Travel was not very extensive, in fact, but one train a day passed my lonely station. "On the fifteenth day of every month I received by express for the superintendent of the Ingot Mining company paid off. The amount averaged between $15,000 and $18,000. On the 14th of

June in that year the superintendent of the mines came to me and said :

It has done a Bill is operating in the mountains

"Grizzly Bill was a name to inspire terror. The individual who bore that unmusical sobriquet was an outlaw of great daring and resolution. He stopped body from Boston. Their camp was department to Germany, returned to dation. I assured the superintendent, murder was child's play. But after the first emotion of fear I felt perfectly calm. In truth, I felt as though fate had thrown this desperado in my way so that I could conquer him. I don't know why I felt thus; probably I experienced the same emotions that a soldier does who goes into battle with fear and trembling, yet who, when actually in the midst of danger, feels as cool and collected as though he were out of reach of all possibility of harm.

"I got out of bed, picked up the coal shovel and scuttle and made as much noise as possible. As the night had been an unusually cool one a fire was burning, and as I passed the stove I grabbed my revolver and thrust it into my right coat pocket. Into my left pocket I thrust some nails and a hammer. Then, whistling as loudly as possible, to mislead the desperado in the box, I left the little office and walked across the floor of the freight part of the station. When immediately in front of the box I sprang at it with the fury of a man fighting for his life and overturned it. It fell to the floor, top up, with a resounding crash. Instantly I was astride the box driving nails into the lid as hard and fast as a man in terror for his life could do. And all that while I was yelling at the imprisoned outlaw at the top of my voice, telling him that if he so much as breathed I would instantly kill him.

"But my threats did not appear to frighten him much. From the interior of the box came a volley of muffled oaths that would have astonished a Digger Indian. I never heard such horrible profanity. I fired my pistol twice in the air to let him know that I meant business. After awhile he became quiet. I carefully examined the box and found that there was no danger of suffocating, for at the upper end were a number of tiny perforations which freely admitted air

"I sat astride that box until my assistant arrived at 7 o'clock. It was a long and trying vigil, but the magnitude of my victory buoyed me up. My assistant was almost too much amazed to speak when I told him of my capture. He quickly went to the mines and told the superintendent to hasten at once with a sufficient guard of men to the station and take Grizzly Bill into custody. It didn't take long to do this, and when Bill was hauled by no gentle hands from the box he was the angriest outlaw ever captured. He fought like a

Hopes to Be the Pivot.

The speech of the dark browed senator, Butler of North Carolina, as temporary chairman, was listened to with eager interest. Senator Butler hopes to be the pivot on which the convention will turn. He believes eventually all the factions can be harmonized on his plan to adopt a Populist platform and nominate upon it Bryan with a southern Populist for vice president. His speech strongly upheld the demand for the perpetuation of the Populist organization which he described as having driven the Republicans to gold and the Democrats to silver.

To be swallowed by the Democrats, he said, was a danger only equaled by the danger of being made the indirect allies of the Republicans in the present campaign. He gave both factions a chance to rend the air with their shouts, but when, in conclusion, he suggested a middle course, the purport of which all understood, both sides were irresponsive. The Bryan men on the whole, however, considered that the victory so far as there was one, lay with them. There was no demonstration at the day session. The delegates save those from Texas, were unusually quiet, although, after they had been aroused by the display of Lincoln's picture, they applauded with enthusiasm everything which suited their funcies.

No Night Session.

There was no night session owing to an accident which destroyed the electric light connections. A severe storm had passed over the city about 6 o'clock and the wires were blown down. Despite this fact the delegates assembled in the hall and waited for an hour in total darkness for the lights to be turned on,

Bryan Is In the Lead.

The situation at present points more strongly to Bryan's indorsement or nomination. In fact, the Bryan managers declare that they are absolutely certain that so far as the head of the ticket is concerned they are out of the woods. But with regard to Sewall they admit privately that there is grave foreign office. doubt and that there is now probably a majority of the convention against the Bath shipbuilder. They are using all their energies to prevent the complications that would follow an indorsement of Bryan and the nomination of a Populist for vice president. The "middle-ofthe-road" men can not even get together on a candidate for president. Debs is their favorite, but the Bryan managers say they have word that he will decline the further use of his name.

violent rainstorm swept through the mountains. Shortly before 10 o'clock the next morning I received word over the wire that the train from Pikeville could not get to Goldton owing to a washout below Summit Rock. It was thought that the track could be made passable by afternoon and that the train would reach my station before 6 o'clock. I communicated these facts to the mine superintendent by means of an assistant who was always at the station during

"At 5 o'clock that evening I received a message saying that it would be impossible for the train to get through bepanied by his wife and her brother. He fore 9 or 10 o'clock the next morning. I sent word to this effect to the mine superintendent, who, in turn, communicated it to the men. Feeling rather tired I turned in carly that night. Sleep, however, was out of the question. "The baggage, freight, express and telegraph offices were all under one coof. One corner of the big warehouse (it was hardly anything else) was partitioned off so as to make a private inclosure. This boxlike compartment I used for sleeping, cating and the transaction of the company's telegraphic and railroad business. The sender and reseiver were affixed to a table conveniently near my bed, and if necessary it was possible to transmit or take a message without even arising. Of course I never found it necessary to do this; 1 simply mention it to illustrate the arrangement of the office.

