

AN AWFUL SLAUGHTER

A Tribe of "Hoboes" Known as the "Farmers' Alliance" Cruelly Maltreated by the "Bachelors' Club."

From Monday's Daily.

And lo! there was a mighty city within the confines of the county of Cass and state of Nebraska and within that city there dwelt a race of "Hoboes." And these "Hoboes" did form of themselves a tribe and they did emblazon themselves with the cognomen of the "Farmers' Alliance," and they did procure for themselves a room and did during the winter months pass their time in said room in a state of torpor.

And in the same city there dwelt another tribe of "Hoboes" who called themselves "Bachelors," and they were always awake and they did esteem themselves fit companions for Kings and Princes.

And the members of both of these tribes were what is known in base ball slang as "fans," and they all did "hoot" loud and long for the home club.

And it came to pass that one day Richey, the One Eye, or Elder, being a member of the tribe of "Hoboes," and feeling at peace with all the world, did banter one Starch, or March, or Tartsch, as the case may be, to take their respective tribes and hit them to the base ball park and do battle. And Tartsch, etc., did think it a great scheme and he did accept said challenge at once, and both tribes did yesterday collide with great violence at the aforesaid base ball park to the everlasting damage and mortification of the tribe of "Hoboes."

For lo! there was in the tribe of "Hoboes" a spellbinder by the name of Clifford, and he did weave a spell over the tribe of "Hoboes" so that their eyes were as the eyes of a dead dog—sightless. And they could see not the ball to hit it, neither could they see it to catch it, and they were buried amid the filias, and buried so deep that the trump of the angel Gabriel can never awake them.

And for the "Bachelors' Hoodoos" White, Green, Reinhardt, McCarty and Clifford did take the most delight in scalping the unfortunate "Hoboes," while "Hoboes" Murray, Grimes, McCoy, Vallery and Cole ably assisted them in the execution. "Hoodoo" Green took great and exceeding pleasure in fanning the "Hoboes" out, having in the neighborhood of eighteen strike outs. "Hoodoo" Clifford performed a marvelous stop of a grounder in the fore part of the game which woke applause in the grand stand and bleachers. And at the bat he was out of sight. His frequent home runs and three baggers caused the audience to roar with enthusiasm. It was vaguely hinted that Anson was after him. "Hobo" Vallery made a great circus play that established him in great favor with the crowd. He stopped a hot grounder and after turning around six times threw the runner out at first. The game aroused all the latent energy in the spectators and the applause was sharp and frequent.

This is the unofficial score:

Our Allison Knee now stopping at Nebraska City is getting up an exposition down there. As an advertiser Allison is a beauty. The state press has been full of exposition notes for the last two weeks and now comes the Daily Inter Ocean all the way from Chicago with the following editorial:

Nebraska City will be the exposition center in Nebraska this fall, as the Nebraska City exposition will be the only one in the state. It will open Aug. 31 and close Sept. 14. The Grand Army will also hold its district reunion there during the exposition. The exposition ought to be a success with Nebraska exhibits alone. This is a great year for farmers and Nebraska is one of the great farmers States of the Union.

A Burglar Bagged.

The Bee this morning says: About 1 o'clock last Thursday morning Officer Cullen saw a man working at the side window of Neu's saloon on South Thirteenth street. The policeman slipped up on the thief, but he fled. Cullen fired a couple of shots but failed to bring down his man who ran faster than ever and was soon lost in the darkness.

Upon investigation the window was found broken and directly under it in the alley lay a silver handled silk umbrella. This was taken to police headquarters and was the means of capturing the crook. The case was given to Detectives Savage and Dempsey, and their first move was to have Mr. Neu identify the umbrella. This the saloon keeper did by stating that a man who had frequently visited his place of late had carried such an article. A good description was given the detectives and they sallied forth to look for the man who had carried the umbrella.

Yesterday afternoon the officers were successful and arrested Jacob Krumpulitz on suspicion.

At the police station he was searched and a fine gold stop watch and two gold chains were found on his person.

Jailer Harvey looked up his list of stolen property and found that the description tallied with the losses of Joe Klein at Plattsmouth and word was immediately sent down.

