For Proper Care of Tuberculosis.
According to the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, New York state leads in the number of beds for consumptives provided up to May 1, with 5,476 beds; Massachusetts is second, with 2,402 beds; Pennsylvania third, with 2,347 beds; Colorado fourth, with 1,489 beds, and New Mexico fifth, with 1,104 beds. As yet, not one state in the country has made adequate provision for its consumptives. New York has set itself the task of having "No uncare for Tuberculosis in 1915," and several cities in other parts of the country have adopted similar programs. The national association says that tuberculosis will not be stamped out until all cases of this disease are cared for either in their homes or in institutions. With this end in view, efforts will be made to increase the number of hospital beds in this country to at least 35,000 by May 1, 1915.

An Embryo Emancipator.
A little miss riding on a Brooklyn trolley car the other day tendered the conductor half fare. "How old are you, little girl?" he queried, gingerly handling her fare.
She pursed her lips for a moment, then calmly opened her purse, dropped two more pennies into the conductor's extended palm, snapped her purse and demurely replied: "You have your fare, sir; my statistics are my own!"

Circumstances are beyond the control of man, but his conduct is in his own power.—Beaumont.
A DOCTOR'S EXPERIENCE
Medicine Not Needed in This Case.

It is hard to convince some people that coffee does them an injury! They lay their bad feelings to almost every cause but the true and unsuspected one.

But the doctor knows. His wide experience has proven to him that to some systems, coffee is an insidious poison that undermines the health.
Ask the doctor if coffee is the cause of constipation, stomach and nervous trouble.

"I have been a coffee drinker all my life. I am now 42 years old and when taken sick two years ago with nervous prostration, the doctor said that my nervous system was broken down and that I would have to give up coffee.

"I got so weak and shaky I could not work, and reading your advertisement of Postum, I asked my grocer if he had any of it. He said: 'Yes,' and that he used it in his family, and it was all it claimed to be.

"So I quit coffee and commenced to use Postum steadily and found in about two weeks' time I could sleep soundly at night and get up in the morning feeling fresh. In about two months I began to gain flesh. I weighed only 146 pounds when I commenced on Postum, and now I weigh 167 and feel better than I did at 20 years of age.

"I am working every day and sleep well at night. My two children were great coffee drinkers, but they have not drunk any since Postum came into the house, and are far more healthy than they were before."

HAPPENINGS IN THE CITIES

Co-eds Fail in a Test By Munsterberg

BOSTON.—Prof. Hugo Munsterberg gave a demonstration of his psychological method of detecting crime before the class of philosophy in Radcliffe college, the feminine annex of Harvard. Taking three girl volunteers as subjects, the professor proved that no matter how they attempted to evade him, he could read their minds, or rather their actions, as manifestations of what was in their minds.

Besides demonstrating his own theory Professor Munsterberg proved that he has solved the problem of reading a woman's mind, and that in future the thoughts of the wife will be an open book to the husband. The possibilities of the professor's demonstration can hardly be estimated.

The three girls who submitted to the test are Helen Thayer of the class of 1911, Ruby Hobb, a senior, and Miss Beaton of the class of 1912. The professor told the class that he had several clippings from a morning paper on everyday subjects. He would have the three girls each draw a clipping in such a way that he would not see the drawing. Then he would find out from them what clippings they had.

The condition the professor imposed was that when he said a word the girl spoken to should within a second say some other word brought into her mind. Professor Munsterberg asked each of the three girls to try to deceive him as to which clipping they had, just as a criminal would try to mislead him in trying to detect what crime he had committed.

The professor shot several words at random at the first girl, and she answered back as quickly with any word that came into her head. When a word connected prominently with the clipping was sprung, however, there was a significant pause, for the first thought injected into the girl's mind was the clipping and she instantly exposed that before she was able to think up something with which to mislead Munsterberg.

One of the clippings drawn by the girls told of ex-President Roosevelt's reception by the emperor of Germany. When Professor Munsterberg sprung the word emperor on the girl who held the clipping, she could not answer without a pause. The pause in the first test was 18 seconds, in the last two tests about half that time.

This Radcliffe college test was regarded as the most successful demonstration Professor Munsterberg has so far made of the psychological method of detecting crime. A short time ago, however, he experimented with a man suspected of forging a check, and his plan worked perfectly. A significant pause followed both the word "bank" and "check" when addressed to the suspected man.

