Paddock, of Omaha, mentroning at the same time the availability of the gentleman for the democractic condidacy for governor. THE ST. PAUL CENSUS.

The Foundation for the General Charge of Fraudulent Reports.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.-The members of the St. Paul delegation made good progress in the investigation of the census matter. They claim that the only foundation for any general charge of fraud in St. Paul rested on the atlas used by the bureau in Washington to check up the schedules. This atlas was supposed here to show all the buildings in St. Paul, and when the schedules located families at numbers where no houses were shown on the map, it was at once concluded the enumeration was fraudulent. But the committee has already gone far enough to thoroughly discredit the map, and this does away with all charges of general or permeating frauds. If frauds or irregularities are found in exceptional districts the fact will be frankly acknowledged, say the committee, and a recount of those districts cheerfully aquiesced in. But they believe that in 120 out of the 125 districts of the city, the count is above suspicion, and that this showing affords no reason for a general recount, with its attached sligma of premeditated fraud. The committee will present their case to Secretary Noble in a few days and feel confident that the facts shown will warrant a radical modification of his previous action.

Washington, Aug. 2.—The tariff bill as the subject of discussion in the music. On the hydraulic cement mondment, Mr. Paddock joined Mr. lumb is voting with the Democrats, he result of the vote being yeas, 21; 174 27. Senator addock voted with the Democrats; enator Plumb did not vote.

The next question was on paragraph 100, relating to china, porcelain and rockery ware, the finance committee ecommending a reduction of the rates n the house bill from 65 to 55 per cent. on the decorated articles and from 55 to on plain white and undecorated ware. wo members of the finance committee Messrs. Sherman and Hiscock-exested their opposition to the senate auendments.

Mr. Butler moved to amend the paragraph by a change of classification and by a reduction of rates.

Senator Allison supported the committee amendments. It was true, as stated by Senator Sherman, that the crockery industry in the United States had had in a few years a most remarkable development. It had somewhat changed its locality, its center now being in the state of Ohio. He was willing to allow reasonable and fair protection to the people engaged in that in-dustry, as in all other industries, but the finance committee believed, and he belived, that the effect of the administrative bill and of a provision not to al-low for breakages, had been to increase the duty beyond the 5 per cent. reducion proposed.

Senator Vest moved to make the rates 45 and 40 per cent. respectively and spoke in support of that motion. Senator McPherson said he was willing to vote for 50 and 45 per cent. re-

Mr. Vance made a speech in which he leclared that the whole earthenware section was a disgrace to people who claimed to be tinetured with a sense of humanity. It made a discrimination in favor of the rich and against the

Senator Plumb made a bitter attack on the senate bill, particularly on the hodule under discussion. The whole tendency of civilization, he said, was toward a reduction of prices of all products of human labor. To claim that the tariff had been the sole or the main factor in the reduction of prices of manufactured goods was to ignore the forces of civilization. But as fast as the point was reached where lower prices might be expected, the manufacturers came to congress demanding more duties whereby the prices might be stopped. The as on china was per capita tax, because china was used on the tables of the rich ad poor alike. He said he spoke as he lid, not with any hope of influencing the ate of the bill, because its passage was foregone conclusion. The cohorts of protection were organized and intended to "bolt" the bill through the senate as it had been bolted through the house. The manufacturers, he said had always had what they wanted. They had the present law passed by a Republican congress on the report of a Republican tariff commission designed to be helpful to them, and now they are not satisfied, but were asking that another bill for their benefit be put through. He charged that the pottery men of Ohio had entered into an agreement with the importers by which they were to divide the market. When structural beams were needed for the state house at Topeka, and for the Texas state house, the American manufacturers refused to supply them at a fair rate, and the contractor had to import them, paying a duty of 103 per cent. He thought the senate owed something to the American people as well as to the manufacturers. The Democrats should have their full share of the responsibility, he said, because in the house, instead of trying to correct the iniquities of the McKinley bill, they had sought to evade the responsibility of their votes. It was a continual fight for political and personal advantage, and between the two the loyal American people were being crushed and

Mr. Sherman replied to Mr. Plumb. He spoke of the development of the crockery industry, and said that it should be accorded every reasonable demand. Strange to say, the price of chinaware is less than the duty paid ten years ago.

The bill went over without a vote,
Mr. Vest having modified his amendment so as to make it provide for a rate of 50 per cent. on decorated and 40 per cent. on plain china. The senate adopted a resolution of

Mr. Sawyer, calling on the attorney general for information about the awards made under the Fox and Wisconsin river improvement act. The senate then, at 6 p. m., adjourned.

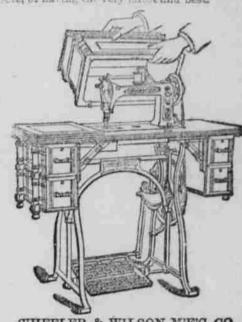

The house continued consideration of the sundry civil bill. The previous question was ordered on the Maryland Point light house amendment—yeas, 103; nays, 64. On non-concurring in the senate amendment, no quorum voted. A motion to adjourn was made and voted down, and a call of the house was ordered. This disclosed no quorum and further proceedings under the call were dispensed with. The remainder of the afternoon was consumed in a vain attempt to secure the presence of a quorum, but without disposing of the bill the house at 5:30 took a recess until 8 o'clock, the evening session to be for the consideration of private pension
