the state has grown. The frozen delicacy is shipped in immense quantities to every adjoining state. The capital invested amounts to hundreds of thousands of dollars and the ice cream production of 1918 despite the war limitations, amounted to more than $3,500,000 in value.

How many Nebraskans know that one of the most famous archeologists in the world, who is also one of the most noted landscape artists in America, is a Nebraskan? Robert F. Gilder of Omaha, who has been employed on the staff of the World-Herald for more than thirty years, is the man. Dr. Gilder is a member of the famous Gilder family, being a brother of the late Richard Watson Gilder, noted literary man, and of Jennette Gilder, who was also a famous literary character. He has contributed notable articles of scientific magazines, and he is an admitted authority among the archeologists of the world. Dr. Gilder's landscapes occupy a place of honor in some of the private galleries of America. Yet this modest Nebraskan prefers to work on the World-Herald three-fourths of the year, and spend his vacation in scientific research and painting.

One of the big meetings during Organized Agriculture in Lincoln, February 25 to 28, will be that of the Nebraska Corn Improvers' Association. In the damage suit brought by George A. Mollring against W. D. Rumer as owner of the building occupied by the Mollring store for damages caused by water the plaintiff was given the verdict and allowed $1,300. To enable the jury to better decide the extent of the damage and the cause of such a visit was made to the store by the august body last Friday afternoon. The suit was brought for the sum of $2,000, but the court decided that none but actual damages should be allowed. A leaky toilet caused the flooding of the rear end of the store and while the defendant attempted to show that the overflow was due to tampering with the same the court ruled that Mr. Mollring in no way had control of such conditions and that the only phase to be settled was the extent of the damage done.
