Persistent effort rewarded! The association numbered 365 members in good standing on September 30 of this year, just 15 more than we asked for, and now we wish to thank every person that spoke a good word for the association. We have secured a new member every day this month so far, and they are all railroad men.

Ex-Senator W. V. Allen has just appeared in the supreme court as attorney for the C. R. I. & P. railroad. The railroad bogie will get him "if he don't watch out."

Pot hunters in Cheyenne county undertook to ship prairie chickens to St. Louis billed as choke cherry wine. The authorities were too wise for the guys and they were arrested.

The Burlington railroad has offered to furnish transportation to Denver for the Lincoln Improvement society to inspect the results achieved by the mountain city in the way of municipal beautifying. Bids for erecting a public library building at York are being advertised for. Mrs. C. G. Woods left a bequest of $10,000 for the purpose.

The people of Lincoln are discussing a plan to purchase a chime of bells to be placed in the tower of the handsome new St. Paul's Methodist church just being finished, the chimes to be set to play the favorite hymns of President McKinley. Perkins county people struggled against droughts and adversity in various forms for ten years. They were then induced to go into the creamery business and now they are buying things for their homes and seeing real money eyeer and anon and are ready to swear that good cows properly cared for are the redemption of that portion of the sand hills.

A Denver paper contains the following: "Private advices received in Denver yesterday state that the Burlington has completed its survey for its extension from Guernsey, Wyo., to Salt Lake, and from Lyons on a connection with the road. It is said that work on the two extensions will begin early in the spring. In connection with this announcement it is said that the Burlington will not continue its Big Horn Basin line beyond Cody. So many statements have been made of the intention of the Burlington to build to Salt Lake and from Lyons on, that people have begun to consider it a "wolf" cry. However, the surveyors have completed their work, and it is expected the official announcement of the extensions will be made this week. According to the best information, the Guernsey line will run south by west, and it is said will cross the Union Pacific at Laramie. Thence it cuts into northwestern Colorado and goes west to Salt Lake."
