

THE STATE FAIR. The New Premium List Ready for Distribution. Unparalleled Offers Both by the Society and Individuals.

The premium list for the State fair of 1887 is ready for distribution. It is from the press of The State Journal company and is an exceedingly neat and attractive pamphlet.

The twenty-first annual fair and exhibition of the Nebraska State Board of Agriculture will be held on its new, large and commodious grounds at Lincoln, the capital of the state, commencing Friday, September 9th, and continuing until Friday, the 19th. Friday and Saturday, the 6th and 10th will be preparation days.

All entries, except in speed are free and open to the world. Blanks for entries can be had at any time on application to the secretary. No entries will be made or received except from blanks furnished by the board and filled out by the applicant.

Live stock stables, stalls and pens will not be reserved or assignments made until fees for same are paid.

Railroad transportation rates, both freight and passenger, in the state, will be at least as favorable as before—freight substantially free both ways. Outside the state we hope for better rates than last year.

Much artistic skill was shown in the arrangement of the flowers and some of the designs merited special notice. In a conspicuous place in front of the entrance was a large rainbow, twenty feet in diameter.

The electric light tower attracted much attention. It was seventeen feet high and five feet at its base, and was completely covered with handsome roses and surrounded by an electric light.

The premium list, by-laws, rules and regulations, have been carefully and thoroughly revised and corrected. The premium list enlarged in scope, classes, and lots, and in all important matters reclassified.

Bishop Ireland, who has just returned from Rome, explains that the Pope has not really approved of the Knights of Labor; he has simply not condemned the order, which is a very different thing from giving it an indorsement.

The Floral Fair.

SAN JOSE, CAL., May 11, '87. There has just been held in San Jose an exhibition that would have been a novelty to Nebraskans, viz., a floral fair.

The people of the Santa Clara Valley, of which San Jose is the principal town, have recently awakened to a realization of the fact that they dwell in the garden spot of the state, we might almost say, of the world.

Of late the citizens of San Jose have in a measure thrown off the conservatism that is so out of place in this age of progress and booms.

Some of the more energetic and enterprising citizens have succeeded in infusing a little of their own spirit into the sluggish conservatives, who have been willing to see San Jose the Garden city, far behind towns that have not her natural advantages but whose people are more rushing and daring.

The Central California Citrus Fair held in San Jose last February successfully demonstrated that Central California could raise as fine citrus fruits as the southern part of the state. The floral festival proved that Central California, in the production of flowers, need fear no rival.

Horticultural Hall, where the exhibition was held, was truly a wilderness of sweet flowers. We doubt whether there has ever been seen a more magnificent display of floral treasures than was contained in that immense building.

In an alcove at the right of the entrance was a representation of Mt. Hamilton on which rested a telescope of roses. The adjacent hills were snow-carpeted with white roses while the foothills in front were covered with wild flowers and ferns.

The natural rockery which occupied the alcove on the left, was a companion piece to Mt. Hamilton. Real indeed, were the graceful ferns and vines, the growing plants, and shaded brook containing fishes.

The electric light tower attracted much attention. It was seventeen feet high and five feet at its base, and was completely covered with handsome roses and surrounded by an electric light.

The table representing "The Homestead" was greatly admired. The rose house with the light shining from the windows, the lawns, flower beds, and fences, the live ducks swimming in the pond, gave it a most home-like appearance.

"Homeward Bound" was a realistic piece. In the center, a ship, trimmed with roses and similar, surrounded by water, a mountain in the distance, at the base of which was a cottage; a rocky point overlooking the sea crowned with a light-house, whose welcome rays could be seen from afar by the anxious eyes of the homeward bound sailors; in the foreground were various designs—an anchor, a star, baskets of flowers and the motto "Homeward Bound."

Washington Letter. From Our Regular Correspondent. Washington, May 19th, 1887. The past week was full of interest to people of Washington as well as to the hundreds of strangers who came hither through interests scientific, business and social.

Garfield with much impetuosity and school spirit it is those marks. Bennett is not a young man. Kennedy has sold a million.

ceremony. And Saturday morning saw an assemblage of gentlemen such as the world has rarely witnessed. This was the "forty niners"—the men who crossed mountain and plain, braved the ice fields of the Arctic seas, or the fervid suns and fevers of the torrid zone, and founded a new empire on the shores of the Pacific.

On last Friday, President Cleveland, for the first time in his life, made a pilgrimage to the tomb of George Washington. It was at the invitation of the widow of Gen. Logan, who is now regent of the Mount Vernon Association.

The soldier boys are arriving from all over the United States and will continue to do so until Sunday which will be the busiest day for arrivals and before midnight it is expected that every company will be quartered on the camp ground.

Miss Clara Barton, president of the Red Cross society, will have charge of the encampment and a dozen local physicians and surgeons will be on her staff, as also veteran army nurses and a number of volunteers from the training school for nurses.

To the majority of people of this city the necessity of a hospital department to the national drill was a surprise. Preparations by the Red Cross society seemed to be the first suggestion to them that the coming week of military display was likely to place among us sick and suffering men, strangers and soldiers who would need treatment and care.

A moment's reflection, however, makes it apparent that it would be impossible to bring thousands of men here under any form of enlistment from their wide-spread homes, subject to change of all habits of life, food, water, climate, occupation and rest, and place them in competitive action, every man at his most and best for the space of nine days, without any of them falling ill or needing care or treatment. It will be wonderful, indeed, if there be not some who will never return to their homes.

It is the duty of every person who has used Boschee's German Syrup to let its wonderful qualities be known to their friends in curing Consumption, severe Coughs, Croup, Asthma, Pneumonia, and in fact all throat and lung diseases. No person can use it without immediate relief.

Renews Her Youth. Mrs. Phoebe Chesley, Peterson, Clay county, Iowa, tells the following remarkable story, the truth of which is vouched for by residents of the town: "I am 73 years old, have been troubled with kidney complaint and lameness for many years; could not dress myself without help. Now I am free from all pain and thanks to Electric Bitters for having renewed my youth and removed completely all disease and pain."

The Ozar and Ozarina started from St. Petersburg on the 14th for Novo Tcherkask, the capital of the Don Cossacks country.

—In the decline of life, infirmities beset us to which our youth and maturity were strangers, our kidneys and liver are subject to derangement, but nothing equals Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm as a regulator of these organs.
