WEDNESDAY, MARCH 22d, 1893.

Ever since the campaign of 1890 J. K. Stevens, who once misrepresented this district in the state senate, has "had it in" for THE TRIBUNE, and he never loses an opportunity to refer to the editor as a liar, ecoundrel, villain, etc. In last week's issue of the Era Mr. Stevens comes out in a denial of a conference which THE TRIBUNE ciaimed was held at the Hawley House a couple of weeks since, and uses such denial as a basis for hurling a few of his pet epithets at the editor. In regard to the conference, THE TRIBUNE received its information as to the fact of the meeting being held from a boarder at the Hawley House, and the proceedings of the conference were published just as they were given to us by a simon pure member of the independent party who was displeased at the action which he was positive took place at that meeting. For the past three years we have been taught that a member of the above party knows not how to tell a falsehood, and profiting by these teachings we did not doubt the truth of the statement made to us. Since the publication of our article, we have learned that several independents have said that if THE TRIBUNE had published the full details of the belches sulphur, scorpions, and scal- the home of his best girl and there meeting the article would have caused a much greater sensation.
