If George N. Gibbs is not elected to the very honorable position of police judge today it will not be through any fault of his campaign manager James Fearless Keefe. If every fitness known to political science has not been embraced by J. Fearless, it has been an account of the short duration of the campaign and the inability to crowd ten days' work into two. J. Fearless is to politics what J. Rufus Wallingford was to high finance—a peach.

A declamatory contest was held at the high school auditorium Saturday evening. The humorous and oratorical classes were represented, Clark Le-Dioyt taking first honors and he will represent North Platte in the district contest to be held at Lexington Thursday evening. Edward Thompson, a contestant in the oratorical class was awarded second honors. The readings were interspersed with selections by the high school orchestra, piano solo by Florence McKay and a cornet and piano duet by Miss Irma and Harry Huffman.

A. J. Salisbury came over from Gandy in his auto Saturday night, having just returned from Arnold where he had been to attend a big banquet given by the ladies for the new railroad fund, and cleared $379.00. He says the railroad fever is infectious in that vicinity and groups of boys and girls raised $100.00 each in $10.00 subscriptions, which the married ladies and old men quickly duplicated by like amounts. The required amounts have almost been reached by the various counties along the right of way from Broken Bow to Tryon the western terminus.

By the vote of the house on Friday night the possibility of submitting the question of capital removal was deferred for two years, when it will not only be a live issue but thoroughly matured. The first bill, which was defeated by the defection of Bassett of Buffalo was not an "unfair" bill. The second bill, which was the best that could be offered after the first bill was betrayed in the house of its friends, was the "unfair" bill because it would have permitted a pooling of issues between a few large cities of the eastern part of the state regardless of the merits of the removal proposition and would have defeated the very end in view, viz: Relocation in central Nebraska where it belongs and where it must some time inevitably be placed. Removal sentiment will grow and the next legislature will deal with the matter intelligently. —Kearney Hub.

Have you decided what color your Spring Clothes are to be? Are you going to wear a brown, gray, blue or tan? Are you going to wear striped or plain? Are you going to wear Scotch or fancy chevrot or worsted? It's immaterial to us what material you prefer, because our stock is all-covering.

There is something which is of very material interest to us, though, and it is, are you going to purchase your new suit from us or someone else? If you see our clothes, we know of whom you'll buy. Why not give us a chance. Our time is yours.

Presbyterian Church.

Wm. Gladstone, the English statesman, speaking of the Presbyterian church, once said: "It has given the advantages which in civil order belong to local self government and representative institutions orderly habits of mind; the development of a genuine individuality; the sense of a common life and the disposition energetically to defend it; the love of law confined with the love of freedom." In the exercise of these historic characteristics of our church we meet tomorrow night, at the church, for our annual congregational meeting. Reports of the year's work in the various departments of our church, will be presented.

Officers for the coming year are to be elected. All members of the church are urged to be present and take part. This is local, representative self-government in religious affairs. This is the most important business meeting of our church year. It will differ from others of recent years in that there is no money to be raised.
