

ON THE ROAD WITH THE HERALD TRAVELER

Otis W. Cox came here from Cass county eight years ago and is operating 450 acres of land. He has twenty-one to wheat, twenty-eight to oats, five to corn, twenty-one to spuds, and thirty-five of alfalfa, and twelve head of cattle, twelve horses and ten hogs. Otis says that he does not know of any place where a poor man can do as well as here, as rent is cheap and one can produce as much with the same amount of labor as they can farther east.

John Roberts came here from Iowa three years ago and is operating 320 acres of land. He has thirty-five acres of wheat, eighteen of oats, forty of spud, and thirty acres of alfalfa. John says that this is a better place for a poor man than Iowa for the reason that land is cheap and rent is cheap, and one can produce more with the same amount of labor than he can in Iowa. He says that spuds is the best crop to raise, as it is a sure crop and makes good money.

C. W. Lotspeltch has lived here all his life and owns 160 acres of land but is operating 320. He has fifty acres of wheat, fifty of oats, eight of corn, four of sudan grass, and sixty of spuds. Warren says that spuds is the best and surest crop, as they never fail, and says this is a good place for a poor man as land is cheap and one can produce enough to make good money any year.

Bert Langford has lived in this county thirty-three years and owns forty acres of land one mile southwest of Hemingford. He has twenty acres of spuds, five of corn, and six of millet. Bert says that spuds is the best crop here, as they can be depended on to make a crop each year that will pay dividends. Bert is an auto mechanic and does all kinds of repair work at his home.

Elmer Beller came here from Dixon county one year ago and owns one hundred and sixty acres of land one mile south and one mile west of Hemingford. He has forty-five acres of oats, forty-five of corn, thirty-five of spuds, and ten acres of spelts. Mr. Beller says that he likes this county better than the eastern part of the state as he can produce a crop cheaper here than there, and spuds are a sure crop.

J. A. Scott came from Montana two years ago and likes this country better than any place he ever lived. At the present time he has the best crop he ever raised. He is operating 280 acres, seventy of wheat, fifteen of oats, ten to cane and millet. Joe says that for a poor man there are greater opportunities here than any place he ever saw, and that he is perfectly satisfied.

James Graham came here from Iowa thirty-six years ago and owns 1920 acres with 160 one mile south of Hemingford. He has twenty acres of oats, twenty of corn, thirteen of spuds, thirty of rye, fifteen of millet. Mr. Graham says that if anyone will plant forty acres of spuds each year he will make plenty of money. He has six acres of sweet clover, and pastures seven cows and four horses but they cannot keep it down. He tells us that there is as much pasture on the six acres of sweet clover as there would be on sixty acres of native grass, and that he would advise more seeding of that grass.

H. P. Lorenzen came here from Washington county two years ago and is operating 400 hundred acres two and one-half miles southwest of Hemingford. He has fifty acres of wheat, ten acres of oats, and twenty of spuds. He says that he has the best prospect for a crop that he has had for several years.

Earl White came here from Missouri two years ago and is operating 320 acres one mile south of Hemingford. He has twenty acres of wheat, ten of oats, ninety of corn and sixty of spuds. Earl says that he has the best prospect for a bumper crop he ever had.

Carl Roder came here from Peru, Neb., four years ago. He is operating 430 acres, with 280 acres to wheat that is just about as good as can be. Carl thinks this county has Nemaha beaten badly and for a poor man, he says this county cannot be beaten. He can raise as good wheat here as he did in the east. He says to raise fall wheat and spuds.

C. E. Roland came here from Iowa four years ago and owns 320 acres. He is operating 520, with 250 to wheat, sixty to oats, thirty to corn, fifty-five to spuds and ten to millet. Charles says that he can take the best crop here and beat the best crop they can produce in Iowa and leave the price of land out entirely. For a poor man to buy and pay for a home, he says it cannot be beat.

L. M. Wood came here from Iowa thirteen years ago and owns 640 acres. He is operating 1,280. When we called on him, he was harvesting winter wheat that in our opinion will make at least thirty bushels per acre. He was cutting with a twelve-foot binder with three men shocking, but they were not near keeping up with the machine. Mr. Wood tells us that this is the best crop he has ever raised in the forty years that he has farmed. He has seventy acres of oats that are as good as the wheat, thirty five acres of good corn, and ninety acres of alfalfa. He likes this country better than Iowa and thinks this is the best place for a poor man to get a start.

Hays Chandler has lived here for seven years, coming from Oklahoma. He is operating 320 acres, 100 acres of wheat that looks very good, forty acres of oats, ten of corn and forty to spuds. Hays has done all this work alone and has a good prospect for a big crop. Hays says this is a far better country than Oklahoma for a poor man and thinks this is a poor man's country. Mr. Chandler is a colored man and seems to be making good.

Ben Albers came here from Jefferson county two years ago, is operating 360 acres, 190 acres to wheat, and we want to say right here that we saw some of the best wheat there on Mr. Albers' place that we ever saw grow, and we have raised wheat that threshed forty bushels per acre. Ben has seventy acres of fine oats, ten acres of millet and forty-five of spuds. Mr. Albers says that this is a better place to farm as one can farm more and do it easier than any place he ever saw. He says that everything he planted this year has done well. We spent the night with the Albers. They have the cutest little twin girls that are just six months old.

A large delegation from Alliance Judge I. O. O. F. went to Hemingford Wednesday evening, where, under the direction of District Deputy G. G. Gadsby of this city, officers were installed. A smaller number went to Antioch Monday evening for the purpose of assisting in the installation of officers.