Deputy Sheriff John Tighe and Joe Klein went up on the early train this morning and found the thief was one Krumpulitz who used to work for M. B. Murphy and for the last two years had been employed at the shops in Steinkers department. When caught with the property on his person he weakened and admitted his guilt. In company with the sheriff they today made the rounds of the pawn shops, and a telegram received at 3 o'clock this afternoon by Mr. Klein shows that much of his property will be recovered. There are three other men implicated but Krumpulitz has so far refused to give their names. He will be brought down on the flyer this evening.

Pork for Mexico.

It pays to raise good blooded stock. Monday we were called to the stock yards to notice three cars of hogs that were being shipped to Mexico. We were surprised and could scarcely believe our eyes. There 118 head of full blood Poland China hogs as fat as could be and all of even weight and size. Mr. Reyburn, our buyer, informs us that these were the pick out of the entire neighborhood and while not weighing as much as others, yet owing to the smoothness and pure blood he was able to pay 50 cents per hundred more than the market price, and also that owing to the quality he had decided to ship to Mexico via Kansas City, where they rest one day and are then loaded into the Mexican transportation cars and taken across the line. The three cars were composed of ninety-two head from A. E. Hess, who received just $1,287.50; eighteen head were contributed by Sam McClintic that netted him $297, and eight from Mr. Krewer that brought a check for $142.50, or just $1,737 for the 118 head. It would seem from this that it does pay to raise good stock.—Eagle-Eaglet.

Dakota Hot Springs. The popularity of these Springs is fast increasing, both as a Summer and a Health Resort. The cures effected by its waters are many and marvelous. The altitude of the place (3500 feet) makes the atmosphere exhilarating and absolutely free from malaria. They are surrounded by wonderful freaks of nature, and delightful scenery. The elegant new plunge bath 280 feet long by 50 feet wide just completed has added a very attractive feature to this resort. The Hotels are fitted up with all modern improvements, and accommodation are ample.

Great preparations are being made for the State G. A. R. reunion at Grand Island, which promises to be the biggest event of the year. South Dakota has been visited with another series of destructive hail storms. As blizzard breeders, and hail storm incubators the two Dakotas easily head the procession. The long looked for dimension stone arrived last night from which the capstone for the pillars under the two arches are to be cut. The work which it seemed would be delayed will now proceed as usual.

Phil Armour the great pork packer, is in Germany, and promises the government there that if they will raise the embargo on American pork, he will pay the salary of their inspector, and that he will open up new slaughter houses and yards at Tolleston, Ind., which will be the cleanest in the world. It is said the German government is seriously considering his proposition. Armour as a diplomat would be a new role for the king of the packers. Judging the success which has always attended his efforts however in other directions we may expect the German embargo to be raised at once.

A Serious Outlook.

St. JOSEPH, MO., July 27.—Unless an almost miraculous influence is brought to bear upon the Missouri river to prevent the inroads made at a point west of the city known as Belmont bend, the town of Elmwood opposite St. Joseph, covering a territory of about six square miles of farming country, will be submerged and the bridge and railroad tracks will be rendered useless. The neck of land separating the river above and below the bend has been reduced to a width of 1,000 feet. Should the river cut through the Kansas bottoms, this city would be deprived of three of its most important lines of railroad for months at least. The iron bridge now spanning the stream at this point would be rendered useless. All communication with the Kansas farmers would be cut off and it would be impossible to estimate the damage to merchants and business men.

Fatal Accident at Louisville. The Omaha Bee this morning contained the following telegram from Louisville:

A fatal and distressing accident occurred near here this morning. J. W. Neeley was engaged in cleaning a well ninety feet deep at the Berger school house, when he became affected by the foul air. He signaled to be hauled up rapidly and his helper had him within thirty feet of the top when he was overcome and fell back head first a distance of about sixty-five feet.

Help was immediately procured and Frank McNeely volunteered to go down into the well for him. He was let down but immediately signaled to be hauled up as he became affected in a similar manner. After resting a while he tied a wet handkerchief over his face and was fastened to the bucket and let down again. He succeeded in fastening a rope to Neely's legs and then they were both hauled up. Neely remained in a stupor until 8 o'clock to-night when he expired. He leaves a wife and three children.

The deceased for many years was a near neighbor of the writer and lived on a farm southeast of Louisville adjoining the farm occupied by the late Charles Hasecmeir who was killed in the explosion at the shops.

Mr. Neeley was a stepson of Abraham Thomas one of Cass county's oldest settlers who now resides at Hillsdale, Ia., a stepbrother of Dr. Thomas, of Weeping Water and a cousin or nephew of the Wiles' his mother being a daughter of Luke Wiles, of Glenwood, and a brother of Stephen Wiles of Plattsmouth precinct.