Bulldog Meets His Match in a Coon

CHICAGO.—Crib, a bull terrier owned by Charles Ayres, an architect of Evanston, and the canine scourge of the neighborhood, is in mourning, and all because of a raccoon that is supposed to have come from the sylvan solitude around Gross point and wandered into the university town one morning.

Crib is "some fighter," according to Evanston chronicles. All the other dogs in the neighborhood curl their tails between their legs and silently sink into the nearest place of refuge when he strolls majestically down the sidewalk. And as for cats—he eats 'em alive.

With the courage born of many victories and no defeats Crib was prowling about the Ayres homestead about two o'clock in the morning. Suddenly around the corner of the back fence there crept across a patch of moon-

A wild yelp of delight shattered the classic silence of Evanston, and Crib, the champion, "mixed it" with the presumptuous intruder. In a moment the air resounded with other yelps, but alas for Crib—not yelps of victory.

Mr. Ayres was dreaming peacefully when the sounds of fierce combat smote upon his ear. In his pajamas, he dashed down the stairs and into the yard, where he beheld the visiting combatant rapidly reducing the hitherto unslain Crib to the proverbial shreds.

An empty cracker box happened to be standing on the porch, and Mr. Ayres grabbed it and placed it firmly over Mr. Coon and then planted himself upon it and added his voice to the lamentations of Crib.

The coon is now on exhibition in a hastily constructed cage on the Ayres back porch, but the valiant Crib will not be on exhibition for a week or more.

When interviewed he said in canine language that he was glad to be alive.

Hearty Laughter Death to Pill Trade

CHICAGO.—Threatening the very livelihood of the physician, the health department continues to disclose professional secrets in its weekly bulletin of "Healthgrams," which recently contained free advice for the prevention and cure of dyspepsia without pills or doctor. If you feel a sharp, agonizing series of pains that you suspect might be due to dyspepsia, just laugh.

Keep right on laughing until the pain is gone, and then laugh some more to keep it away. Make a practice of laughing for a few minutes every day, selecting witty companions that the laughter may be heartfelt and therefore more efficacious, for

Would Doff the "Pigtail" and Robes

SAN FRANCISCO.—Deprecating the wearing of the queue, certain Chinese of the Pacific coast are asking the emperor to be allowed to discard the trailing appendage and coil their brunettes locks a la Americaine.

Also would they desire to discard the flowing robes of the flowery kingdom and conform their dress exclusively to the attire of their adopted land.

Traditional respect, however, for the ruler of their country restrains these moderns from hasty action and they await an imperial rescript on the subject.

To secure the royal permission a memorial has been entrusted to Prince Tai Tao, the Chinese minister of war and uncle of the emperor, for presentation to the throne.

The new healthgram is: "First aid to the dyspeptic—a good laugh."
Seemingly bent on "bearing" the pill market, the literary-scientific writer of the healthgrams goes on to admonish Chicagoans, as follows:

"Tight lacing is a narrow practise. Hygiene is humanity's hope. Too much fresh air is just enough. The proper appreciation of health will delay its depreciation. Your worst enemy—the common housefly. The typhoid fly. Swat him.

"Smallpox is a disgrace. Save your reputation and your face by vaccination. While mothers are working in factories, infants may be wasting in the homes.

"Laughter is the sunshine of existence: flood yourself with it, let it overflow to others. Seats for women employees and opportunity to use them would leave many hospital beds vacant."

Must Deliver the Goods.

"Statesmanship has its cares," said one eminent citizen.
"Yes," replied the other; "when a statesman travels, he has to get up speeches for the people to read, instead of merely sending home post cards."

"It is the custom in China to wear long robes with wide sleeves, making the men of our nation look like the women of other lands. The costume is like that of the Annamese and the Koreans, two nations that have perished.

"Furthermore, our whole costume makes us the laughing stock of every nation."

Mrs. Stubb (reading)—In ancient cities the walls between the houses were often 50 feet high.

Mr. Stubb—What a grand scheme to prevent back-yard gossiping.

Latest Parasol

(Photograph by Underwood & Underwood, New York.)

A PARASOL of palm fiber (raffa) made in the alluring form of a small square tent, with a natural fringe of the woven fibers, canopy top—loop of raffa to carry on arm. It is especially adapted for sea shore and outing, as the material is indestructible and water repellent.

FOR THE SUMMER BEDROOM CORRECT STYLES IN GLOVES

Simple But Attractive Furnishings That Make the Apartment a Delight.

