WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 25, 1893.

REPUBLICAN TICKET.

- For Supreme Judge, T. O. C. HARRISON. For Regent State University, H. D. EASTBROOK. For Treasurer, JOHN H. CLARK. For Clerk, GEO. C. STODDARD. For Judge, JAMES M. RAY. For Sheriff, DAVID A. BAKER. For Sup't. Public Instruction, MARY E. HOSFORD. For Coroner, SAMUEL ADAMS. For Com. Third Dist., W. T. BOWEN.

Two weeks of aggressive campaigning means the election of every candidate on the republican ticket.

It is beginning to dawn on the minds of a good many independents that Mr. Buchanan is not so much of a saint as some people would have them believe.

By mutual consent L. C. Lenon has withdrawn as the democratic candidate for county judge and A. Fisher becomes the victim. Mr. Lenon will, however, be a candidate for justice of the peace in Wallace precinct.

The cry of Clark's incompetency comes principally from a class of men who pay no taxes, have no business to transact at the treasurer's office, and therefore have no knowledge as to how Mr. Clark conducts his office.

As evidence of Newell Burrill's popularity where he is best known, it is stated on excellent authority that he will not carry his own precinct nor one or two adjoining. This being the case, it is very evident that there is something wrong with the man.

ANANIAS BEELER, of the Wallace Herald, is respectfully invited to call at the Tribune office the next time he is in North Platte and receive a medal for being the most notorious liar in western Nebraska. It has been ready for him for some time past.

THE Wallace Herald devotes a quarter of a column in relating how once upon a time Newell Burrill, the independent candidate for county clerk, gave a needy and deserving woman a dollar and a half. This was undoubtedly the greatest event in Burrill's life.

A QUESTION in simple arithmetic: Jake Miller buys a bunch of horses for $700 and sells them within a month for $1400, and receives three per cent per month on the notes he accepted from the purchasers, the average life of each note being six months; how much money did Miller make on the deal?

ANY story concocted by Frank Wheeling, who, when a resident of North Platte, was known as a thief, gambler and would-be murderer, is unworthy of consideration. Wheeling shot at Baker several years ago with intent to kill and has ever had a bitter hatred for him. In giving publicity to any statement purported to have been made by Wheeling the independent gasbags give additional evidence of being extremely hard pushed for campaign thunder, for no one would believe Wheeling under oath.

MR. KELHER's attempt in last week's Era to prove that John H. Clark was not turning into the treasury the interest he received on county moneys was very lame. Especially can it be considered so when Mr. Kelher admits that Mr. Clark has a written opinion from Attorney General Hastings by which he, Clark, justifies his actions. THE TRIBUNE has a copy of the attorney general's opinion, but its extreme length excludes the whole of our column. The part of the opinion, however, which is directly applicable to the case is found in following quotation: "I conclude that the county treasurer under the law is required to deposit all funds in treasury belonging to the county in the county depository, and that it does not extend to and include a fund of funds which do not belong to the county. Mr. Clark is depositing all moneys in the county depositories and is turning into the county treasury all the interest he receives on county funds. He is acting in direct accordance with the opinion rendered by the attorney general, the highest authority in the state to which he can apply. Messrs. Hill and Diehl state that Mr. Clark has not accounted for interest on the several precinct bridge funds, which is correct, for he has no authority to turn into the county treasury money which at some future time may be demanded by the respective precincts. The interest accruing from the precinct funds is held in abeyance by Mr. Clark and when the supreme court settles the question, as it undoubtedly will in the near future, as to which is the rightful owner, the county or the precincts, the money will be forthcoming. The course pursued by Mr. Clark in this matter is observed by treasurers all over the state, in fact they cannot do otherwise than obey the instructions of the attorney general—unless they except an interpretation of the law by the very learned Mr. Kelher, and this they will hardly do.

REPORTS coming in daily from the county precincts are very gratifying to the republicans. They indicate a result much more sweeping than two years ago.

IS W. T. Bowen, candidate for commissioner of the third district, the republicans have a very strong man, against whose ability and integrity his opponents have nothing to say. There is every reason to predict his election by a handsome majority.—Wallace Star.

THE TRIBUNE is successfully nailing the lies concocted by Mr. Beeler as fast as they appear in print. The people generally know Beeler's proneness to tell falsehoods, but if the campaign continued a month longer there would not be a man, woman or child in the county who would believe him under oath.

W. J. Bowen, the republican candidate for commissioner, will always favor awarding a contract to the lowest and best bidder. Does the independent candidate for the same office favor such a course, or will he, if elected, filch hundreds of dollars from the county by awarding the county printing to the highest bidder?

IN contradiction to an item appearing in the Herald, the Wallace Star says: Frank Hettinger will vote the republican ticket straight, and those who know him best will not believe anything else. He will vote for his successful opponent in the convention and work for him, and the Herald's insinuations, like most of the stuff that appears in that rag, are not founded on facts.

If Jake Miller did not charge the farmers three per cent per month interest on the notes he accepted on horse sales he convicts himself of telling a falsehood for he certainly did go to a North Platte attorney and stating that he had charged unlawful interest asked what course he should pursue in case the farmers plead usury. This occurred the early part of 1890 and it is still fresh in Miller's mind, though he is evidently trying very hard to forget it.

