In every age prolonged struggles have been made against deafness; there have been special physicians, special instruments and special remedies for the ear. The acoustic cornet of Dr. Larrey, intended to be concealed in the hair; the acoustic bell of Dr. Itard, acoustic tubes, dilating tubes, artificial ears of metal, silk and gutta percha, audiphones, auricular microphones, conches, artificial tympanums, even acoustic fans for the use of ladies, have had at divers times a reputation more or less deserved. Finally, the announcement was made a few days ago that a new acoustic horn had been found which not only enabled the deaf to hear, but which diminished and even conquered deafness

The apparatus is composed of a large bell of enameled metal, united by a gutta percha tube, about fifty centimeters in length, to a little bone tube covered with gutta percha, which extends somewhat beyond it. The tube is covered outside by a light stuff intended to arrest all foreign vibrations. The little tube penetrates into the auditory passage and touches the tympanum. Thanks to this, not a sound, not a breath is lost on the patient, and no matter how little hearing remains to the subject he perceives sounds and noises; that is to say, vowels and consonants, and finally he even hears words. The sounds are clear, without buzzing, without resohance and with a remarkable intensity -New York Telegram.

One of Perry's Vessels.

An important relic of the war of 1813 has just been unearthed at Ferrysburg. It is the lower portion of the hull of the sloop Porcupine, one of the nine small vessels built by Commodore Perry on Lake Erie, and with which he achieved his great victory over the British squadron, known in American history as Perry's victory, Perry's nine vessels consisting of the Lawrence, his flagship, of twenty guns; the Niagara, twenty guns the Caledonia, three guns; schooner Ariel, four; the Scorpion, two; the Sommers, of two guns and two swivels; the sloops Trip, Tigress and Porcupine, one gun each.

The Porcupine was taken to Detroit, where, in 1830, her upper works were rebuilt and her name changed to Caroline. Eventually she was brought to Grand Haven and sailed by Captain Harry Miller. In the early fifties she was set adrift in Grand river near the mouth. The current carried her out into Lake Michigan, but a west wind blew her back in a day or two, and she was afterward refitted and sailed a season or two. Finally, about the year 1855, she was allowed to sink, head on, at Ferrysburg. Her remains will be taken from the water and properly cared for .- Grand Rapids Democrat.

Looking for Rattlers.

"The King Snake Story" is the heading under which an Alabama contemporary prints the following: "We have been informed that about one month ago, in Morgan county, while a man and his wife were sitting out on the veranda late in the afternoon, their attention was attracted by the appearance of a large king snake on the steps a few feet away. They were perfectly quiet, and the snake crawled up the steps until it

Mme. Bartholdi.

The late Mme. Bartholdi was no ordinary person, and on her ninetieth birthday she looked so full of life and beamed so with mental vigor and heartiness that I wonder she did not live to a hundred. She was left a widow early, and devoted herself to the education of her sons and the stewardship of their paternal properties, which under her management were increased to fortunes. Though so well endowed with the money making faculty, she was a person of a generous disposition and given to hospitality.

In youth she was reputed the hand-somest girl in Alsace. As an old woman she was more than handsome. The pure outlines remained, and the fire of the kindest, quickest and most lambent pair of eyes imaginable was never quenched so long as life remained. The son must have had her in his head, as he remembered her in her younger days, when he was sketching the design of the statue of "Liberty Enlightening the World.' It was her idea that Liberty should not be en pate de guimauve, but of a grave and severe aspect. Liberty was the best of all conditions, she used to say, for those who were severe upon themselves, and the worst for the self indulgent.

One never saw a trace of self righteous harshness in the old lady. She was very indulgent toward the erring; but that grace, she said, came with the wide experience of old age. It was a source of enjoyment to her to drive to the Isle of Swans, in the Seine, and look at the reduced copy which was set up there a few years ago of the famous statue which now stands at the entrance of New York harbor. One of her sayings was, "Do not repress badness; crowd it out with good ideas."-London Truth.

A Paris Candle Story.

"Every traveler who stops at a Paris lodging house," laughed a woman the other day, "has a candle story, and here is mine: We were served with two candles every morning, which we never half used up; these would be taken out. however, and fresh ones appear in their places. Knowing that we were being charged for every candle we determined at least to enjoy added illumination, and my husband looked around for a place to hide them during the daily doing up of the apartment. On the top shelf of a cabinet arrangement in a corner stood a large Japanese vase, wide and deep. Up to this Mr. --- climbed, to discover that we had been forestalled, for in its capacious hollow we found seventeen candles, every one burned down perhaps an inch.

