CHINESE SWORDS.

SOME VERY REMARKABLE PRODUCTS OF WONDERFUL SKILL.

Two Bladed Swords That Are Valuable Curiosities-Weapons That Display High Degree of Workmanship-Terrible Looking Daggers. Though Dr. Bedloe, the United States consul to Amoy, China, has started back to his post after his leave of absence, yet through the delays incident to the esting and valuable relics arrived only a few days ago.

In his room at the Bellevue a reporter found the genial consul resting contentedly after his breakfast, as his eye roved most deadly and awful weapons ever conceived or executed by map. When asked about these curiously ugly swords the doctor said:

"I was asked to execute a commission for the Rev. Dr. C. M. Shepherd, the distinguished Nebraska divine, a gentleman, who though a man of peace, has one of the finest, if not the very best, cyllections of swords and other weapons in the world. This led to my examining several hundred rare and curious weapons sent me for inspection and approval, and these are a few of those I selected. No two are alike, and not one but what displays rare skill and inventive power on the part of the Chinese swordsmith.
"The handsomest of all is a general's saber, about 41/2 feet long, slightly Japanese in style, with an edge like a razor and a point that would extort admiration from Colonel Jack Chin, of Louisville. Unlike our own, the thickest part of the blade is the center. This gives incrusted with mother-of-pearl. The hilt is of black iron, molded in the form of a full blown rose, the petals of which have been drilled with small believed. have been drilled with small holes and these filled with bright brass bars.

"The most curious of the lot to my sword from Ho-nan. It is only about two feet long and in the scabbard looks very like the sword bayonet of our own army. The scabbard is plain but very neat and covered with white shagreen seven holes about an inch and a half and put in a zigzag line from hilt to point. These are filled with pure copper, which is ground down to form a smooth surface flush with the steel and polished to brightness.

"These seven stars, as they are called. are found in nearly all the martial weapons of Ho-nan and are relics of the old astrologic faith that still prevails in quarter from each. Well, I buttoned many parts of China. Its hold is so strong that if the copper falls out of one | Then I had to resign my position, as I of the sword holes it is accepted as a was moving to a boarding house up sure precursor of death, and the luckless wielder of the blade usually commits suicide to escape further trouble. "The short stabbing daggers which find favor chiefly with pirates and revolutionists, form a strong contrast with the weapons described. They are generally so ugly that they would be lidithe weapon, the armorer has hollowed out a shallow, spoon shaped concavity on either side of the blade and filled it in with blood red lacquer, the effect of which when suddenly drawn from a

"Still another dagger is about the clumsiest affair of the kind I ever handled. The blade is a foot long, about Jackson states: "I regard Ballard's Horethree inches wide and half an inch thick. With its heavy brass hilt and gigantic guard it weighs over three pounds. If set with a long handle it could be used as an ax. It is used chiefly by the Black Flags and other Celestial outlaws, who, in addition to using it in the ordinary manner, throw it with and lungs." Sold by A. F. Streitz. 1 4 fatal precision.

"The ex-resident of Tonquin told me that during the late war he had known instances in which the knives were thrown with such force that they would go through a man's body and show two inches of bloody steel beyond his back. The handles of many of these instru-ments of death are finished with what we call pistol grips.

"The most dreadful looking weapon of all was the executioner's sword used by the late headsman of Amoy. It is of Manchurian type, being long, almost straight, very heavy and keenly edged. It is used with one hand and is shaped and wound so as to give the executioner a powerful hold upon his weapon. Upon the blade near the hilt are Chinese characters recording the tragic events in which it has taken active part. My interpreter told me that they record no less than 193 human lives which it has taken out of this world. This record enhances its value. A new sword of the same kind could be bought for ten or twelve dollars, but for this sword with its ghastly history the thrifty broker wanted $200 cash. "He evidently thought, although it came high, I must have it, and accordingly raised the ante. He was a very heartbroken creature when I returned it, with the editorial line so familiar to the spring poet, 'Declined with thanks.' A word of caution as to these oriental swords and remember that the campaign this the noon hour reading and doing fancy work. She was perfectly willing to wait for her money until the end of the month.

