PORTER ON FARM DEBTS. The letter of Mr. Porter in reply to Gen. Butler's recent statements with regard to the mortgage indebtedness of the country is timely and valuable. It shows very plainly that the amount of such obligations has been much exaggerated, and any such extent as a certain order of Gen. Butler's case the evidence of misrepresentation is positive and complete. The figures given by him as representing the aggrgate of farm indebtedness are equal to the total assessed value of agricultural lands in the states to which he refers. This proves at a glance that his statements are unreliable. Every intelstate; it is doubtful if the burden anywhere exceeds one-fourth or one third of the value of the property. Mr. Porter presents official statistics which show that in Michigan, for instance, the farms are assessed at $335,000,000, and the mortgages aggregate only $64,000,000. In Illinois, outside of Chicago and Cook county, the farm indebtedness is $142' 400,000, and the productive power of the lands is over $200,000,000 per year. The truth as to other states differs as much, no doubt, from the reports of statisticians like Gen. Butler, as will appear when the census returns are published. It is a melancholy fact that many farmers owe more than they can conveniently pay; but the total amount of such indebtedness is not large enough to warrant the conclusion that certain ruin is closely impending. The mortgages will have to be carried some years longer, but that does not signify approaching impoverishment. A few farms will be sold here and there under decrees of foreclosure; but, as a rule, the creditors are willing to grant any reasonable indulgence. The money borrowed has not been squandered, but invested, for the most part, in substantial property. At the lowing questions to the fathers and present prices of agricultural products, profits, but he can make something by foon is eper will sell liquor to a minor, exerci ing proper care and foresight, and prices are likely to grow better in comtica, diparanati to the radio court, ing years. There is far too much talk about the alleged poyerty and helplessness of the farming population. The facts do not justify so much lamentation. Where there is one farmer whose condition is hopeless, there are a hundred others who are doing reasonably well and will gradually work out of their embarrassments. Such figures as those presented by Gen. Butler convey an impression of misfortune that does not exist and never has existed. The farmers have had a good deal to discourage them; but so have men in other branches of industry and in commerce and manufactures from time to time. These periods of depression are not to be avoided, but they have their limits. They last only for a BIR. VORHEES says that in paying $48 given time, and then are succeeded by seasons of better things. So it will be in this case. It is mainly a matter of patience, frugality and perseverance; and the American farmer is equal to the United States canvassers, in case there be a difference in a result reached by the state electron officers.

The last step has been taken in the school book trust. It has bought out the Harper's, and controls all the school abook publications in the United States. Now we shall see what we shall see. If that syncicate undertakes to put the price of school books beyond the means of poor people; if it seeks to crush out with iron hand a publisher who may hereafter strive to print books outside the syndicate, then let it look out for retribution. The national election bill as framed by the house republican house caucus committee, has just been printed. The principal features of the measure are as fol lows:

Chief supervisors of elections in judicial districts are charged with the execution of the law, which is to apply to iederal elections in cities of 20,040 inhabittants or upward, and in entire congressional districts exclusive of such cities up on application to the supervisor of 100 yoters, or in counties or parishes forming a part of a congressional district upon application of fifty voters.

PERSONAL CHARACTERISTICS OF THE TEXANS.

Texas, settled as it is with emigrants from every part of the Union and of Europe, presents such a variety of character among its people that it will be hard to say what is their most prominent trait. The personal characteristics which used to distinguish them are changing. In early times their lives as pioneers were so hard and fraught with danger that it made them grave and even severe, but now they have become decidedly a gay people' pleasure loving and pleasure seeking. Formerly a rigid plainness and severity marked their lives and surroundings. At this day, even in the counties remote from the centres of population. their tastes have become more luxurious. They crave the elegancies and refinements of life, which is but the natural effect of the superior facilities for education which distinguish the state. Yet with Nebraska are looking well. the simplicity has disappeared much of the hospitality of the olden time; the warm and unquestioning welcome grows arches are beauties of themselves. rarer each day, and the entertainment of guests is more a matter of calculation or distant social obligation than a spontaneous outpouring of hospitable hearts Yet away off upon the frontier are still found, here and there, specimens of those strong, brave early settlars who live literally with their lives in their hands, establishing themselves far beyond the outposts of civilization, not knowing at what time the red men might raid upon them and lav their homes in ashes. Sturdy houses those, stockades they might better be called, built of heavy upright logs, with thatched or sodded roofs, houses that are forts as well as homes. And there is found a rare hospitality which asks no questions, but entertains the wayfarer, giving him all that he requires and that their store affords "without money and without price."-From "Texan Types and Contrasts," by Lee C. Harby, in Harper's Magazine for July.
