BYWAYS OF SEVILLE

THUMB NAIL SKETCHES OF A WITTY AND GRACIOUS PEOPLE.

The Lazy and Picturesque Life of the Andalusians-Making Love Through Burred Windows-A Taberna Where the Dark- sons there, but I never saw one. Poor houses Lieutenant Ellicott says: er Side of Life Is Displayed.

Wandering home through the dark, winding byways, you pass cloaked figures, whispering at the iron bound windows. They are the lovers of Seville. pelando la pava (plucking the turkey), as they call it. With the lattice slightly open, the fair Sevillana sits in her darkened chamber talking in whispered tones to the gallant without. The old folks, weary of the task of chaperonage, after locking the daughter in a room barred like a prison cell, have gone to bed, and for hours, sometimes the entire night, the affianced lovers look through the grating into each other's eyes and whisper the nothings of love. It would seem cold comfort to a northern swain, but the Spaniards say the fron bars are a necessary evil there in Spain. In Spain there are life and color and picturesqueness everywhere, and you think the Spaniard was born to be an artist's model.

In the maze of tortnous streets about the market one sees something of the life of the people. There the whitewashed houses are outlined against the brilliant sky in rambling perspective, and the graceful tower of some parish church, its brown walls moss grown, its bright tiles shining, rise sharp and clear into the blue above. Durk maidens with glossy hair and warm color in their cheeks gaze idly from the miradores above upon the countless people in the streets below.

The cobbler hammers and stitches in his smcky little shop without window or door, glasses click in the bodega, sleek cows with mournful eyes and tinkling bells stand silently chewing their cuds in the milkman's stalls, and the dainty feet of shaggy donkeys patter on the cobble stones as the patient little beasts, beneath their panniers of straw or charcoal, thread their way through the crowd. You wander along, picking your way through the good natured assemblage, until you reach some little plaza with its church, where beggars sun themselves upon the flugstones, and the puestes, or beeths of the street pedelers, with graceful, colored awnings, are scattered picturesquely about the payement. There the dazzling sun- trious history. The ladies' dresses are light casts fantastic shadows on the yellow and blue walls of the houses, multicolored pots of festcens of cotton prints bang in the dingy sheps, gallardes-dandies of the street-gossip in groups or cgle the passing maidens, dogo sneeze in sunny spots and crowds of idlers cluster about some barrel organ or blind guitarist. There is a booth near by where a brence skinned gypsy is cooking melletes calentites, a sert of greasy floor cake fried in oil, and a wine through the medium of the hair, in dren are supposed to take such delight, poesto with its earthen jars, and huge bottles of red and yellow wine, and there veges leiter to eat and drink.

One can linger for hours in the streets of Seville, watching the people and talking with them, too, for the Andalusian of the lower classes is the best of when printed and toned gives a clear fellows.
