Carl Klingborg (Dutch Charley) was found at his shop in Aspinwall in an unconscious condition Wednesday morning and died in a very short time. As it was not known that he was sick his death was in all probability caused by the excessive drinking to which he had been addicted for years. He was a good blacksmith and if he had led intoxicating liquors alone might have been a useful citizen. He was buried in the Nemaha cemetery Thursday afternoon.

The Bennett mill is now ready to do grist work at any time and will guarantee good flour if the wheat is good. They will grind at any time. J. M. Fuller died at his residence three miles southwest of Nemaha Tuesday, March 27th. Mr. Fuller was sick only a few days with pneumonia. The deceased was one of the old settlers in Nemaha precinct, having lived here about thirty-four years. He was highly respected in the community where he had lived for so many years.

Job Mansfield Fuller was born May 16th, 1833, in Kent county, England. He emigrated to Canada in his twenty-first year and from there to Illinois, where he enlisted in Co. H, 147th Illinois volunteers. He came to Nebraska in 1866, immediately after the close of the war. December 10th, 1868, he was united in marriage to Sarah Elizabeth Ewing. At his death he was 66 years, 10 months and 11 days old. He leaves a wife and one daughter to mourn the loss of a loving husband and father.

Mr. Fuller was mustered into G. W. Culp Post No. 53, G. A. R., Nov. 19th, 1890, at Nemaha, Neb., and remained a faithful member of said order until his death. At the last election he was elected commander of the Post.

The funeral services were held at the Methodist church Thursday forenoon. Rev. J. M. Darby preached the sermon, being assisted in the services by Rev. T. C. Diltz, of Brownville. The G. A. R. post had charge of the services at the cemetery, and the pall bearers were members of that order.