Fred Matson, aged 14 charged with a criminal assault on a little girl near Greenwood had his preliminary hearing before Justice Archer yesterday afternoon which resulted in his being bound over to the district court. PRETTY FANCY WORK.

Design Suitable for Center or Corner of a Toilet Cushion.

Fig. 1 is a design suitable for center or corner of a lovely toilet cushion. Select a square of satin of a cream or pearly tint. Color the design in pale blue Paris tinting; work with veining stitches in blue silk and outline the whole with Japanese gilt thread. The cushion can be edged with a silken cord of blue, or white with some of the Japanese gilt thread twisted around it. A pompon on one or more of the corners gives a pleasant effect, or a bow of satin ribbon may take the place of the pompons, and a full rabet of oriental lace around the edges will look as well as the corals.

Lamp shades will add to a room's attractiveness. A charming one is made of fine white lace over a rose-colored lining. It is gathered at the top so as to leave a heading of lace. Sprays of white and pink tissue paper flowers are arranged to fall like a fringe from the top, where a wreath hides the gathers in the lace. Another very pretty shade has two rows of lace sewed one above the other over a yellow lining, and yet

DESIGN FOR TOILET CUSHION. low ribbon, which hides the shirring below the heading, is tied in a pretty bow. These may be made over ordinary wire frames, such as are made for the purpose, or they can be thrown over a common shade and produce a very neat effect.—Ohio Farmer.

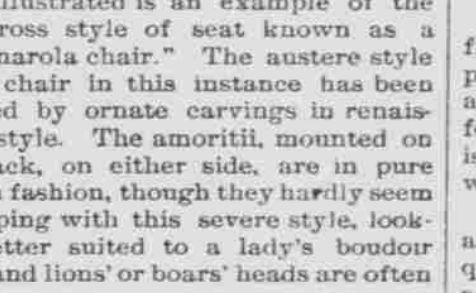

VEGETABLE FATS.

Why They Are Healthier and More Nutritious Than Animal Fats. It is a physiological fact that a certain amount of fat is necessary for the proper nutrition of the body. Fat is derived from the carbonaceous elements contained in sugar, starch and grains. The digestive process is carried on better with the aid of a little fatty matter. But it is not necessary to go to the animal kingdom for this, and it is a fact that vegetable oils are more easily digested than animal fats. They do not become rancid so easily. Rancid fat is exceedingly poisonous. Nuts furnish an excellent natural oil and it is a mistake to suppose that they are difficult of digestion. The reason for the prevalent idea that nuts are hard to digest is that they are taken at improper hours and are not thoroughly masticated, often being swallowed in chunks. But if taken with a bit of bread or hard cracker, the firm, fleshy substance of the nut can be so finely divided that it will not be retained unduly in the stomach, but will pass along to the duodenum where, by the action of the bile, the fatty substances contained will be digested and fitted to be passed along further in the alimentary tract.

Corn meal contains the largest percentage of fats of any of the grains. Peas, beans and lentils also contain forms of vegetable oil and are very nutritious, wholesome foods. Going into the animal kingdom, the yolk of the egg is very rich in oil, being thirty per cent. of its substance.—Extract from a lecture by Dr. J. H. Kellogg, of Battle Creek Sanitarium.

CARVED FURNITURE.

Elegant Chairs for Parlors, Reception Rooms and Libraries. The carved walnut furniture which comes from Venice is especially attractive to curio hunters. The massive hall chair illustrated is an example of the criss-cross style of seat known as a "Savonarola chair." The austere style of the chair in this instance has been relieved by ornate carvings in renaissance style. The amoretto, mounted on the back, on either side, are in pure Italian fashion, though they hardly seem in keeping with this severe style, looking better suited to a lady's boudoir chair, and lions' or boars' heads are often substituted. The mask of Pan is a grotesque carving frequently used in Venetian carvings, where heathen mythology and churchly figures are sometimes mingled in an odd sort of jumble. One meets the figures of all the heathen deities in these carvings, in close association with the lion of St. Mark holding the open Scriptures before him in dogmatic attitude.

These criss-cross chairs are made more comfortable for library use by the addition of a movable cushion of brocade or leather.—N. Y. Tribune.

How to Clean Dark Wood.

