GOOD BAR CONNECTED

Katie Putnam has always been a favorite with Plattsmouth's amusement public, and we see no reason why she should not be greeted with a packed house to-night.

Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Pierce, accompanied by Mrs. Timothy Whaling, leave this evening for points in New York and Connecticut. They will visit quite extensively in the latter state.

Do our citizens appreciate good attractions coming to Plattsmouth? If so they should patronize Katie Putnam to-night, as they will give a performance that will please every one. Tickets, 25, 35, 50, 75. Secure your tickets at J. P. Young's.

The Cullom band came in this morning and will dispense music at the fair grounds to-day. The band is nicely uniformed, and the boys play well. We are not yet informed as to whether the B. & M. band will be on the grounds, if they do not, we may safely conclude that Cullom will have a walk-away.

The ice cream social given by the ladies of the M. E. church at the residence of S. P. Holloway last evening was well attended. The young folks enjoyed themselves immensely in the open air. The feature of the entertainment was the singing of Messrs. Harvey Holloway, Charley Sherman and Miss Mary Sherman.

The board of supervisors was in Lincoln and Omaha the first of the week, inspecting the furniture with a view of furnishing the new court house. The board expressed itself as well pleased with the stock from which they will be allowed to choose. The board doubtless will exercise judgment and discretion in the matter.

Flag Raising.
To-morrow morning at the time for opening exercises, 9:00 to 9:30 o'clock, the high school will raise the American flag over the building. Appropriate exercises will be conducted and an interesting program rendered to celebrate the occasion. We predict a good time. Parents and friends of the students are invited to be present.

Mrs. Cal. Parmele was a passenger of the Schuyler train last night for Cedar Creek.

THE OPENING DAY.

Exhibits Well Merit the Patronage of the Public.

The Displays at the Fair Larger Than Ever—A Brief Sketch of Some of the Exhibits.

Apples are Numerous.

Yesterday was a busy day for the superintendents of the various departments of the Cass county fair. While a great many entries—about 200—were made Monday, a great many preferred to wait until Tuesday, as the management had previously announced that the time for entry would be thus extended.

It is the general opinion that the displays are more creditable in every particular than ever before. In the exhibit of fruit and farm products, one only needs to look upon them to be convinced of the excellency of our soil and the ability of our farmers.

On entering the hall in which farm products are exhibited we first met our genial friend and enterprising fruit grower, H. C. McMaken. He has a collection of fruit that would be a credit to any county. He has on exhibition twenty-one varieties of apples—fall and winter—including the Fall Pippin, Newton, Pippin, Winesap and Jennettin varieties. He also has thirteen varieties of as fine grapes as grow, including the Martha, Brighton, Elvira, Wilder and the Newton varieties. He has three varieties of peaches, of which he will have several bushels this year. He also has three varieties of large plums, that demonstrate conclusively plum trees should be placed in every orchard.

We next noticed the display of W. F. Moore. He has thirty-nine varieties of apples, including the Jonathan, Northern Spy and Jelly Flower varieties, specimens of which are very good. His display consists chiefly of winter apples.

Levi Churchill has a very creditable display of fruit. He has thirty-two varieties of apples, consisting in part of the Belle-flower, Russet, Strawberry, Gloria, Munida and Lowell—a display in which Mr. Churchill may well feel a pardonable pride.

We next noticed the display made by R. F. Dean of Murray, which was the largest fruit display in the hall. He has fifty-eight varieties of apples, including the standard varieties, among which were specimens of the Early Harvest and Red June—a peculiarly remarkable exhibit at this season of the year. Mr. Dean says it is the first time the Cass county fair ever had those varieties on exhibition. He has a Holland Pippin variety, specimens of which measure fourteen inches in circumference.

W. E. Roberts has an exhibit of fruit, somewhat different from any other exhibition. He exhibits bottled fruit, preserved in acid, making it easy to conclude as to the ability of Mr. Roberts as a fruit grower. He has displayed in this manner four varieties of tame plums, several varieties of raspberries, currants and strawberries, all of which are as large as are usually grown. The peculiar display, however, is a ripe strawberry attached to the vine as in its regular season. Mr.

Roberts also has several varieties. Some gentleman, whose name we did not learn, has on exhibition an excellent display of sugar beets. They weigh fully ten pounds. This is abundant proof that Cass county can grow sugar beets profitably.

There were several other entries in the agricultural hall, but as the exhibitors were not in we shall not be permitted to speak of them.

The display in the agricultural hall, as a whole, is quite an improvement over former years.

Jacob Vallery, Sr., has twenty-five varieties of apples that compare favorably with other exhibits and consist of about the same varieties.

Mr. Richardson has a display while consisting of only nine varieties, makes a good showing owing to the size of the fruit. Evidently Mr. R. exhibits quality rather than quantity.

Joseph Shera, of Rock Bluffs, exhibits twenty-nine varieties of apples, which compare favorably with exhibits adjacent them.

Mr. Binger was not in, but we noticed that he had a very fine display of grapes and other fruits.

D. A. Young displays two squashes, weighing eighty and ninety-five pounds respectively. He has a good exhibit of potatoes, thirty-eight varieties of apples and several varieties of grapes. He also enters fifty ears of corn, which demonstrates beyond a doubt that Cass county has at least fifty ears of corn of which she need not feel ashamed.

Wm. Murray enters the largest collection of farm products, having twenty varieties of apples, a collection of plums, seven different kinds of corn, large beets, oyster plant, tomatoes, cabbage and turnips. The display certainly reflects credit upon the ability of the exhibitor to force nature to yield well of her bountiful resources.

U. S. Upton, of Union, exhibits several varieties of corn, measuring thirteen inches in length, large potatoes and several varieties of apples.

Miss Menota Eikebary has a fine collection of plants, a majority of which are blooming nicely. The exhibitor was not in, hence we did not learn the names of the plants, but the display certainly reflects credit upon the taste and enterprise of the exhibitor.

provement over former years. It was expected to be so, however, in view of our excellent crop prospects.

Messrs. Martin & Clarence, the enterprising implement dealers of Union, have a complete display of farm machinery, buggies, pumps, windmills, press drill, etc. The firm made the same display at the state fair, which is conclusive that they have spared no pains to make a good showing.

THE HERALD reporter shall visit the art hall to-day and perhaps give our readers a brief outline of the elaborate displays to be found there.

FAIR NOTES.

The race track is in fine condition.

The usual target and gun is on deck.

The management have provided quite a number of refreshment stands.

All the available space in the agricultural hall has been engaged for exhibits.
