ALLIANCE BRIEFS

Judge Bayard H. Paine of Grand Island, who traded benches with District Judge W. H. Westover for the May term, finished his work in Alliance with the finish of the Hagerly case, the last jury case on the docket, and left for Theford, where the Halsey bank case was set for trial at 9:30 a. m. yesterday. The judge made a good many friends during his two weeks' stay in the city, and managed to find time to attend a banquet or two and get acquainted with Alliance citizens.

The ordinary Alliance citizen has done a good deal of crabbing about the mud during the six seven—or is it nine?—weeks of moisture of various kinds, all of them wet. But, at that, the pedestrian has had no more serious trouble than cleaning his shoes or changing wet socks now and then. Of course, a few people had to fall down in the mud puddles, but in most cases nobody saw them. The fellows who have learned the true inwardness of grief during these days of dampness have been the charioters on the dray lines. Those who have been wading through mud at the crossing have been too busy cursing their own luck to notice the big number of stalled cars. And even Monday afternoon, several hours after the sun had been shining steadily, one heavily loaded dray stalled at the entrance to an alley just off Box Butte. The charioter descended, and patiently and without undue profanity proceeded to unload over a thousand pounds of freight. He got out of the hole, and three seconds later a second truck was stalled in the same place. By the time a team had dragged the second truck to dry ground, the first was stalled again a block farther along. Its this sort of stuff that makes the draymen boosters for the paving, and they don't care how soon the contractors get down to business. Neither do the rest of us, for that matter.

Oscar Reed, who has held a position on the city and county police forces during the past year, is back in Alliance after an absence of two or three weeks, during which time he was offered a place on the Burlington railroad's corps of special agents at an advance in salary sufficiently large to make it an inducement for him to remove to Omaha. He will be given the rank of sergeant, the next to the highest given Burlington agents, and within a short time will undoubtedly work up to the highest grade. Mr. Reed has not yet decided whether to make the change. The prospect of a higher salary is not particularly displeasing, but the thought of moving his family doesn't particularly appeal to him. On the other hand, the Alliance position is dependent upon the whim of whoever happens to control the city politics, while the Omaha job is good as long as he makes good. Oscar will come to a decision some time within the next day or two, and until then his friends are doing their best to persuade him into stick in Alliance.

This is Visitation week on the part of the churches of the country. This week it is expected that the members of the different churches will call upon the friendly people of the city with a view especially of securing their membership in one of the churches of the city. The ministerial association at its last regular meeting agreed to go into this campaign, each church visiting its own constituency. Next Sunday is the anniversary of Pentecost and it is expected that the churches of the country will receive quite a large number of new members.

The Alliance police are still holding Alex Kosciak, navy deserter who surrendered at the local recruiting office last week. Chief Taylor has wired the naval authorities, and it is expected they will send for him some of these days.

W. F. Schramm of Columbus, who has been in correspondence with the chamber of commerce for some months relative to the establishment of a wholesale grocery in Alliance, is expected to arrive in the city today or tomorrow, according to Secretary J. W. Guthrie, at which time he will look over possible locations and make a decision.

SEVENTY CENTS AN HOUR FOR HARVEST HANDS

From the fact that in the past the states to the south have to a great extent set the scale for wages paid west hands, due to the earlier start of the season in Oklahoma and Kansas, the announcement of the agreement of the payment of 70 cents per hour, including "eats" will be noted in this region with a considerable amount of interest, says the Scottsbluff Star-Herald.

The notification was received by the state labor department from the federal employment service headquarters in Kansas City. The letter announced that at a meeting of the harvest labor conference at Hutchinson, Kan., the wage had been set as above stated for the ordinary hands. The wage for stackers, engine men and cooks is left open for settlement between the employer and employee.

The portion of bulletin relating to Nebraska is as follows:

Early reports are to the effect that this state will harvest approximately the same acreage of wheat as in 1918, that is, slightly in excess of 3,000,000 acres. A great deal of labor from outside the state is needed during the harvest period and many men find it possible to put in two or three weeks in Nebraska following their work in Kansas, finishing in ample time to take part in the work in South and North Dakota. Cutting starts in the extreme southeastern counties about July 1; in the south central counties July 1 to 10 to 15. Farmers in this state usually pay the same scale as set in Kansas. Permanent distributing offices are located in Omaha and Lincoln.
