CITY BRIEFS.

From Wednesday's Daily.

Mr. Wm. Neville went to Lincoln to-day on business.

Mr. W. H. Pickins was a passenger to Omaha this morning.

Mr. D. O'Rourke returned from Missouri Valley this morning.

Mrs. G. A. Pease, of Fairbury, is in the city visiting Mr. W. A. Boeck and wife.

Mr. D. B. Severpool, of Muskegon, Mich., is in the city visiting relatives and friends.

Mrs. Elizabeth Cooper, of Butler Co., Kansas, is in the city visiting her son, Henry Cooper.

Mr. Fred Hebert, of Sioux City, a former resident of this city, has been in town for a few days.

—Mr. Claus Beathel's child, two months old, was buried yesterday at Oak Hill Cemetery.

—Judge Sullivan and John A. Davies of this city will speak at Cedar Creek next Saturday night in the interests of the Republicans.

—The G. A. R. reunion of Nebraska will begin at Norfolk, Neb., on Monday, the 27th day of August. All old soldiers should remember the date.

—The case of the State of Nebraska vs. L. A. Jenkins and W. E. Hugsion, of Liberty precinct, for assault and battery, is being tried today in the office of Judge Pottenger before a jury.

—Mack Jones, whose home is about twelve miles west of here, was brought to the city yesterday by his friends who propose to send him to the asylum at Lincoln as soon as possible. He has been sick for some time and become deranged.

—Base ball is all the rage now as everybody must know by the numerous notices which appear every day. A team consisting of some of the striking firemen and a nine selected from the town boys are playing a game this afternoon on the ground.

—A young man who is employed on a farm belonging to Mr. Stynes, near Union, was bitten by a blue-racer last week. The old remedy, whisky, was offered him, but as he is a staunch prohibitionist he would rather take chances on dying than accept whisky. He recovered from the bite.

—There will be a regular meeting of the Band of Hope Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock at G. A. R. hall. All members requested to be present and any wishing to become members. The regular meetings will be held at G. A. R. hereafter. Parents please take notice.

—The sociable given at the residence of Judge A. N. Sullivan last night, by the ladies of the M. E. church, was a grand success in every way. The lawn was beautifully illuminated by Chinese lanterns. The sociable was reported by all who participated to have been the most enjoyable event of the kind this season.

—The Journal in an item a few days ago came about as near telling the truth as it is accustomed to. It stated that Henry Cooper had been receiving $8 per month and that within the last few days the government had raised the pension to $12. The statement was a false one as he only received $4 previous to the advance made by $2 which only makes him $6. Probably the editor of that paper was looking forward to the time when Harrison and Morton will be elected, knowing that he would be treated right by that government.

—Another bold attempt was made last night to relieve our county official living up Washington avenue of some more beefsteak, but notwithstanding the two fellows with mustaches returning from Sullivan's social made a thorough search in and about the cistern and well curb for the expected morsel, they failed to find it. Mr. C. informs us that he will be on the sharp look out hereafter while the deputy county clerk boards with him and more especially when a Miss J. is visiting at his house. Look out boys this kind of a Bird is not to be caught sleeping.

—The ring of a telephone bell was heard in a certain office this afternoon and the proprietor answered the ring. He recognized the gentle voice as that of a lady, who inquired for one of the employees. As the young gentleman was not in the office at the time, he asked the young lady if he could act as a substitute for the young man. Upon learning that it was the other fellow she wanted he hung up the phone with the promise of telling his friend as soon as he returned. The young man came, the proprietor delivered his message—and the young lady was called. The fellow, not taking leap year into consideration, expressed himself as follows: "Hello! Is that you Miss—? My employer told me you wanted me. Do you?" "Is that you Mr.—?"

"Yes." "Why certainly I want you." The young man, who was never found guilty of making a proposal before, after finding it was accepted so readily, heard no more of the conversation, and, judging by the bright smile which gathered over his face, his feelings of gratitude for the answer could not be expressed by words. The young gentleman and lady have not yet interviewed each other since the conversation. Particulars later.

From Tuesday's Daily.

—Judge Russell issued a marriage license this afternoon to Mr. Andrew Rrab and Miss Paiva Price.

—It is reported there were several on the watch again last night for another eclipse. Wonder if they saw it.

—Work has been commenced on Third street for the laying of a pipe line connecting with the main sewer.

