Thursday evening the foot ball team of the high school and a number of their friends were royally entertained at the home of Miss Blanche Fonda. About forty guests were present and spent the evening in enjoyable games, vaudeville stunts and music. The rooms were hung with holly, mistletoe and Xmas bells prettily arranged. The refreshments were dainty and nicely served. Assisting the hostess were Misses Myrtle Beeler, Irma Horn, Hildegard Clinton, Virginia Bullard and Amanda Butler. Out of town guests were Misses Bolt-hoff, Coppock and Robinson, of Denver, Pizer, of Hastings, and Oberfelder, of Sidney.

One of the most enjoyable affairs of the Christmas festivities was the dinner dance given by Miss Edith Patterson at her home Saturday evening. Covers were laid for twenty at the prettily appointed dining table, in the center of which was a small Christmas tree lighted by tiny colored electric lights. Holly picked and sent by the hostess' brother Major Patterson for the occasion, was profusely used for the table decoration as were also miniature reindeers and lighted candies. The place cards were of hand painted pointsettia design and on the back were dancing programs. The dinner was served in five courses and at the conclusion the guests adjourned to the home of Miss Aileen Gantt where dancing was participated in at a late hour. Those present were the Misses Edith Gantt, Irma Clinton, Alice Birge, Nell Bratt, Aileen Gantt, Ruth Streitz, Katherine Lewis, of Wayne, Neb., Geraldine Bare, Edith Patterson and Mrs. R. D. Elks Hold Banquet.

Ninety-eight Elks met at their home last evening and celebrated the advent of the New Year by surrounding the banquet board, partaking of a fine spread served by caterer Chas. Frederick and listened to excellent after dinner talks by Keith Neville, Dr. N. McCabe, Dr. Quigley, W. T. Wilcox and Judge Grimes. During the dinner hour the Stamp orchestra furnished music, and while it rendered popular song airs the banqueters sang the choruses, thus enlivening the evening with cheer and melody.

The speeches of those responding to the toasts opened with witticisms and stories, and then turning from jest to earnest words for the good of the members were uttered. At the close of the talk by Mr. Wilcox he suggested that a free will offering to relieve the needs of the unfortunate of the town be made. The suggestion met with hearty response and the silver coins contributed amounted to seventy-nine dollars. This donation in addition to those made by the lodge Thanksgiving and Christmas.

During the evening it was voted to hold a banquet on each New Year's day in the future.

Mantell in "Macbeth."

Discriminating critics say the memory of the oldest theatre-goer will not recall a more superb interpretation of Macbeth than that which will be given by Robert B. Mantell at the Keith next Friday evening.

Mr. Mantell emphasizes the remorse of Macbeth, whose overleaping ambition drives him to one crime after another until he pays the inevitable, awful price. He is a storm-tossed man from the occasion of his first meeting with the witches, when he becomes the victim of his superstitious belief in them. His crimes haunt him in his waking and sleeping hours and it is no tax upon his imagination to see the ghosts of Banquo at the feast.

Yet Macbeth is not a man without physical courage and Mr. Mantell not only brings out the physical bravery of the Thane of Cawdor, but he portrays the moral cowardice of the man Macbeth. The stage version of Macbeth used by Mr. Mantell was prepared from Edwin Booth's prompt book and is marked by the usual omissions of both text and character. The cuts include the scenes laid in England, while the English characters taking part in these scenes also are dropped. As a matter of fact none of the omitted passages is dramatically essential in forwarding the tragedy.

Miss Kate Wakeman will have the role of Lady Macbeth.
