EXPRESS ROBBERS CAUGHT

Albert Sly and Florence Waterman are Now in the Toils of the Law.

The leader of the gang who robbed the Adams express company at Glendale on the evening of November 30 is under arrest; a female accomplice is also in custody and the capture of the remainder of the gang seems only a matter of time.

The leader of the gang turns out to be Albert Sly, a noted convict from the Missouri penitentiary. The operation of this gang commenced last October with the robbery of the Omaha street car barns; they next appeared at Kansas City in the same month; then came the robbery of the Pacific express company on the Missouri Pacific near Omaha November 4, and the American Express robbery near West Union Junction, Wis., November 12. In all of these robberies Sly figured as leader and their engine of warfare was dynamite.

After the robbery at western Union Junction William A. Pinkerton found out that Sly, in 1883, while acting as driver for the American Express Company at St. Joseph, Mo., defrauded with a package containing $29,000. At that time, after a long search, Sly was apprehended in California by the Pinkertons. He was returned to Missouri and sentenced to seven years in the Missouri penitentiary at Jefferson City. On coming out it was learned that Sly became associated with a gang of rough burghers, who made their headquarters around Kansas City and Omaha. On the theory that Sly was possibly concerned in the robbery at Western Union Junction the Pinkertons quietly began an investigation towards locating Sly and succeeded in tracing him to St. Louis a few days previous to the Glendale robbery on the Frisco road.

Pinkerton's force and the force of Chief of Police Harrigan of St. Louis soon joined hands, and some days after the Glendale affair Chief Harrigan received valuable information from a furniture dealer, who furnished houses on the installment plan, concerning a woman and four men renting a house on Swan avenue in St. Louis, on the outskirts of the city. This furniture man had fitted up the house on Swan avenue and the people occupying the same had mysteriously disappeared after the robbery, leaving the furniture and everything behind them. This Chief Harrigan investigated very carefully, and it was found that the house had been occupied by a blonde woman, supposed to be the wife or mistress of one of the four men. They disappeared from the house three days after the Glendale robbery. Their baggage was traced to the depot and the check numbers showed that they were all bound west.

Chief Harrigan's men traced them to Omaha, where the party split up, taking up different routes west. Chief Harrigan's men managed to get accurate descriptions of the fugitive and Sly's identity was fixed beyond a question, as also the identity of the woman connected with the gang, Robert A. Pinkerton at this time was in California and on the eve of departure for the east, but remained and assisted the San Francisco police, who had been communicated with.

Sly had, it was ascertained, gone by way of Denver to Southern California. With this information R. A. Pinkerton went at once to San Diego and searched that place thoroughly, then going to Los Angeles, arriving there a week ago. For several days he kept up a search of the saloons, gambling houses and places of that kind without success.

Through a breakage on the railroad there had been no mail delivered for three days at Los Angeles, and on Saturday last Mr. Pinkerton, accompanied by Ross Whittaker of the San Francisco detective force, and an officer of Los Angeles, took up a watch in the postoffice and express offices at that point. All three were furnished with photographs and accurate descriptions of Sly. On the afternoon of Saturday Mr. Pinkerton observed a man in the postoffice at Los Angeles who answered the description of Sly and resembled the old photograph which he had closely. Tapping him on the shoulder and stepping up and taking his hand, so that he could not attempt to use a gun, as Sly is a desperate character, Mr. Pinkerton addressed him by the name of Sly.

Sly denied his identity, and said his name was A. S. Denton. That settled it in Mr. Pinkerton's mind at once, for Sly's right name is Albert Denton Sly. He was at once taken into custody and searched. In his possession was found $2,000 and a lot of personal property, and on his person was found the gold watch taken from the person of Messenger Mulrennan of the Adams Express, after he had been injured by the explosion of dynamite at the robbery November 30, at Glendale, Mo. Sly tried to throw the watch away, but it was recovered by Pinkerton.

The search of the house on Swan avenue gave Chief Harrigan positive evidence against the thieves, as in the house was found parts of paper and other evidence taken from the express car which had not been thoroughly destroyed.

The finding of the messenger's watch in Sly's pocket fixes the crime onto him very strongly.

Abelbert D. Sly, who is better known in the crook fraternity as Bert Sly, is a native of Wisconsin, was born and raised near Oshkosh. After committing the express robbery in St. Joseph, for which he was sent to the penitentiary in 1884, his family moved to St. Joseph, Mo., where they now reside. Since his release from the penitentiary in Missouri he has been twice in custody in St. Joseph, once for highway robbery and once for burglary, and he is at the present time a fugitive from justice from St. Joseph, where his wife and three children now reside. His father and mother now live at Independence, Mo. His avowed ambition was to be a second "Jesse James." The desperado is 45 year of age, five feet six and a half inches high, weighs 140 pounds, dark complexion, brown eyes and black hair, and generally wears a dark mustache. He has a scar above the left eye and two fine lines about upper teeth. Aside from his daring and his utter disregard of the distinction of meum and tuum, his most notable characteristic is his singularly abstemious habits.