Any sort of dark wood may be freed from all traces of dirt and grease by a good sponging of strong tea, just warm; it will not, however, answer for light, unpolished furniture, as it would stain it.

FRAME FOR PHOTOGRAPH.

A Dainty Way in Which to Mount Pictures for Presentation.

If a girl intends to present one of her own photographs to a dear familiar friend, who would not wish to shut it away from sight in an album, let her frame it, according to the following directions, with her own favorite color. It will not only be doubly suggestive of herself, but will make a pretty holiday or birthday gift or valentine of what would otherwise be only a photograph.

Take a cabinet photograph or one of a larger size, put a few drops of paste on the back side, lay it on a piece of heavy cardboard, an inch and a half larger than the picture all around and rounded off at the corners, and press it firmly down so that it will adhere to the back securely.

Over it lay a square of good clear glass a little larger than the photograph card—or what is still better, a slightly convex glass made for the purpose, which may be obtained at a photographer's. Then take a strip of cambric, cheese-cloth or any thin cloth that will absorb paste readily, saturate with paste, and fold it like a binding all around the picture, letting it lap over the edge of the glass at least half an inch.

Press it on smoothly, rubbing out superfluous paste, and turn the other edge over on the back side and rub it close down. When dried it will be firm and solid, and no air can reach the picture.

Nor is the picture marred in any way; it can be removed and put in an album if one should tire of the frame. The back may be finished with a neat paper cover or a piece of thin lining satin may be fitted smoothly over it by being drawn closely over a little way on the right side by a strong draw-thread run into the narrowly-folded edge.

For the frame take any pretty ribbon—three-inch satin ribbon is very pretty for a large picture—and arrange it as illustrated or in any original way that is pretty or characteristic and tuck it securely beneath the folds and knots through the cardboard beneath; milliners' stitches, long and loose but still firm and invisible, are better than finer ones for this work.

Bright or delicate ribbons are only suitable for framing children's or blooming girlish faces, while such colors as golden brown, old gold and olive are better for their elders.—Youth's Companion.

FAMILY SCRAP BASKET.

If the complexion is greasy and thick soap, with carbolic acid or sulphur, is excellent, and flour of sulphur, a teaspoonful to a basin of water, should be used for washing.

A LITTLE alcohol in the water in which mirrors are washed helps to give a fine polish. Never wet a mirror all over when cleaning, but dampen and instantly dry a small part at a time.

If lace is narrow wind it tightly around a bottle and pin it on. Wet it thoroughly with alcohol and let it remain until perfectly dry. It will be like new.

A MAGIC preparation for keeping frizzes "in" is found in mixing equal parts of glycerine and rose water and anointing the hair freely with it before curling, or an equally good mixture is made of perfumed olive oil with bees-wax dissolved therein.

If ink is spilled on the carpet throw a quantity of salt on it which will quickly absorb the ink; take this up and put on more salt. Keep repeating this, rubbing it well into the ink spot until the ink is all taken up by the salt, then brush the salt out of the carpet.

To TAKE coal oil out of carpet saturate with benzine and then rub dry with a clean white cloth. If the first application does not take it out go through the same process until it is out. As benzine is very explosive be careful and not have a light in the room nor a hot stove.

ALWAYS wash baby's mouth and gums every morning with water in which you have put a pinch of borax. It keeps the mouth fresh and sweet and prevents that uncomfortable affliction, a sore mouth, with which so many poor babies are troubled when their mouths are not kept perfectly clean.

TO DRIVE away roaches take three pounds of oatmeal or meal of Indian corn and mix it with a pound of white lead; moisten with treacle so as to form a good paste and put a portion down in the infested building. Repeat for a few nights alternately, and in the morning remove the paste and the corpses to a convenient place.

Eye Short-Cake Toast.

One cup white flour, one cup rye flour or rye meal; one-half teaspoonful soda; one teaspoonful cream of tartar; one-half teaspoonful of salt; one tablespoonful sugar; one cup milk (about), and one tablespoonful melted butter. Mix the flour, meal and sugar. Sift the soda, salt and cream of tartar through a very fine strainer into the flour, and mix thoroughly. Make it into a stiff dough with the milk, using enough to enable you to roll the dough. Add the butter. Turn out on the board and roll out quarter of an inch thick. Cut into rounds and bake in a quick oven. When done tear them open, pour thickened cream over them and serve at once.