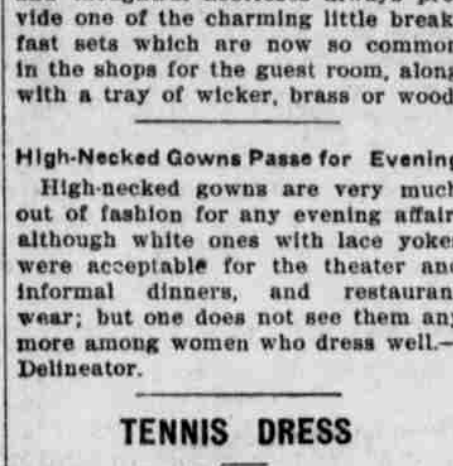

Summer furnishings have a charm that is quite foreign to the more pretentious appointments of winter, and every season they seem to be more attractive. The new toilet china shown is extremely decorative. The quaintly shaped little bowls are adorned with equally quaint, conventional designs, and there are lovely foreign looking copper jugs, with wicker handles, for carrying the morning hot water. Colored and white tiles or squares of glass mounted on a flowered material matching the room hangings are provided to set the pitcher of ice water upon, and if a room is to have two occupants all these fittings are to be duplicated. For fastening back the window hangings the old-fashioned brass rosette has been revived.

Speaking of bedrooms suggests breakfast, for it is becoming more and more the custom to have the first meal of the day in one's own room, and thoughtful hostesses always provide one of the charming little breakfast sets which are now so common in the shops for the guest room, along with a tray of wicker, brass or wood.

High-Necked Gowns Passe for Evening

High-necked gowns are very much out of fashion for any evening affair, although white ones with lace yokes were acceptable for the theater and informal dinners, and restaurant wear; but one does not see them any more among women who dress well.—Delineator.

TENNIS DRESS

This is a style suitable to be made up in zephyr or easement cloth; the skirt has a little fullness at waist, and is trimmed below with two folds. The bodice is trimmed with box-plaits stitched at each edge. The Peter Pan collar and cuffs are of lawn edged with a narrow plaiting. Chip hat with full crown of spotted mullin, surrounded by a wreath of roses.

Odd Names to New Shades.

Some of the new shades have exceedingly odd names. There is pheasant displayed in a number of tones, from pale-reddish brown to a brown so deep it is almost black. Ashes of violet, a color of dull, faded purple; king's blue, a cold Japanese-looking shade, toning to brown; argent, a gray like dull silver; drake, a bluish green that is attractive, and a pale green called almond that blondes of a delicate (not colorless) type find becoming. Chantecleer is a rich, deep pink, almost red.

A Shining Nose.

Summer is a sorry time for the woman with nose shine. She usually resorts to powder, which coarsens the pores, or she mops with alcohol, which dries up the skin.

Instead of these, try bathing the nose with hot water, in which a teaspoonful of powdered borax has been dissolved to each pint.

Wiping the surface of nose with a soft flannel or piece of silk keeps down the shine. Do not rub hard or redness results.

Rubbers in Fancy Bag.

The traveler may not know that rubbers can be fitted into gay little plaid silk bags that are lined with rubber and fastened over with a pearl clamp. They are only about five inches long and take up so little room in a bag or a trunk that it is not worth measuring. A woman will not hesitate to travel around with her rubbers even in a dress suitcase when they are done up in such an attractive form.

Aroused Sporting Instinct.
An Irish policeman who was also something of a sportsman, had been posted on a road near Dublin to catch the scorching motorist. Presently one came along at 20 miles an hour, and the policeman saw it pass without a sign. Next came a large motor traveling at 40 miles an hour, and the eyes of the guardian of the public brightened. And then one passed at the rate of a mile a minute. "Begorra," said Pat, slapping his thigh, "that's the best of the lot."

SAVED OLD LADY'S HAIR

"My mother used to have a very bad humor on her head which the doctors called an eczema, and for it I had two different doctors. Her head was very sore and her hair nearly all fell out in spite of what they both did. One day her niece came in and they were speaking of how her hair was falling out and the doctors did it no good. She says, 'Aunt, why don't you try Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment?' Mother did and they helped her. In six months' time the itching, burning and scaling of her head was over and her hair began growing. Today she feels much in debt to Cuticura Soap and Ointment for the fine head of hair she has for an old lady of seventy-four.

"My own case was an eczema in my feet. As soon as the cold weather came my feet would itch and burn and then they would crack open and bleed. Then I thought I would flee to my mother's friends, Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. I did for four or five winters, and now my feet are as smooth as any one's. Eliaworth Durham, Hiram, Me., Sept. 30, 1909."