"Some former lodger had resented the candle swindle like ourselves, and had put his daily allowance where it would do the proprietor no good. That night a brilliant illumination of nineteen candles, each set in its own grease on the marble top table, gave us something like light. During our stay we hid and accumulated candles, so that we had always enough to read by, and when we left we deposited our overstock in the vase for the benefit of some searching successor."-New York Times.

up, as much as to say, 'Can I come in?' They remained perfectly still, and the enake took it for granted that the silence gave consent, so it proceeded to enter the hall and crawled leisurely along until it reached a bedroom where the door stood open. It entered the door, making its way under the bed. "Here the king snake pounced on a large rattlesnake that had coiled itself around the bed springs. After a deadly struggle with this monster rattler the king snake went out in the yard and got some kind of weed to kill the poisonous bites. After taking the medicine the king snake returned to the house and continued tha battle until the rattlesnake was dead. It was five feet in length and had nine rattles.""

Opening of the Dulse Season.

What ho, ye epicures of Irish birth! Listen to the gladsome tidings that the first crop of dulse for the season of 1891-3 has arrived and is awaiting your eager purchase. Fresh from the rocks of Bandoren and all along the Galway and Sligo coast it comes.

The dulse, or dillisk as the real Hibernians call it, is unusually plentiful and of extra fine flavor this fall, and when stewed with plenty of milk and butter it will make a dish fit for a king. A quart of it looks like a choice assortment of faded morocco leather scraps, but it is like the proverbial singed cat, and no one who knows its taste minds its looks. The stew or broth it makes is a general tonic for the system, and especially good for dyspepsia; but men from the "ould sod" say further that it enlarges the heart, enriches the brogue and enlivens the feet of all who partske of it. -New York Herald.

An Improved Shirt.

An idea as old as the hills is gaining recognition now, after having failed persistently. I speak of the idea of the "coat shirt." This is a garment which in most respects does not differ from the ordinary dress shirt. It has no claim to novelty in appearance when it is worn. The advantage is in the putting on. Yne garment does not go over the head, but is adjusted in the same way as an ordinary coat. It is closed behind and entirely open in front. It is being put upon the market this year, and its future looks brighter than ever before. In swelldom it is not unknown already, but it has never gained wide popularity .--New York World.

We Drink a Good Deal of Coffee, The United States ranks high among the coffee drinking nations, being surpassed by Belgium and Hollard alone. The average consumption of coffee per inhabitant in this country last year was eight and a quarter pounds, while that of tea was but one and two-tenths pounds. Coffee is the national beverage of the United States .- Chicago Tribune.

fucius is at Mecca, for many of the Chinese, and they make pilgrimages to it. Confucianism is more a philosophy than a religion. It contains many of the beauties which we suppose to be exclusively the properties of Christianity. The golden rule in a negative form was annunciated by Confucius, and as a system of morality it is beautiful. The Taou.ste have more superstitions than the Confucianists. They began about the same time as Confucius, their preacher being one Laou-Tsze.

The state religion, in connection with which all these religions come in, is the worship of the emperor, who is the son of heaven and the prophet, priest and king of the people. He worships for them in the temples at Pekin When the great Temple of Heaven was burned down a shudder ran down the 300,000,000 spines of the great Chinese nation. It was thought that this was a warming from heaven that the emperor should be deposed.-Frank G. Carpenter in National Tribune.

Begging Letters from London.

"Ever since I was abroad," said a well known New Yorker, "I have been pestered with all sorts of begging letters. They are mostly from the managers of English charitable institutions of various descriptions, though some are from private individuals. The former inclose a variety of printed matter illustrating the purposes and work of the institution. The latter are abject appeals of apparently professional begging letter writers, with which London abounds. I was talking with a friend about it and he said he had the same experience for about two years after he had built a fine house here, a description of which and his wealth got into the local papers. He was deluged with begging letters from almost every capital in Europe and ecpecially from London.

"Tose people are the worst and most persistent beggars in the world. Fancy an American mailing begging letters to Londoners! I suppose there must be money in it or they wouldn't do it."-New York Herald.

"Bravo,"

The intelligent foreigner is highly amused at the indiscriminate way in which English andiences use this word, regardless of the number and sex of the performers whom they wish to applaud. A tenor is, of course, bravo; but a prima donna is brava. More than one male artist can only be bravi, and if there are more ladies than one on the stage, and no man is to be included in the applause, they should be hailed as brave-at least according to Italian grammar,-Notes and Queries.