MUCH as he would like to get out and see his friends, county judge Ray finds it impossible to leave his office for any length of time without neglecting his official duties, and this he flatly refuses to do. This is in keeping with the judge's record throughout his term—he has attended strictly to his duties, kept close to his office and performed all his work in a faultless manner. For this he deserves commendation, and the voters will see that he is elected by a handsome majority.

BUTLER BUCHANAN thinks the republican papers of Lincoln county are making a very personal fight on him; that their attacks are slanderous. Now, so far as THE TRIBUNE is concerned, no personalities have been indulged in; and the statements it has made in regard to him have been such as he cannot honestly deny. It has stated facts such as they exist and surely he cannot find fault with the publication of truths. It has not been and is not the intention of THE TRIBUNE to malign Mr. Buchanan. For two years he was clerk of Lincoln county and the members of his present party insist that he made a model officer and that all his acts as such are above criticism. If this is true Mr. Buchanan can undoubtedly point with pride to his official actions and court public investigation of his record as clerk. Taking it for granted that he does this, THE TRIBUNE desires to call the attention of the voters of Lincoln county to one or two things that transpired during his term of office. In the early part of 1890 Mr. Buchanan began making a daily abstract of all mortgages and like instruments filed in the clerk's office, and sent copies of such daily abstract to some twenty-five or thirty bankers, money lenders and real estate dealers in this and adjoining counties. From each of those to whom he sent a copy he received two dollars and fifty cents a month, the whole making a monthly aggregate of from forty to sixty dollars. The work of making these abstracts devolved on either Mr. Buchanan or his deputy Mr. Dick, and it was always performed during business hours, never later than five o'clock in the afternoon. The furnishing of these abstracts continued during Mr. Buchanan's term of office, though toward the latter part of term the number of subscribers had somewhat diminished. Now, in all honesty was not the moneys received from this source fees of the office, and should not Mr. Buchanan have reported them as such? The county was paying for the time of himself and his deputy, and the work of making the abstracts came out of that time. It was part of the revenue of the office and cannot be considered other than fees. But Mr. Buchanan, in making his settlement with the commissioners, never reported these fees. Now, is this strictly honest work? did he not take advantage of the commissioners and defraud the county out of at least $800? Voters carefully weigh this matter and then ask yourselves if Mr. Buchanan was not guilty of a dishonest act.

Mr. Buchanan is supposed to be a "reform" candidate and would therefore not take advantage of anything that would add extra expense to the county, and yet we find that during the last year of his term he charged and received $400 as clerk to the commissioners, while both his predecessor, Mr. Evans, and his successor, Mr. Stoddard charged but $200 for a like service. The statements made in this article are facts, and can be substantiated by a number of true and good witnesses. They prove that Mr. Buchanan was not a model officer, that he took advantage of the taxpayers, and that he is indebted to the county the full amount of fees he received from his abstract subscribers. Mr. Buchanan's official acts will be further considered next week.

THE Wallace Herald devotes a half column to what it terms the "stupendous stupidity" of County Treasurer Clark. But when the truth is stated the stupendous stupidity is on the Herald. The portion of the article which at present we desire to consider is as follows:

On the 26th day of September, 1893, Mr. C. A. Glaze, a prominent business man of Wallace, drew a check for $72.35 on the First National Bank of North Platte, Neb., payable to J. H. Clark, for the payment of his Glaze's note, which check reached Mr. Clark on the 27th, only three days before the land, upon which the taxes were due, would be advertised. Instead of presenting the check at the First National Bank where he has daily business, Clark returned it to Mr. Glaze with the following letter:

Your check containing check for $72.35 which I return to you. Please send draft instead of check. To save advertising, it lets by Saturday. Respectfully, J. H. Clark, Treasurer. Now, in the first place, there is no bank in Wallace, and Mr. Glaze could not therefore get a check to send to the treasurer. If Mr. Clark had sent only the money, Mr. Glaze would have had a fourteen year old school boy, instead of sticking to the letter and rule in his office, have gone to the bank and presented the check upon which he would have received prompt payment as Mr. Glaze had his money deposited in said bank.

The true facts are that on the date named in the Herald's article Mr. Clark received the check named ($72.35) marked "no protest." Deputy Prosser presented the check to the First National Bank for payment and the bank stated that the accounts of Mr. Glaze were $20.00 short of the amount of the check and that balance would not be advanced to pay the check, and then the check was returned. Mr. Beeler is there anything stupid about that? This is the kind of a business man the republicans have nominated for county treasurer. Mr. Beeler if you think it stupid to return a worthless check and save the county from being fleeced keep up your fight upon Treasurer Clark and you will elect him by a handsome majority. You will find lying sheets like yours, as well as worthless checks, are at a heavy discount before an honest and fearless officer like J. H. Clark.

