

Often The Kidneys Are Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood. It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

The kidneys filter and purify the blood—that is their work. Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases, and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle Home of Swamp-Root, by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Domestic Troubles

It is exceptional to find a family where there are no domestic ruptures occasionally, but these can be lessened by having Dr King's New Life Pills around. Much trouble they save by their great work in Stomach and Liver troubles. They not only relieve you but cure. 25c, at Keeling's drug store.

We notice that our friend the Rev. Irl K. Hicks, the weather prophet of St. Louis, predicted frequent hard storms, snows and blizzards, all over the northern country, during the month of December. He winds up his predictions with this advice: "Our general advice and caution for Decembers are, that the winter solstice period, with a Venus period added, constitute ample warning of many hard winter storms, with severe and disagreeable changes from warm to extreme cold." Those people who believe in Hicks will say this is just the kind of weather we had, and if he had predicted a warm month with few storms they would have said that was the kind we had.

Miss Mabel Majors and Mr William Lester Armstrong were united in marriage last evening at 8 o'clock at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Nettie Majors, 2748 Q street. Only relatives and a few immediate friends were present. The marriage service was impressively read by the Rev. Marsh of Auburn. The bride and groom were attended by the latter's sister Miss Laura Armstrong, and the bride's brother, Sterling Perry Majors. The bride is the eldest daughter of Mrs. Majors, and has made her home in Lincoln the last three years, during the time she has not been engaged as teacher in the Antioch school at Auburn. The groom is a member of the firm of the Gilmore-Armstrong Co. conducting a large department store at Auburn. The groom has prepared a beautifully furnished home for his bride, where they will begin house keeping at once. Later in the winter they will take a trip to the coast. All the wedding appointments were in red and green and were very beautiful. The out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Walter Mutz, Maryville, Mo; W. E. Majors of Peru and son, Dorsey Majors, of Omaha; Dr. Dillon and Mrs. Dillon of Auburn; Mr and Mrs J. W. Armstrong and son, Ernest, parents and brother of the groom, of Auburn; Miss Reisenburg and Miss Grace Daily of Auburn.—Lincoln Star, Jan. 2.

Governor T. J. Majors came to Lincoln from Peru yesterday and will remain a day or two. "My card must be delayed somewhere," said Mr. Majors when asked if he had received one of Church Howe's "happy days" New Year's greetings. "It has not reached the postoffice at Peru," he added, "and thinking that Mr. Howe might have forgotten my address or sent it to the wrong place I came to Lincoln to see if it was here."

Mr. Majors is kept busy explaining how he raised the biggest corn in the country. He had three hundred acres of corn that yielded 85 bushels to the acre. Not only the ears, but the stalks were large. The tallest were sixteen feet and it was impossible for a man to reach the ears. In order to husk the corn the wagon was driven over a row to break the stalks, which made the husking slow and rather difficult. The land is a level bottom adjoining a creek. For three years it had not been cultivated owing to the wet weather. By protecting it with ditches and drains, and with all conditions favorable, it produced what is believed to be the best and largest crop ever grown on so large an acreage. Much of the soil had washed into the field from surrounding farms that had been planted to listed corn during the past three years and for this reason was exceptionally rich. Fence posts set several years ago are now covered with soil within a foot or two of the top. Mr. Majors secured the seed corn several years ago from St. Charles, Mo. At first it produced large stalks and the ears did not mature, but it has apparently become acclimated to Nebraska and matures properly.—Lincoln Journal.

EXPERIMENTS WITH CORN

Experiments with corn at the Nebraska Experiment Station have just been compiled and published as Bulletin 91. Tests of a number of varieties of corn in different parts of the state have been continued. Something over one hundred farmers are engaged in these tests. It was found that no one variety of corn is equally well adapted to all parts of the state. By dividing the state into six sections, it was shown that certain varieties yielded best in certain sections and other varieties in other sections. The yields obtained by each experimenter are stated in the bulletin.

These variety tests showed that corn raised in central and western Nebraska produced smaller ears than did the same varieties raised in the eastern part of the state. It was also the case that varieties with medium sized ears yielded better under average Nebraska conditions than did large or small eared varieties.

Corn was planted sufficiently thick so that it could be thinned out to from one to five stalks per hill, 44x44 inches apart. On good soil with liberal moisture supply, three stalks per hill gave the largest yield of grain, although the ears were smaller than where the planting was thinner. Experiments indicate that towards the western edge of the corn belt two stalks per hill are better than a larger number.

The plots of corn having the thickest stand had the largest proportion of barren stalks. On the other hand, suckers are more abundant in the thin stand of corn. These suckers serve a useful purpose in producing ears when the stand of corn is thinner than the soil and moisture can easily support. In regions of sufficient rainfall it would not seem advisable to remove the tillers in the hope of improving the yield.

Experiments with seed corn from different states and from different parts of Nebraska lead to the conclusion that seed corn should be raised as near as possible to the locality in which it is to be planted.

Seed corn placed in a dry seed room in the fall gave twenty per cent better stand in the field than seed corn from the same field that was left in the crib over winter.

In the great state of Texas there are 244 counties. One-half of that number would be 122. By the local option movement in that state 147 counties—25 more than one-half the whole number—have been made absolutely dry. Of the remaining 97 counties, 38 are partly dry; that is, with saloons allowed in some one or two towns, which leaves only 58—less than one-fourth—as wet counties. In other words, more than one-half of the counties in the state are wholly dry and less than one-fourth are wholly wet.

If the 38 counties which are almost dry were added to the 147 which are wholly dry, more than three-fourths of the counties of the state would be free from the liquor curse. In the meantime while the few remaining liquor-cursed places in the 38 partially dry counties are being cleaned several of 59 wet counties may also be cleaned, leaving the rum demon only a meager fraction of that great state.

Better still, and nearer than we may think, the great empire state of the southwest, according to the expectations of the liquor men themselves, will soon dissolve partnership with the liquor traffic and shine as the biggest and brightest star in all our galaxy of states—The Searchlight.

This result was not achieved through the efforts of the prohibition party—that party never accomplished anything in the way of legislation—but by non-partisan efforts. The anti-saloon league—a non-partisan movement—was largely responsible for the defeat of Gov. Herrick in Ohio and the election of prohibitionists—but not party prohibitionists—to several of the leading offices in that state. Let the good work go on until every saloon is rooted out.

A Very Close Call

"I stuck to my engine, although every joint ached and every nerve was racked with pain," writes C. W. Bellamy, a locomotive fireman, of Burlington, Iowa. "I was weak and pale, without any appetite and all run down. As I was about to give up, I got a bottle of Electric Bitters, and after taking it, I felt as well as I ever did in my life."
