Review of the Wheat Market.

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.-A steady advance has narked the wheat market since the middle of the week, attended by an increased outside interest, which yesterday suddenly took on the proportions of a boom and put prices at a higher point than they have been for several weeks. Statements in regard to the wheat requirements of European countries have received substantial corroboration through the greatly increased export demand. Many reports were also received as to the poor winter wheat prospects east of the Mississippi, where rain is still greatly needed Some reports indeed show a rather sensational state of affairs. December has ranged between 901 gc and 95c, the low point being touched on Wednesday The range for May was between 88%c and
