

AMERICA has 1,000,000 tramps. Blame the republican party.

If you have a misshap, blame the republican party. Of course the g. o. p. caused it.

THE primaries have been held and the next thing in order is to name the winning ticket.

LEAVE the matter of voting with the people, then the grand old party of patriotism, progress and reform will rest securely.

THE next most important event in the political arena is the meeting of Hill's convention, to be held somewhere in New York.

THE latest argument in favor of reciprocity is that Roger Mills Breckenridge and the other fellows down there are opposed to it.

War clouds are slowly but, as it appears, surely gathering in Europe. England says that her navy may safely defy any two other European countries; it appears that a conflict is inevitable.

LAST week McKinley, the man with a bill, addressed 40,000 people in Ohio. He argued that it was better to work for the interests of America than Great Britain. That sounds patriotic and sensible.

BALMACEA recently issued $27,000,000 of paper currency that is now worthless. In other words, he pursued the reckless policy that is now advocated by the inflationists of our most extreme third party men.

THE silence manifested by Cleveland the past few weeks accords fittingly with the absence of his name from the democratic platforms. The republican party would fare better, however, if they would allow Grover to talk a little more. He writes very sound letters on the silver question, in fact too sound for the party to which he belongs.

It has been announced, authoritatively, that a corporals guard of the distinguished "political pedagogues" representing the democratic party will soon visit the northwest, ostensibly, and according to their declarations, "to teach the people." The Omaha Bee remarks that there is probably a typographical error conveying the wrong impression. The Bee says it should read a party of demagogues to mislead the people.

BEATRICE feels hopeful of the establishment of a shoe factory in the near future. If the citizens of Beatrice are thoroughly alive as to the benefit to the city, likely to result from an industry of this nature, they will surely legitimate effort to secure its location. The west needs a greater variety of industries. We need not remain a purely agricultural country always. Let us endeavor to create every possible avenue for the consumption of our produce, and factories for the manufacture of commodities that we must have.

SECRETARY BLAINE has announced that he will remove to Washington by Oct. 1. This announcement is conclusive that he will soon resume his negotiations looking to the farther extension of reciprocal trade relations with those nations with which we can exchange products satisfactorily. Let the good work go on. The people of this country realize that, even thus far, they have realized more actual benefit from a single treaty of this nature than they EVER received at the hands of the democratic party. The fact is, every time that party has been placed in power the course pursued was so reckless and detrimental to the interests of the people that they had to call a halt. But not so with the g. o. p. Their work becomes more popular as it becomes known.

It is reported that Ireland is on the threshold of a potato famine and yet in California they rot in the ground as there is not a demand for them. How well it would be for our potato growers if it were possible to transport their crop to Ireland, but this would prove impracticable. The fact is, we must depend upon a home market for products of this nature, exclusively, and for the benefit of the producer of these products, it behooves us to put forth every legitimate effort that will increase the home demand for these commodities from the farm. This can best be provided by creating more industries employing more laborers. Let us not get to cast our influence with that political party that has always been in the foreground in providing for the employment of labor at remunerative wages and the creating of a home market for the farmer.

THE SITUATION.

The primaries have been held, and delegates chosen to attend the county convention, which meets at Louisville next Saturday. It will be the duty of the county convention to nominate republican candidates for county officers and to choose delegates to the state convention, which convenes in Lincoln, Sept. 24. The campaign, on the part of the republican party, may be said to have opened last Saturday. And now that the party has confided to these delegates the important trust, which they accept, they are in honor bound to act in a way that will reflect credit upon themselves and insure a victory for the party they represent.

In choosing candidates for county officers due caution should be observed. In local elections a great deal depends upon the character and ability of the man. Each man nominated upon the county ticket should have back of him a career and a character absolutely unassailable. They should be capable men—qualified in every particular to perform the duties of an officer, faithfully and well. We are going into this campaign to win and we cannot afford to permit selfish interests, personal friendships or any other extraneous condition to prevent the nomination of men upon whom the members of the party of all sections can unite. THE HERALD has expressed no preference for any particular candidate, but prefers to let the party select its standard bearers and then we shall be found contributing in every legitimate way to the party success.

The retiring state officers are Chas. H. Gere, of Lancaster county, and Leavitt Brunham, of Douglas county, regents of the state university, and Hon. Amasa Cobb, associate justice of the supreme court. It is equally important that care be exercised in instructing delegates for state officers. There is likely to be but little difficulty in selecting regents that will be satisfactory to all sections of the state. There is, however, considerable opposition on the part of prominent republicans to the renomination of Mr. Cobb. It appears that this opposition was caused largely because of his actions in the Boyd-Thayer contest. But we believe that before condemning an officer there should be objections other than that he has performed his duties faithfully. If it appeared to Mr. Cobb that he was acting under the direction of the fundamental law of our state, and if that be true, there can be no valid objection to his action, on the part of law abiding people. Our supreme judge can not yield to popular clamor in dealing with the constitutionality of questions presented for his consideration; and, in fact, he cannot be expected to court the wishes of the people in matters pertaining to law. We elect a judge in whom we have confidence and from whom we expect judgments rendered without bias and uninfluenced by popular opinion.