—Mr. Wm. Bach, who was crushed yesterday by falling earth, is said to be recovering by Dr. Livingston.

—Dr. Schildknecht removed a tape worm which measured about seventy feet from Mrs. Ottens, of this city, yesterday.

—A lady who is employed in the county court house has apparently become muddled of late on account of the interest she has taken in politics.

—The first congressional district convention of the prohibition party will be held at Nebraska City July 26, when a candidate for congress will be nominated.

—About twenty-five young people from here had a very pleasant time last night at the residence of Mr. J. C. Cummins, who lives a few miles west of the city.

—A committee was authorized at the meeting of the school board last night to take steps towards building a brick school house in South Park. The building will only contain one room—24x32—and is to cost in the neighborhood of $1200.

—The trouble which arose several times in confirming a city marshal after the appointment by the mayor, was settled, as will be seen by the council proceedings of last night, by the confirmation of Mr. George Palsall. The vote stood five to three in his favor.

—An enthusiastic republican revival was held at Wabash last Saturday night. A special train was run from Weeping Water with about two hundred and fifty passengers. Elmwood, South Bend and Ashland were represented in grand style, and in all there were four hundred live republicans who attended the meeting. That leaves seven men and two boys away back in the shade, it seems to us.

—Mr. Inhelder, of Cedar Creek, was in the city yesterday, and informed us of the burglary which occurred at that place yesterday morning, between the hours of three and four o'clock. Two men broke in the general store belonging to Mr. Geo. E. Sayles, one of them entering through the transom over the front door and admitting the other fellow by unbaring the door from the inside. Mrs. Sayles heard the man drop the bar and informed her husband that some one was in the store. He secured a shot gun and started down stairs to the store, but as they heard him coming they took to their heels and fled. He fired several shots after them and it is not known whether he hit them or not. Mr. Inhelder, who lives a short distance away, heard the shooting and put in appearance just as one of the men was making his escape, and he says if he had been armed the man never would have got away. Mr. Sayles followed the burglars from the store, and as he fired after them when they were running they returned the fire. As they succeeded in reaching the woods their pursuers gave them up for the time.

—In an article which appeared in the Journal they succeeded, as usual, before finishing the article in reference to kidnapping, to misrepresent the city officials in the matter. Mr. Stultz had seen Sheriff Eikenbary early in the morning and ascertained from him what course he should pursue to secure his boy. Mr. Eikenbary spent the whole forenoon, rendering his services gratis to find out what road the emigrants had taken. He hitched up his horse and accompanied that gentleman wherever he thought there would be any clue to the lost boy, and after learning the road they had taken, told that gentleman to follow them and he would overtake them somewhere near Louisville. He did so and found them as stated yesterday. He requested Mr. Eikenbary to accompany him, but as the boy had gone of his own accord, he informed Mr. Stultz that the law would not require him to do so, and even if he did, he could not do more than anyone else and he would be working on his own responsibility. As he had business at home which he could not leave, he would have gone probably, but as it was he could not.

From Monday's Daily.

—What's the difference between Barnum's great show and Cleveland and Thurman? Barnum has the best show in the world and Cleveland and Thurman have no show at all.

—About forty young people from this city drove out to the residence of Mr. Pete Vallery last Saturday night, about six miles southwest of the city, and enjoyed a very pleasant time, dancing until a late hour.

—James Windham, son of R. B. Windham, met with a very painful accident this morning. While playing on the stairs in the house he fell down several steps, causing him to bite his tongue, almost severing it. Dr. T. P. Livingston was summoned as soon as possible, who stitched the wound so that it is thought he will entirely recover from the injury. The child is nine years of age.

—The eclipse which was advertised by the papers to take place last Saturday night was postponed until last night for the benefit of the young people. All the fellows and their girls watched and admired it together. Several were not notified of the postponement the previous night and watched the moon in its course until it disappeared. The eclipse was first noticeable about 9:30 and made a complete job about 11 o'clock.

—This afternoon a party of young people drove out to a grove on Mr. Jake Vallery's farm, about two miles west of the city where they propose to hold a picnic in honor of Mr. Will Hyers, of Lincoln. Following we give the names of those who went: Will Hyers, Birdie Houseworth, Chas. Vallery, Manota Eikenbary, Frank Richey, Anna Heisel, Geo. Palmer, Margaret Vallery, Cliff Westcott, Clara Palmer.