"That was one weight off my mind of course, but I had still to grapple with the car fare problem. I was in a dreadful pickle really. For four days I walked every inch of the way-414 miles each journey. I used to leave the house at 7 in the morning so as to reach the school promptly at 9.

GIRLS AT MEN'S WORK

YOUNG WOMEN IN PITTSBURG MAKE IRON BOLTS AND NUTS.

Work That Seems Hard for Feminine Hands, but Which Is Liked by the Girls, Who Are Very Skillful-They Are Neat and Intelligent-Their Pay. There are probably a thousand women in Pittsburg who work in iron mill making bolts, nuts, hinges and barbed wire. It seems almost incredible that girls should be employed in an occupa tion which is associated only with brawn and muscle, but such is the case. At the first sight of the bolt works one cannot believe that anything bright or in-teresting could live inside. At the call of the 6:30 a. m. whistle girls are seen coming from all directions toward the factory. They are generally dressed tidy and well, and with their lunch baskets on their arms are not unlike any working girl one may see. The first thing they do after entering the building is to change their street dress for one to work in, tie up their hair, roll up their sleeves, and, putting on a coffeesack apron, are ready to begin the day's labor. At 7 o'clock the last whistle blows, the wheels groan and screech as if they were weary to resume another day's work, but in a little while they begin to move with more rapidity and the noise amounts to something terrific. A sulphur smoke arises, and as it embraces everything in a dim color, it needs but the dull red burning of the "Then I found that my French heels oil, the horrible noises and the occasional sound of a human voice halloing

In a crude state they are sent to other departments, when the finshing touches are applied by feminine ingers, ofttimes very delicate ones. The bolts are dumped into different bins, according to size and length, and each girl has one special kind to work on. The first work on the bolt is to "point" it-that is, to make a round end so that it will enter the machine which cuts the thread on it. The pointing machine has an immovable socket at one side and steam revolving knives to one dollar a day. Little girls from six years up to twelve put the nuts on the bolts and pack them. The "nutting on" is also accomplished by machine power. The worker puts a nut on a plate; then, after catching the head of a bolt in the jaws above, she presses her foot on the pedal, when, resto! the work is done. At long tables, built of substantial wood, are rows of young girls, interspersed with a scattering of women whom life cast forth in their old age. They pile the bolts, row after row, alternate heads, then wrap them in strong paper.

The girls always come to the factory clad neatly and well. Dressing rooms are provided for them, and soap and owels. At noon the girls are given three-quarters of an hour. British Papers Pleased with Cleveland's Candidacy. Mr. Cleveland's nomination was evitable. He had no competitor of anything like equal weight. The Demo crats denounce protection with vigor. Englishmen will watch Mr. Cleveland's campaign with cordial sympathy, for not only is his tariff policy in accord with the orthodox economic school of England, but his party platform wisely condemned the arrogant and irritating foreign policy of its opponents.-Lon don Graphic.

The nomination of Mr. Cleveland ends one of the bitterest political fights ever waged in the United States. The breach between the warring factions will probably extend to the presidential contest and will tell seriously against Mr. Cleveland's prospects. Perhaps the most remarkable event of the conven tion was the complete overthrow of the protection element and the reinstatement of the Mills feeling. Briefly de scribed, the outcome of the convention is a repetition of the struggle of 1888, 2 and while the Democratic cleavage is as wide as it is now the outlook certainly favors the election of Mr. Harrison.-

A WEAK TICKET.

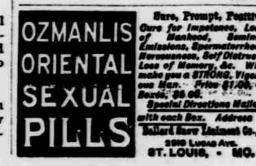

The Democratic Candidates Have a Booord of Defeat. The Democratic party has chosen its ticket, and could not possibly have pleased Republicans better than by the nominations it has made.
