RANDOM SHOTS

The man, woman or kid who ran away after the auto accident Saturday night, leaving the victim to die alone, will have this much punishment—the longer it is kept secret, the heavier it will lay on the conscience.

With hell yawning in the future, why should anyone deliberately choose to get his on earth?

Nine times out of ten, the fellow who talks lynch law will beat it around the corner if there's any danger that he'll be given a chance to help pull on the rope.

The Nebraska City Press tells of a married man in that city who is having the wool pulled over his eyes so frequently these days the neighbors are talking of shearing him for a profit.

Doggone these fellows who are always telling how easy it is to save money though married. Ole Buck is the last one. "I can make one 40-cent necktie last two years," he says. So could we, if we didn't wear a necktie any oftener than Ole.

Today's Best Story.

The town band had been royally entertained in a neighboring village where a concert had been given. On the train home the conductor had some trouble getting the ticket of one of the musicians. After several futile attempts to get his fingers into his vest pocket, the musician gave it up and announced:

"I've losht th' dang thing."

"Come, come," ejaculated the conductor encouragingly. "You couldn't lose a thing like a railroad ticket."

"Oh, I couldn't hey?" retorted the other with indignation. "Y' don't know me. I jusht losht the bass drum, thass what I did."

Speaking of the photographs of the five Alliance men in the rotogravure section of last Sunday's Bee, perhaps the best comment to date comes from the small son (or maybe it was the daughter) of Bert Laing. "Oh looky," was the cry that reached the parents' ears. "Come see who's in th' funny paper."

If news is shy these days, all the weary editor has to do is to contradict rumors of half a dozen deaths or suicides. The chief trouble with these fake reports is the length of time it takes to run them down. There should be legislation enabling a reporter to recover damages for worn-out shoes.

Abe Martin of Bridgeport.

Again we get a nice contribution from the Abe Martin of Bridgeport, and it is better than ever. If we can only persuade this unknown to keep the ball rolling, it will bring considerable pleasure into the dreary life of the man who has to write at least two columns for this remarkable department every week. This quipster isn't so worse.

Kin Gidley has quit using the weed. Some weeks ago his mother-in-law bought a stylish tailored suit for herself and had it charged to Kin. He paid the bill, but since then has refused to back her.

There are really two breeds of W. W.'s: the Industrial Workers of the World and the Industrious Workers of the World.

"Fifty years ago," spoke Grandpop Gundy, yesterday, "there was quite a popular song called, 'I Wrecked My Constitution by Gettin' Drunk Again.' And even in this day," continued the old gentleman, "the same sort of fellows are would be Constitution-wreckers."

"I can't help but wish," wheezed a 100-per cent patriot the other day, "that the President in his choice of ambassadors abroad had more of an eye to their good looks."

"Light Car Tires," a dealer's announcement is headed. Another fling at Lizzie! True, she's a trifle nervous at times; but as she and I travel along life's highway together and she rattles on, I'm plumb glad to listen.

Said Uncle Si Huff, "When I was a boy our preacher stated you could always trust the man that was given to whistling. Next day everybody was warbling; and after that the only way you could keep your chickens safe was by locking your hen-house every night."

Famous Twins

Put and Take.
Grin and Bear It.
Hit and Run.
Run and Hide.

That sixty-five-year-old Pawnee City printer, who is willing to give a 10 per cent commission to anyone who will find him a wife with forty thousand dollars, is not a fair sample of the profession. Most of us would be content with a woman with ten thousand.

However, it gives us an idea. We'll be willing to give 15 per cent commission to anyone who will find us a rich uncle who will be willing to die and leave us anything from $250 up. The sky's the limit, men.

These rumors are certainly thick the last two or three days. You never know when the report of your death or suicide will get out. One of the victims reports that she got two or three bunches of flowers. Ordinarily, at present prices, you have to die or get married to get 'em. Probably there will be those who will say she ought to send them back.

FOWLING

Mrs. A. P. Tucker has returned to her home in Omaha after a two months' visit with her sister, Mrs. Wm. Rust, Jr.

Twenty-three women responded to the request for help in making comforters for the Ives family in Alliance. All gave liberally both in money and quilt blocks with the result that three new comforters were made. These women never fail when help is needed and assistance asked for in a worthy cause.

Mrs. Dan Lawrence returned home from a week's visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Latham, at Fairfield, Neb. She was accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Charles Wilson, who had spent a month with the home folks.

Mrs. John Frazier moved to Alliance this week to be with her two daughters, Reba and Virlene, who are attending school there.

A son was born Tuesday, September 27, to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Nye, at the home of M. and Mrs. William Nye.

C. E. Heath shipped a car load of cattle to Omaha last Monday.

Some of the farmers were digging potatoes last week, but the majority will begin this week. The yield is a little above the average and the quality good while the price is just fair.

Frank Trenkle, Mrs. Charles Trenkle and daughter, Gladys, attended the Indian show in Alliance Monday night.

Ed Zochel made a business trip to his old home in Sioux county last Monday, returning Tuesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Lorence attended the funeral of Charles Johnson last Tuesday.

Tanlac is a splendid tonic and system purifier, now selling at the rate of almost Ten Million bottles a year. F. E. Holsten. 89

In The MOVIES

"Heliotrope", said to be the biggest hit since "Humoresque," will be the feature photoplay at the Imperial tonight. The plot deals with a convict, a "lifer," who receives a pardon from prison. Killing was too inartistic a revenge to take upon the woman who was threatening his daughter's happiness, according to "Heliotrope Harry". He favored something more subtle, something that would inspire terror without involving even the laying on of a hand. So "Heliotrope", the convict, the ex-"lifer," concocted a scheme of revenge marvelously clever and uncannily effective. Just a whiff of heliotrope perfume—that was all that was needed to bring a hardened woman, the accomplice of gangsters and crooks, groveling to his feet.

The Wednesday attraction is "The Stealers." The story deals with the blasphemous conduct of a minister who turned crook to spite God for the sufferings he considered the Lord had visited upon him. His wife stolen upon him by a former rival, he gives up the church and becomes a wandering evangelist, speaking wherever he is permitted to pitch his tent. While he holds the audience through the sheer power of his eloquence, men and women confederates move among the worshippers, separating them from their cash and jewelry. The minister regarded his plan of revenge as a great joke on God. How he came to learn that to defy God was beyond the puny power of one of his earthly vassals and how his faith was restored is the dramatic and sensational climax of the story.

"The House of Whispers" is scheduled for Thursday. It is a picturization of William Johnston's famous story by the same name. The author himself has said that he is pleased with the way the story has been used on the screen, and declares that it is "vastly better" than the original story which he wrote. J. Warren Kerrigan stars.

You can have the Evening Journal mailed to you anywhere in Nebraska or adjoining states until Jan. 1 for only 75 cents or including the big Sunday Journal for $1. It costs more to produce a morning paper, therefore the price for the Morning Journal to Jan. 1 is $1, with the Sunday $1.25. Take your choice. They are both complete twenty-four hour papers and the biggest bargains offered. The Evening is $4 a year or $5 with Sunday, and the Morning is $5 a year or $6 with Sunday. The Journal is the only morning paper printed in Lincoln and on rural routes is a full day ahead of many other papers with the news. 89p succeed or fail according to their ability to save. It is with his savings that the working-man buys a home for his family. It was the professional man's savings that enabled him to attend college and reach the goal of his ambition.

The money saved from his profits in the small shop or store, helped the business man to enlarge his place and make it a big business. All these men have made themselves valuable assets to their community. They are desirable citizens, commanding the respect and admiration of their fellow men.