—Miss Lelia Thomas entertained a number of her friends at the residence of Mr. A. B. Todd last Saturday night. A very pleasant time was had. The beautiful evening was taken advantage of by all, and the lawn afforded the guests a favorable resort. Singing and different amusements were indulged in after a bountiful supply of refreshments had been served. The principal feature of the evening was the rendition of the fascinating song, "Gentle Spring," by Mr. Will Streight. It was enjoyed very much by all who had never heard the song before.

—Wm. Bach, a boy about 19 years of age, and a nephew of August Bach, a grocer of this city, who arrived here from Germany about three months ago, was making an excavation at the rear of Mr. Bach's store for the purpose of allowing building room, and while digging, was severely crushed by a large chunk of ground from the side falling against him. The accident occurred about 6 o'clock this morning. Dr. Livingston, sr., was called to his aid, and he reports now that the man will soon recover from the injury, he having received none further than a hard crush against his side, and it is thought he has received no internal injuries.

From Saturday's Daily.

—Judge Russell issued a marriage license today to Mr. James A. Hoggatt and Miss Amanda E. Nix.

—Telephone connection has been made today with our sister town, Weeping Water. It will prove serviceable when the county seat is moved.

—Senator Manderson telegraphs that the committee has reported favorably on the Plattsmouth bridge bill and that it will pass the senate today.

—We noticed a large crowd in pursuit of Mr. Jas. Donnelly this morning and all secured cigars before taking their departure. Upon inquiry of Mr. Donnelly, he refused to give any information but treated us in the same way by handing over a cigar. It was learned afterwards that the generosity on his part was occasioned by the appearance of a little girl visitor at his home.

—Reports are afloat that in a short time a prominent couple who are each possessed of auburn tresses,—a widow and widower—are to be joined in the holy bonds of wedlock. We are not yet prepared to give any further information in the matter, but when the opportune moment arrives, an article will appear giving full particulars and several words of encouragement to the ambitious couple who were once wrecked and are willing to embark on the matrimonial sea again.

—The contagious fever which is raging in our midst has taken hold of eighteen more men. It has reached some of the B. & M. employes and broke out among them to that extent. They will appear on the diamond which is located on Fitz's forty this afternoon at 5 o'clock. The clerks of the mechanical department vs. the clerks of the supply department. If the heege ball fever is not kept subdued for some time, the base ball grounds of the city will not be numerous enough to hold the invalids.

—The postmaster of La Platte arrived in the city this morning in pursuit of a young man, stating that he had broken into the postoffice at that place and robbing the office of about $21 in money and the value of about as much in five and ten cent stamps. After an investigation of the city he secured the young man he had been pursuing and indulged in quite a lengthy conversation with him. He gave the fellow to understand that it was his intention to have him arrested, and instead of holding him himself and sending some one in search of an officer, he left the man to take care of himself and started out to look up an officer. The man, seeing such a rare opportunity left open for him, took advantage of it as any one would under similar circumstances. When the postmaster had secured the required assistance and returned for his man, he discovered to his dissatisfaction that he had coolly broken his promise of remaining until his return, and left for parts unknown. He was not certain that the man was the guilty party, but the man apparently did not wish a trial on the matter and skipped to some secluded spot where the police are not to be found, and the pursued can rest.