Mrs. James M. Muehler, living at the south end of Happy Hollow, died last evening from typhoid fever. The deceased leaves a husband and five children, the oldest of which is only nine years old. The funeral will be held to-morrow at 10 o'clock from the house.

Terms of District Court.

Following is the order of Judge Chapman, setting the dates of the district court for the ensuing year: Pursuant to the provisions of the statutes of the state of Nebraska, I the undersigned, hereby fix and appoint the time of holding the regular terms of the district court in and for the several counties, composing the second judicial district of said state for the year 1892.

In the county of Cass, Monday the 11th day of March; Monday the 23rd day of May; Monday the 19th day of September.

In the county of Otoe, Monday, the 15th day of February; Monday the 20th day of June; Tuesday the 8th day of November.

Witness my hand this 1st day of January 1892.

SAMUEL CHAPMAN, Judge of the district court, second judicial district of Nebraska.

Senators Perkins.

Governor Humphrey, of Kansas, yesterday appointed Hon. Bishop W. Perkins, of Oswego, Kansas senator to succeed the late Senator Plumb. Senator Perkins was born in Rochester, Loraine county Ohio October 18, 1842, and graduated at Knox college, Galesburg, Ohio in 1862. He served through the war of the rebellion with credit to himself. The appointment is conceded to be a wise one.

Nemaha county secured the coveted prize given by Nebraska State Teachers Association to the county, having present and enrolling the largest percentage of teachers. Nemaha county had sixty-two of ninety required to fill her schools, a percentage of 69. The prize was an elegant silk flag and was presented by President Andrews to Superintendent Pierson.

Stephen Wiles lost a cow in a somewhat peculiar manner a few days ago. It seems that he has a well on his place which he keeps covered up with boards, and the cow, while trying to walk over it, fell through. The animal was quite a valuable one.

Myron E. Wheeler retired yesterday from his position as deputy state auditor in charge of the insurance department to become stenographer for Judge Hall of the district court and Auditor Benton has appointed Hon. H. A. Babcock to succeed him. Mr. Babcock having been state auditor himself is a fact that the insurance department will be in good hands.

The Epworth League gave quite a novel entertainment at the residence of S. A. Davis last evening. The first part of the program consisted of declamations and music. A duet by Miss Gass and Hattie Sullivan was particularly well rendered. The last number, on the program was an old-fashioned picture album, the members of the league assuming the parts of the pictures.

The Oxford Dance.

One of the most pleasant dancing parties of the season was given New Year's eve under the auspices of the Oxford dancing club. The music was furnished by the Italian orchestra of Omaha. Rockwood hall presented a fine appearance, being elegantly decorated by the members of the club. There were two programs; the first one the gentlemen had charge of up till twelve. At five minutes of twelve the orchestra played a waltz and the party waltzed the old year out and the new year in, after which the ladies took charge of the dance, and the other program was carried out. The dance concluded at 2:30 all going to their respective homes well satisfied with the evening's entertainment.

Following is a list of those present: Mr. and Mrs. Sam Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Coursey, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Barker, Will Studelman, Will Clements, Rob Miller, Chas. Sherman, Chas. Murphy, A. V. Burke, John Donlan, Frank Johnson, Henry Tartsch, Logan Brown, Tom Parmele, John Schulhoff, Cliff Shepherd, J. F. Wellington, Rob Crozier, Lew O'Neill, Rudolph Rubens, Arch Coleman, Al Perrie, Chas. Richey, John Langston, Elmer Cole, Chas. Spencer, Niel Coffey, Will Richardson, Paul Ward, Emil Ward, Fred Fitch, Harry Goss, Ernie McCoy, Rob Coverdale, Bartlett and Harry Phelps. Among the ladies were the following: Maggie Oliver, Hattie Rubner, Flora Deonau, Annie Moore, Naud Moore, Doris Fricke, Frankie Selles, Edith White, Ella Wright, Bertha Wise, Maud Vivian, Marion Housewirth, Miss Verigg, Hattie Latham, Treasa Hempel, Miss O'Neill, Georgia Oliver, Ida Boeck, Alice Eikenbary, Miss Hanna, Nettie Ballance, Menota Eikenbary, Carrie Gruesel, Nae Dutton, Annie Coffey, Miss Kew, Kate Hempel, Jessie McCoy, Miss Redfield, Mary Skiles, Lizzie Miller, Annie Carmack, Laura Phelps, Ella Clark, Bertha Niska, Della Tartsch and Dora Herold.

Family Reunion.

A family reunion was held at the commodious residence of Timothy Clark yesterday. And also a sumptuous dinner was served. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Chaburn, of Wymore; Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Myers, Mr. and Mrs. Byron Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Murphy, T. K. Clark, of Weeping Water; Mrs. Woods and children, of Weeping Water, and Rea Howe, of Omaha.

Bro. W. A. Keithley less than three months ago located in Denver and established a job printing office at Five Points. We have just received the first number of the Saturday Review, a small paper he has established. The paper gives indications of a healthy patronage and the publisher assures the patrons that the paper will grow as the business demands.—Weeping Water Republican.

