Regard For The Law.

EDITOR TRIBUNE: The editorial in Harper's Weekly of March 23d on Benjamin Harrison is well worth the careful reading of every thoughtful citizen, and I commend it to our high school students as an excellent supplement to their study of civics. Speaking of some of the strong points of his character, one especially noted was his absolute loyalty to our true sovereign, the law, and says in comment that "the man who knows that law is king, the law of the being of the republic, is the man in whose hands the government of the people, by the people, and for the people is safest." And if this is truly the one sure foundation upon which our republican institutions rest, should it not apply with equal force to the government of the smallest municipality as to that of the greatest state? Will not a disregard and contempt for the law, framed by ourselves for our own benefit and protection, and the benefit and protection of our children, breed in us and in them a disregard and contempt for all law? Does not our surferance of the violation of law by the vicious, depraved and ignorant element of our community, tend to the demoralization of our civic life, and the lowering of our moral standpoint?

Let us then frankly acknowledge our duties and responsibilities as citizens loyal to the law, endeavor by our influence and by our ballots to redeem our community from the degradation of lawlessness and vice. The leaders and representatives of the people in the coming years are in training now. What they shall be, and whether the republic with all its beneficent and glorious achievements shall endure, depends upon that training, and regardless of party or of anything that may confuse the issue, all good citizens should unite on a platform dedicated and devoted to civic righteousness.

Buffalo Bill's Daughter.

From the New Yorker March 16th. When the young ladies who attend Miss Brown's fashionable school heard that the daughter of Buffalo Bill was to come to New York and be one of them in order that like them, she might become the finished article, they talked of little else for several days. They were unaware that Miss Cody's room had already been prepared for its charming occupant. They discussed the expected addition to their ranks as if she were a new and hitherto unseen variety. One girl suggested that Buffalo Bill's daughter would wear her hair down her back, that her skirt would be very short and made of untanned deerskin, and that deerskin leggings and moccasins would also form part of her attire. The next day this particular girl noticed a newcomer in one of the parlors. The stranger was pretty, well set up and looked, in the matter of clothes, as if she had been turned out by an uncommonly competent modiste. Also she seemed to be quite at home in her new surroundings. The pair soon fell into conversation. There was nothing said or done by the stranger that did not smack of New York and the old girl was wondering what was the name of her new and attractive friend when the latter invited the old girl to her room. On the walls of the room were a pair of snowshoes, a couple of guns, several bowie knives, some magnificent deer and buffalo horns, while upon the floor lay a splendid bear skin. My! exclaimed the old girl, clasping her hands in wonder. This room might belong to Buffalo Bill's daughter. It does, was the calm reply. Well, I never, exclaimed the old girl, so surprised that she broke into slang. But how was I to guess? she added. And Miss Cody has been a prime favorite and the spectacular scholar of the school ever since.

Dr. Seymour's many friends and patients will be glad to learn that he has arranged for a personal visit to this city Thursday, April 4th, at the Hotel Newlie.

Gets Back His Wallet.

While in Chicago on the 17th inst., R. A. Douglas was robbed of his wallet containing his railroad ticket, seventy dollars in bills, and several important papers. He did not discover his loss until he was on the train and when he reached home he made out a statement and sent it to the chief of police in Chicago.

Saturday morning Mr. Douglas received a letter from the Chicago postmaster stating that a wallet belonging to him had been sent to that office, that it contained a number of papers, and by remitting fourteen cents the wallet would be sent to him. The amount was remitted and Mr. Douglas has received the wallet, but the money was missing. The thief had extracted the currency and finding that the papers were of no value to him, but were to the owner, sent the wallet to the Chicago post-office.

The letter from the Chicago post-office had been mailed to Mr. Douglas at a point in New Jersey and then forwarded here. This is evidence that the thief sent the wallet to the postoffice the day he took it.

BRADY NEWS.

From the Review. A Chicago commission man was here on Tuesday looking up the prospects for buying hay.

A couple of weeks ago Tom Brock had a runaway in which one of those fine big horses of his was crippled up so that it had to be killed. That was hard luck as it was a very fine animal.

Hannah Lundval and Charlotte Vallenberg, two Swedish ladies who have been Chinese missionaries gave a lecture in their native language at the school house in district No. 101 Sunday afternoon.

One of the ladies was dressed in the Chinese costume. A large crowd was in attendance.

When Frank Murphy was taken to the hospital in Omaha the doctor found upon examination that he had two cancers in his stomach and that an operation would not do him any good, his life only being a question of time. It was expected that he would be brought home Wednesday afternoon. The sympathies of the entire community go out to the family in their hour of sorrow.

Tom Brock, on the old Sam Clapp place, had four horses hitched onto a Fresno scraper the other day. He left them standing while he chased a pig, and they ran away at a 2:40 gait. When the horses stopped, Tom found the best one with his hind foot cut off a front leg cut to the bone and a gash ten inches long cut in its neck. The horse had to be shot at once.—Gothenburg Sun.