"Along toward midnight the telegraph instrument began to click. I heard my cently escaped from jail at Omaha call, opened the key and asked what was wanted. The operator at Pikeville wired back that the train which had been delayed on account of the washout had started for Goldton and would reach there between 3 and 4 o'clock in the morning. At precisely 2:45 o'clock the train steamed into Goldton.

"The express messenger alighted and handed me a huge and many sealed package. It contained $17,500.

"' 'Oh, that isn't all,' said the mes senger with a laugh. 'I have a box in the car that's as heavy as lead. We've been wondering all the way up the mountain what it contained.'

"The box was lifted from the car and placed on end in the freight department of the station. It was fully 7 feet long and 4 wide-horribly suggestive of the rough box in which a coffin is inclosed. I thought of this after the train had resumed its journey. I put the pay money in the safe, turned the combination lock and retired. I fell into a doze, from which I was aroused with a start

I thought that I was dreaming at first, but when the mysterious message was repeated for the third time I came to a different conclusion. I don't believe in spiritualism, yet I am at a loss now to ascribe that inexplicable communication to any other source. "At any rate, upon hearing the third message my mind instantly reverted to the huge box in the freight corner. The partitioning of my little apartment did uot extend as high as the roof, but merely to a distance of about five feet above the level of my bed, and by standing on the bed I could peer over the top and see all parts of the interior of the station. I rose stealthily to an erect position and looked over the edge of the partition. The first thing I saw was the box, standing on end near a window in the extreme end of the station, and as I looked I saw its top slowly rise and a man's head protrude itself. Press. It was a thick, brutalized face, with grizzled whiskers. Instantly it flashed across my mind that it belonged to Grizzly Bill. The Sultan's Private Museum.

We entered a building consisting of one long room, filled- with treasures. This is the sultan's private museum. Here are collected and beautifully arranged all the presents that he has received, as well as innumerable valuable objects that belonged to some of his predecessors. Countless clocks and watches, inlaid armor, objects in jade, caskets, wonderfully bound books, china of all sorts, pictures, miniatures, jeweled ornaments of every kind, all so arranged in their cases that one could examine and enjoy them, a delightful contrast to the confusion in which the treasures of the old seraglio are heaped together. One upright case contained four dozen of the most perfect deep blue Sevres plates, a present from the Emperor Napoleon, sunk into velvet, 24 on each side of the stand. Each plate was a picked and perfect specimen. The right names were not always attached to the objects, and we found a miniature painting which we recognized as Lord Palmerston marked as the prince con-

We could have spent hours in examining everything, but time was limited, and we were taken on to the private stables, still within the harem walls, holding 12 of the most perfect Arabs, used by the sultan for riding and driving in the park of Yildiz. They were all white or gray. Of course we saw no dogs anywhere-they are held of no repute in the east; but I was told the sultan possesses a peculiarly fine breed of white Angora cats, to which he is devoted, and whose progeny he sometimes gives to friends, but I saw none of them. The only pet we saw was a large cockatoo at the harem gate, who uttered some unknown sounds-I suppose Turkish-as we passed.-Long-

The Populist-Anarchist Ticket. It will be impossible to bolt the Democratic national ticket next November. for there is no Democratic national ticket to bolt. There are Populisticanarchist candidates nominated on a Populistic-anarchist platform. - New York Sun.

The Lost Sheep Returns. The Chicago candidate fits the platform. He must, at any cost and by whatever means are most effective, be beaten. -New York Times.

troduced and made a 5-minute speech. receiving an ovation from the lawyers. Judge G. W. Ambrose of Omaha delivered a very interesting address on

"Obedience to the Law." The closing paper of the morning session was by A. A. Hirschl of Chicago, who read a very strong paper on "Reform in Judicial Procedure."

The theme of the afternoon's discusaion was "Needed Law Reforms, State and National," and the first paper was by John N. Baxter of Denver, who considered "Unfavorable Symptoms and Remedies Prescribed." There is a lively controversy over the location of the next convention in which the rival claims of Detroit, Buffalo, Toledo, Sandusky and Put-In Bay, near Cleveland, are involved. Disc Harrows -AND-Sulky Plows AT COST.
