Nebraska Farmers Find That Certified Spuds Bring Higher Prices

The ready sale of good seed at more than double the price of lable stock, is stimulating interest in the production of certified seed potatoes in western Nebraska, according to information coming to the college of agriculture from county farm bureaus. Good certified Nebraska Triumph seed is being gobbled up by southern buyers at $2 or more a hundred pounds, against about 60 cents a hundred for eating potatoes. In other words, a carload of seed is bringing about $800, against $240 for a car of common stock, says the Lincoln Star.

H. O. Werner, extension horticulturist for the college, and secretary of the Nebraska Potato Improvement association, has records in his office of the sale of more than twelve carloads of certified seed, and some cars have been sold about which he has not yet received information. Practically all of this seed went to Texas and other southern states.

One grower sold three carloads of good certified seed for $2 a hundred on the track. Another sold a carload for $3.75 a hundred delivered at Dallas, Tex. This price left him practically $3 a hundred net. Most growers of certified seed have received $2 per hundred f. o. b. western Nebraska.

One reason for the growing fame of this state is the fact that at present the dryland sections are apparently producing better Triumph seed than any other state, Mr. Werner said. Much of this seed is practically free from a disease known as Mosaic, which is playing havoc with Triumphs in some northern states.

The inspection and certification service of the college has done much to establish confidence in seed potatoes from this state. The potatoes are inspected in the fields and again in the bins, carefully graded, placed in new sacks, and sealed with a certification tag.

The college is planning to continue the certification work in western Nebraska dryland regions. The work is done in co-operation with county farm bureaus through county agricultural agents.

POTASH PRODUCED FROM NEBRASKA LAKES

Until 1915 the United States produced no potash salts from native material except wood ashes but in that year potash was produced from kelp, dusts from cement kilns, and alunite, and from the alkali lakes of western Nebraska. The possibility of developing the reserves of raw material from the first three of these sources has been studied and reported on by the United States bureau of soils, of the department of agriculture, and the United States geological survey, of the department of the interior, but no government report has heretofore been issued on the potash resources of Nebraska. In 1918 W. B. Hicks, of the geological survey, spent three months in the alkali lake region of Nebraska, visiting the plants and the productive lakes; collecting samples of brine, water, sand and mud for analysis; and making a general study of the region. The information he obtained has been studied and careful estimates have been made of the quantity of potash salts in these lakes. These estimates and notes concerning the probable source of the potash salts are contained in Bulletin 715-I, which may be had upon application to the Director of the United States Geological Survey at Washington, D. C.

Legislature Refuses To Butt in and Spoil Happiness of Elopers

Cupid laid 'em low in the state legislature Tuesday.

Senator Hall's bill providing for a cooling off period before marriage was killed in the senate.

The vote was taken vive voce, and the bill went down for the count.

Fear that Iowa, Kansas, Dakota or Missouri might collect the well-known license fees if the bill passed boosted Cupid over the tape for the victory.

The bill as offered by Senator Hall of York provided that a couple having the desire and inclination to marry couldn't fool their friends by slipping out of town and getting the knot tied. Ah, no. They had to appear before the county judge and inform him, "We wanta get hitched."

And then the judge would take their names and their desire and post it in big black glaring letters on his bulletin board, right out where the world could see it.

And that had to stand for 15 days. Meanwhile the judge would write a little note to the parents of the amorous pair and slip them the "info."

If no one appeared to kick against the coming wedding, the Romeo and Juliet would become as one—with the judge's blessing.

But if there was a kick—ah, goodbye, Cupid—no Mendelssohn's march for them.

But—and here's what beat the bill—if such should happen, there was nothing to prevent the sweethearts from slipping over the state line and paying the fee in another state to get the knot tied.

So the bill was beaten, and Omaha lovers may still sneak off to Papillion's Gretna Green and fool their friends, just like they have in years past.—Post.

By act of the lower house sheriffs are to have 15 cents a mile for traveling in their own counties and 10 cents a mile when traveling outside. The bill also allows sheriffs in counties having fewer than 100 prisoners a day to charge 75 cents a day for boarding prisoners instead of 50 cents in other counties the price was raised from 32 to 50 cents a day.

REPORT, BUT PAY NO TAX ON MUNICIPAL SALARIES

Salaries paid to state employees, including also employees of a city, county or hamlet, are exempt from taxation. Thousands of persons engaged in business for themselves or as employees in private business receive such additional compensation. A storekeeper may be elected mayor of his town. The amount paid for such services should be entered on his income tax return, but it is not taxable.

Municipal employees, however, must consider carefully their income from all other sources. If, excluding the amounts paid them by the municipality it equals or exceeds $1,000 or $2,000, according to their marital status, a return of income must be filed and the tax paid on net income in excess of those amounts.

The return must be sworn to before a notary or other person authorized to administer an oath. The tax may be paid in full at the time of filing the return or in four equal installments, due on or before March 15, June 15, September 15 and December 15, 1921.

At least one-fourth of the amount due must accompany the filing of the return.

Salary exemptions allowed municipal employees do not apply to employees of the federal government, such, for example, as no.