The Great Ball Game

As large, if not a larger crowd than has been seen upon the ball ground, witnessed the great game of ball yesterday between the fats and leans. Considerable money changed hands—not less than $500—and the betters were putting up their money on the fat players with great confidence. Since a druggist was the instigator of the game, we believe it was done as a business scheme, for today the players are purchasing amica, St. Jacobs Oil, Wizzard Oil and all chemicals used as remedies for cripples, and have been, a good part of the day, rubbing themselves down. The batteries for the teams are retired for the day and leaving their business in charge of others. The lean men went to bat first and they succeeded in making a score which is seldom reached by other clubs in nine innings. With that start and encouragement they took the field and held the fat men down to ten runs. After the first inning the fat men held the opposition score down and worked their own score up to about a tie at the last two or three innings. Considerable excitement was the result of the seventh inning when a fly was knocked into the field and caught by Mr. Riddle of the lean nine which decided the game in their favor. He froze to the ball, and squeezed it with what strength he still possessed for fear it might leave him in some way. At first he supposed, judging from the disappointed expression that overcame his face, that he had missed it. Another expert, one of the fat players by the name of Wm. Neville, stole several bases in grand style. Once when he made a base hit and was running to first, the large straw hat which he had on was caught by the wind and blown off. He made for first base, but not being satisfied to travel around the diamond without a hat, started after it and had it not been for his contortive base stealing he would surely have been put out. Mr. James Patterson, who played right field for the fats, caught a fly which surprised himself and everyone else. About seven of the lean fellows then took charge of him and carried him to the home plate, affording considerable amusement for the spectators. Mr. Weber, of the fat nine, became disabled in the second or third inning and his position in center field was filled by C. W. Sherman of the Journal, who did some excellent batting for the heavy nine. The principal feature of the game was the heavy batting on both sides. Several of the lean men were caught sleeping near some of the bases they supposed they were standing on and put out. Although the fats were defeated by one run, they feel as confident in themselves as ever and are willing although they are all sore today, to play another game whenever their opponents will appear on the field. Some of the men in that club say they are willing to raise $100 for the next game on the victory for their side. We believe the lean players are afraid to try another game, as they consider their victory only came about by chance.

The following is the score and the number of runs made by innings by each player. There is nothing small about the score:

Printers vs. Barbers.

Tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 is the time set for the base ball game between the printers and barbers.

The barbers have invited a couple of outsiders into their nine, and with their assistance will have a very fair club. Mr. Geo. Oliver, of the Journal office, and a member of the first nine, and Mr. Bostwick, a printer who is spending a few days in the city, will assist the printers. It is expected that a good game will be played and we are living in hopes that the score will not loom up to 81 as it did in yesterday's game. All the citizens are invited to attend, and it is expected a large crowd will put in an appearance as no admission fee will be charged. Everybody go and see how the printers distribute lather. The following gives the names of the players and their positions:

We regret that we overlooked the valuable democratic stump speech of J. A. Brusio in Saturday evening's Journal as we would not have that gentlemen think we had not perused it with amusement and curiosity. Does it not occur to Mr. Brusio that he has mistaken his importance in the matter of our reply to the Journal editorial on the famous cartoon? It would seem that Mr. Brusio is entirely too sensitive for a political cartoonist and that his democracy is entirely too much like the watermelon he mentions "ready to open and work." The Herald will not be small about the matter; we are willing to concede that the cartoon as a work of "high art" is a rare picture and that its author is capable of great things in that line and hope this admission will heal any wounds that may have been opened by our reply to Bro. Sherman's editorial mention of the picture. We are pleased however, to see that Mr. Brusio takes a bold stand against free trade, but we are afraid he is in a minority in "that great and grand army of democrats" which has been on every side of every question before the American people for a quarter of a century, and which is now trying the double horse back feat, on the tariff question. Neither do we see any use in Mr. Brusio stopping at "some of the raw materials" which he is going to put on the fire list to help out the consumer, and think he is unfortunate as a "revenue reform" advocate in his cartoon, in selecting an article which he confesses he does not know whether his party has helped him on or not. As leather has been on a low duty schedule always and as the duty was no higher on an average in '88 than it was in '42 and '57 to '61, those "grand democratic" reform periods when wages were cheaper and necessities of life dearer than they are today, isn't the cartoon a little off color anyway? We mean as a democratic argument. Again, on the cheap foreign labor question we can have no controversy with our artist, the republican party would save him from its competition, the democratic party would put his wages down to a level with "single bed" and all we are only sorry that Mr. Brusio's political prejudices close his eyes to the danger he mentions. Finally as the brick masons wages are directly in point on the wage question and the cartoon is not, we adhere to our criticism of editor Sherman's mention of the great picture and if Mr. Brusio is to persist in his artistic flights we are sorry he declines to work on something practical and to the point. Even if it be the wages of the man who works in the sewer.

We are pointed by the Journal to these good old days when the flies were blowing old Jimmy Buchanan while the solid south democracy was robbing the government under his nose; when wages were on the pauper scale, and necessities of life were beyond the reach of working men, as compared with these days of high tariff, and are urged to consider that period of democratic rule as an argument why we should resort to the folly of '57 and strike down the protective policy of this rich, happy, prosperous nation. By all means let everybody look back as the Journal suggests; its a mighty good idea if there is any danger of the country going back to the democracy of that period.