THE HERALD only desires that justice be done Mr. Cobb and if in the face of facts in the matter he is considered a weak candidate, it is the duty of the convention to instruct for some other man. Let strong tickets—state and county—be nominated, let each member of the party rally to its support and they will be triumphantly elected in November. ON his return to his home from the Republican convention by which he was named as the candidate for Governor, J. Slout Fassett was greeted by vast crowds of his fellow citizens, and the speech which he made concluded with these words: I have one purpose and that is that this shall be absolutely, purely a campaign of education and organization. No personal detraction, no personal abuse, no holding up the light of false issues, no toleration of falsehoods and misrepresentations. There is enough for every earnest American citizen to think about and to come to conclusions about without sensational falsehoods and personal detractions of any name or nature whatever. I have been called a practical politician. I believe I once said in Cooper Union that I wish that every American citizen of 21 years and upward was a practical politician. It is the first duty of every American man to be a practical American politician. It is in this way that Republican victories are won not only in New York but everywhere. It is hardly too soon to assume that Mr. Fassett will be Governor Fassett on the first day of next year.—Inter Ocean.

It will go hard with a great many democratic congressmen to vote for a free coinage man for speaker, but they shall either have to do that or vote for the republican candidate. The silver mine syndicates of Mexico and Great Britain seem to have a grip on a working majority of the expounders of democratic doctrine, which it will be difficult for the other faction to overcome.

The silver men have their eye on $15,000,000 that the democratic party will legislate into their hands, by granting them a bonus of 20 cents on every 371 grains of silver mined. And yet the democratic howlers yell class legislation, etc. Give us a breathing spell.

No sooner had Mr. Fassett been notified of his nomination as the republican candidate for the Governorship of New York, than he telegraphed his resignation as collector of the Port of N. Y. to President Harrison, thus showing how he differed from Governor Hill, who persistently holds two offices at the same time. But Hill is proprietor of his party in N. Y. which may serve as an excuse for him.

NEBRASKA republicans should not be alarmed at the declaration of the Bee that it can "make or break" the ticket. It may be remembered that it is not backed this year by the National Brewers' Association, as last year. It is hoped that as great a paper as the Bee will not pursue a reckless course, when the interests of the party are at stake. It should lay aside personal grudges and work in harmony with the masses.

WHILE the publicity of the Rogson letter is to be greatly regretted, yet it will be of benefit in the long run. It will show the people just how the Rosewater crowd does its work and they will guard against their plans in the future. Rosey and his crowd defeated Richards for governor after they had saddled him with the prohibition side issue. This fact should be done in mind by the party. The sooner Rosewater and his gang are repudiated the better it will be for republicanism in Nebraska.—Nebraska City Press.

EVIDENTLY the editor of the Journal is questioning the fidelity of the democratic party of his state, to the interests of the people, when he says that if the democratic party hopes to keep its place as the party of the people it must represent them and not the corporations. We are not aware that this party ever did hold a warm place in the affections of the people. The fact is that of recent years the organization has not had an opportunity of manifesting its love for the people, as it had prior to 1880, but yet an opportunity has been given to get an insight to democratic hospitality and that has been considered sufficient.

Four years of democratic rule during Cleveland's administration demonstrated conclusively that he cared more to subvert the interests of Wall street, the southern brigadiers and the manufacturers of Great Britain, than he did in finding a market for the products of the American farm providing for the employment of American labor and showing by his actions friendship and esteem for the brave defenders of our Union.

As far as the party record in this state is concerned it speaks for itself. True it does not accord very well with the party promises, as is acknowledged by prominent members of the party, but those who have watched its methods pursued in the past, are not at all surprised. The platform usually pleases the people, but after election the promises are often times ignored.

JOHN FITZGERALD

The many friends of John Fitzgerald, not only in Lincoln, but all over the United States, will be gratified to learn that he is now convalescent and that his recovery is assured. He has been a very sick man, and at times his physicians were much worried over his high fever and critical condition, but thanks to his rugged constitution, that has never been undermined by intoxicants or stimulants of any kind or character, Mr. Fitzgerald will be spared for more years of energetic work. The hardship of his illness that Mr. Fitzgerald feels the most keenly comes from the fact that it will be impossible for him to attend the coming Chicago convention of the Irish National league in America. As the president of the league it has been his great desire at this convention to personally turn the office over to his successor, but under the most favorable improvement it will be impossible for him to be able to be at Chicago or to be at active work for some time subsequent to that event. Mr. Fitzgerald has been diligent and zealous in the cause of Ireland and he has been more than generous in his contributions to advance the cause of home rule through peaceful and lawful methods. Every year his salary as president of the league has been given to the cause and thousands of dollars annually beside. He has been the strongest right arm of the Irish movement in America and his absence from the Chicago convention will be deeply regretted by the thousand delegates in attendance.—Lincoln Call.

The republican convention will name the winners at Louisville next Saturday.

Two republicans have advised their friends to stay out of politics. Therefore the republicans have no hope of success.