State of Nebraska, Lincoln County, s. s. Geo. Prosser, being duly sworn, deposes and says that he is deputy county treasurer of Lincoln County, Nebraska, and that the bank referred to in the foregoing is the First National Bank of North Platte. Subscribed in my presence and sworn to before me this 23rd day of October, 1893. R. F. Fossaker, Notary Public.

The statement made by Beeler that the commissioners' salaries under republican administration amounted to approximately $1,000 each is false and Beeler knew it when he made the statement. A republican commissioner ever drew half that sum except during the relict work of 1891. The average salaries since 1886 have been under $300 per annum. And yet Joe Beeler will lie and ask the people of Lincoln county to believe his willful misrepresentations.

Table listing names and amounts of salaries under republican administration from 1886 to 1892. Includes names like J. L. Walker, James Belton, J. L. McAllister, etc.

To show the fallacies of populist statements and how easily a man whose mind is poisoned with political prejudice can be mistaken and led to believe that some county official, opposed to him politically has done him an injustice, we wish to correct a statement that has been ventilated quite freely in the past week. Frank Welborn it seems had a county warrant due him for road work. Mr. Welborn makes the assertion that Mr. Clark went to the county clerk's office and got his warrant and put it in his safe and instead of applying it to his taxes advised them. The facts in the matter are as follows: The county commissioners ordered the county treasurer to go to the clerk's office and get a $37.87 warrant belonging to Frank Welborn and apply it to his back taxes. Mr. Clark did as instructed and the same was held until Welborn sent in his receipts which was not until Sept. 27, 1892, when he was given his tax receipt and paid balance of money due on warrant. His land for which this warrant was to pay the taxes on was never advertised. Mr. Welborn is either honestly mistaken or has allowed his political prejudice to get the upper hand of his better judgment in this matter. If Mr. Welborn consults his tax receipt he will find it is dated Sept. 27, 1892, and then looks up the law he will find that the delinquent tax list is not published until after October 1st.—Wellfleet Argus.

We have never said a word against the candidature of the other parties for supreme judge, as we are not in the habit of running a man down because he does not belong to our party. But as Judge Maxwell whom we considered the best and most available candidate, and whom we would have supported against any other man for the position of supreme judge, has refused to come out as an independent, (what, according to our opinion he ought to have done), we as all the voters have now to choose one of the three who have been nominated. And as Judge Harrison is equal to the others in every respect, and is superior to them as a considerable older and more experienced lawyer we believe that he deserves our support. We are of the opinion that Judge Maxwell, who out of respect to his party's decision withdrew from the contest, will himself vote for Judge Harrison in preference to the candidates of the other parties.—Grand Island Independent.

EVERY day brings further evidence of the mismanagement of the proceedings attending upon the opening of the Cherokee Strip. We are now told that hundreds of unfortunate are drifting into the towns of Oklahoma and Kansas, reduced to beggary by the false expectations of securing boundless wealth by merely seizing upon it when the government should say the word. Deluded in their hopes they are now becoming charges upon the charitable residents in the neighborhood. The rush for free land has proved no more successful on the occasion of opening the Cherokee Strip than on the numerous previous disgraceful occasions.—Bee.

THE action of Judge Holcomb in calling an outside judge to the bench in this district and making a regular stumping tour of the state is a surprise to a great many people and is provoking a great deal of unfavorable criticism. It is within bounds for a candidate for supreme judge to appear at public meetings, make the acquaintance of the people generally, and talk politics a little as possible. This was the old idea, but Judge Holcomb is discounting it by long odds, in making a straight out "pop" political campaign.—Kearney Hub.

THE mine owners in Montana are starting up their business again. The vacation has enabled them to see the world's fair to good advantage, and besides they have reduced the miners to such a condition of poverty that the poor fellows have not been able to get away and are willing to work for anything that the bosses will condescend to pay. The mine owners lost very little when they closed down last summer to give the country an "object lesson."—Journal.

THE naval insurrection at Rio Janeiro is gradually petering out. The insurgent leader, Admiral Mello, has been unable to make a lodgement on land and his ammunition and provisions are giving out. President Peixoto is organizing a fleet against him which will in time if the new fleet does not rebel, make his position in the harbor untenable. The insurrection appears to have been a most useless and unprovoked attempt of the navy to get even with the army for having upset the government of Dom Pedro without first consulting the admirals, the motive being jealousy and the pretext of a most flimsy sort. If according to South American cities, Mello and his principal officers are finally shot for their pains, there will be few tears for their fate.

ACCORDING to the arrangement by the interior department relative to the land offices in Nebraska, the Broken Bow district was enlarged and the land office was retained at Broken Bow. The arrangement naturally met with opposition from the citizens of the towns where the offices were abolished, especially at Chadron. Congressman Kem came to the rescue by suggesting that the Chadron office remain and the Broken Bow office be abolished. This suggestion has created a storm at Broken Bow where they cannot understand why Kem should favor an injury being done to his own town, and some have even become so indignant as to suggest a coat of tar and feathers as about the proper thing for the read-headed congressman. It is earnestly hoped that out of all the turmoil aroused over the many blunders of Kem, will come a demand for the retirement of his incompetency that will be emphasized by his emphatic defeat at the polls next year.—Cozad Tribune.
