In The MOVIES "Play Square," with Edna Murphy and Johnny Walker, as co-stars, is the Imperial attraction for tonight. Miss Murphy is seen as a dainty small town girl, and Walker as a youth from the same town who, after falling into evil ways in the city, has returned, bent upon reform in defiance of his city pals. It is at this point that the pair become sweethearts. The story presents a fine moral lesson, but it is never "preachy" and never dry.

Saturday there will be five acts of vaudeville, and in addition Hoot Gibson in "Sure Fire." The story is the fighting drama of a man who makes good—a war-bond cowpuncher, who shows his worth for something more than riding the range. In many respects it is even a better picture than "Action" and "Red Courage, Gibson's two previous successes.

Sunday's bill is featured by "The Sky Pilot," adapted from the novel by Ralph Connor. The sky pilot, who comes unsolicited into the Canadian hills, is quite an unpopular person at first, and the best they can do for him in the way of a house to worship is to rather reluctantly allow him permission to hold services in "The Stopping Place," the local saloon. However, the Pilot wins out, with the result that the boys surprise him on Christmas morning with a quaint little frame church which they have financed and built without his knowledge. And nailed to the pulpit are a couple of horseshoes.

Monday and Tuesday of next week comes "Mickey," the picture you will never forget, with Mable Normand in the title role. A ten-stained world is laughing with "Mickey"—the naughty little tomboy from the mountain country, with her pranks, her mischievous quick eyes, her magnetic smile. Just dusting, and dusting, for this mischievous little tomboy from the far-off mountain country. But when they did find out she owned a gold mine, how different.

ALL THREATS IGNORED. "What do you like best, Elsie?" he asked as they sat together in the porch hammock. "Ice cream," she answered promptly. "Scream your head off. I'm going to kiss you anyway."

If the knickerbocker girl survives she will settle for once and for all the age-long question regarding the proper length of skirts.
