Apply "Shick" Test.
COLUMBUS—Following a series of three meetings and the submitting of questionnaires to parents, a decision was reached by the city health board, working in conjunction with the physicians of the city and Superintendent Gates of the city schools, that the "Shick" test be given to all school children, whose parents have indicated their willingness to comply with the request of the joint committees. Of the 1,041 parents asked, 808 of them signified their willingness that their children should have the test applied. Two hundred and eighty heads of families refused and there were 15 families who could not be consulted. Children designated by the physician as "carriers," meaning those children who have not contracted the disease, but who have been exposed near children who have come down with it, will be quarantined for a short time. The doctors of the city have offered their services free, the city paying only for the serum. The parents are put to no expense. At present there are 13 cases of diphtheria in the city. So far as known the use of the "Shick" test here is the first city west of the Mississippi river to have it applied in the schools.

Skirts Short; Lost Job.
LINCOLN—Just how long should a pretty girl's skirts be? This momentous question found its way to state, county and city officials, who, with all their combined and amalgamated intellects, couldn't decide it. The question was started afresh because of the discharge of Miss Blanche Clemmons pretty, bob-haired Lincoln sorority girl, from her position as stenographer for "Lum" Doyle, state boxing commissioner, in the office of H. H. Antles, secretary of the state department of public welfare. Miss Clemmons wears 'em short. That is admitted. She wears 'em so short that the men in the state house looked longer. Then entered Gloom in the person of Mr. Antles who, the fair stenographer says, told her that her skirts were too short. He followed this up by saying there wasn't enough work anyway in the office, and so gave her an honorable discharge from the job. Gov. Samuel R. McKelvie on his return to Lincoln was appealed to by certain gentlemen to decide officially on the proper length of the youthful feminine skirt. Mr. Antles, who started this whole discussion, is ill in the Methodist hospital at Omaha. He wasn't too sick to review the skirt situation. "Her skirts were quite short, but that wasn't the reason I dispensed with her services," he said. "There wasn't enough work for her in the office." Mr. Antles further stated that abbreviated skirts, bobbed hair, rolled hose and such feminine frills would not bar a girl from a job in his office. "I admire the ladies," he said simply.

Sold "Diamond" Glasses.
FREMONT—Eyeglasses, made of diamond crystals and containing radium, were guaranteed to an aged Hooper woman, Pauline Schwab, 72, to cure a cataract from which she was suffering. The glasses, which proved to be the common variety on sale for a few dollars, were loaned to the suffering woman after she had made a deposit to insure their return to the pseudo oculist.
 Dr. Paul E. Martell, the name given by the swindler, visited the aged woman at her home with promises to cure her of her affliction. He claimed to be a brother-in-law of Governor McKelvie, and during his visit told his innocent listener of his intimate acquaintanceship with the governor's family and said Mrs. McKelvie acted as his stenographer. A flashy certificate purporting to be his license to practice in the state, was shown, together with a forged commission showing him to be a member of the state sheriff's staff.

 Mrs. Schwab lives alone and is physically infirm. The swindler took advantage of her condition and first obtained $1,900 in Liberty bonds as a guarantee that she would return the glasses. A confederate appeared a few days later and offered her $2,800 if she would sell the glasses. Martell returned in a few days and announced that the Chicago owners of the glasses demanded more security. With the $2,800 offer in mind, the woman readily agreed to give $1,000 in cash and $50 for the service of the fake oculist.
 When friends learned of the aged woman's predicament they waited several days before notifying the county authorities in the hopes that the swindlers would return for more money. Sheriff Condit, when informed, traced the check to a Denver bank where it was cashed. He left immediately for Denver in hopes of getting trace of the two men.

Scottsbluff C of C Takes a Swat at the Advertising Programs

At a recent meeting of the Scottsbluff chamber of commerce, the members adopted a resolution designed to stop the charging of excessive prices for program advertising. The resolution reads as follows:
 "Whereas, it has been called to the attention of the board of directors of the chamber of commerce that advertising space in programs of performance given in this city is being sold at a price altogether out of proportion to the cost of the programs or to the value of the advertising; and that the solicitation of such space has been made on the basis of supporting a charity or other public cause in this city; and
 "Whereas, such solicitation often imposes an unfair burden of expense upon the business men who are secured for such advertising and also reacts to the disadvantage of the newspapers of the city of Scottsbluff, therefore "Be it resolved, that it is the sense of this body that such methods of solicitation be discouraged; that when such advertising is sold a statement be made as to the cost of the programs and their actual circulation, so that a fair cost to put upon such advertising space; and that this body urge the merchants of the city to place their advertising as far as possible with the newspapers of the city that are among its best means of community advertisement and betterment."