Otto a Voter.

A large number of young people gathered at the home of Otto Herold Thursday evening and reminded him of the fact that he had reached his majority. And to show him that they were not unmindful of his personal comfort, presented him with a handsome rocker. The evening was pleasantly passed with games and music. At midnight a sumptuous feast was served, of which all partook with hearty relish. The company did not disband until 1892 had been several hours on its way.

CARRIED MESSAGES.

MESSINGER BOYS WHO HAVE ACQUIRED FAME AND WEALTH.

Messrs. Carnegie, Oliver, Pittcairn, McCargo and Moreland Were Youngsters in a Pittsburg Telegraph Office Together—How They Were Promoted.

The story of five messenger boys begins in the early days of telegraphy. In a dingy office in Pittsburg, about 1848, Andrew Carnegie, Henry W. Oliver, Robert Pittcairn, Major William C. Moreland and David McCargo were messengers. It is said that they took the opposite of other boys and spent their spare moments in learning useful lessons. Andrew Carnegie is the oldest of the lot, and he was the smartest, leading all in learning how to telegraph. He was one of the first operators in the country to learn to take the Morse system by sound, which in those days was considered a remarkable achievement. It did not take Thomas A. Scott long to snatch Mr. Carnegie from the telegraph office in Pittsburg into his office as private secretary when the great railroad genius took charge of the Pittsburg end of the road. The education the young Scotloman received from a greater mind lifted him from a secretary's seat into the place of division superintendent when Mr. Scott was made vice president of the railroad. The industry, the subtle cunning and exacting faith of Scott taught him to lay his lines in other directions than watching the divisions of a railroad, and Scott helped him. His place gave him the opportunity to look into other lines of industry, and he drove a drift into an iron mill. His pickax was not large, but his cunning and thrift made up for the size of his ax. J. Edgar Thomson, who was the president of the Pennsylvania railroad, then gave a great name and money to the world now dominated by Mr. Carnegie. At that time Colonel Scott was a power in the nation as well as the railroad, and Carnegie began to gather wealth.

MR. CARNEGIE'S EARLY AMBITION.

"My ambition in those days," he said recently, "was to write for newspapers. I took in material in that direction whenever it was possible. I haunted the public library in Allegheny, and caught on to the fact that a distinction was made by the attendants between the poor boys and the sons of well to do parents. It made me indignant. I wrote my first public letter to the board of control, and a change was ordered. This result more than ever resolved me to follow journalism, but an accident drifted me elsewhere, and I became a manufacturer."

Thrift and industry were the dericks which lifted Harry W. Oliver out of the telegraph chair next to Mr. Carnegie and made him a clerk for a big iron firm. He is an Irishman, with a head full of cunning about the business economies of life. It did not take long for him to realize the possibilities of the iron trade, and one day a slick working block and tackle hoisted him out of his seat at the desk in the big firm's workshop and landed him in a business that has since grown to be one of the greatest concerns in the world. He has grown very rich, and one railroad and seven manufacturing concerns now feel the touch of his hand.

Another Scotchman of the famous five is Robert Pittcairn, who sits in the seat once occupied by Colonel Tom Scott and Mr. Carnegie. He went from a telegraph chair into the railroad business, and he has been a master in all the best conditions of railroad life. He is many times a millionaire, but he lives for his railroad, although interested, like Mr. Oliver, in many large manufacturing enterprises. He does the work of about three men every day, and takes recreation only when he wants to talk with a big friend or indulge with his countrymen in the melodies of Scotland. He has denied himself promotion many times, because he likes to cling to the location where he began as a messenger boy and has had so many triumphs.

A TRIUMPH IN TELEGRAPHY.

The fourth member of the group is David McCargo, the general manager of the Allegheny railroad. His strong Scotch character lifted him into big railway concerns early. He left the telegraph office soon after the other boys and took a place on the railway.

"Think of it," said Major William P. Moreland, the last, but not least, of the famous five. "I stood at the key with Carnegie, Oliver, Pittcairn, McCargo, and heard the first message pass over the wires that was sent between the north and south. James D. Reid, who was general superintendent; David Brooks, now living in Philadelphia, and Jackson Duncan, of Cincinnati, had charge of the experiment. We had to work on short circuits in those days, and we thought it was impossible to send a message to New York from New Orleans. Brooks and Reid walked over and inspected the line from the Crescent City to Pittsburg. After arriving here and assuring themselves that the line was perfect, the effort was ordered and every telegraph operator on the line, and in fact the whole country, was waiting in suspense to know the success or failure of the effort. Every magnet was adjusted, and every electrician on the line stood at his key listening for the result. At the signal New York called Philadelphia, the Quaker City signaled Harrisburg, and then in quick succession Pittsburg, Cincinnati, Louisville and New Orleans were opened to the metropolis. No one drew a breath scarcely until the tick came, and in a minute an unbroken message was sent between the north and south. That may seem primitive in these days, when there is no measuring electric power; but then it was the talk of the nation. This is a bit of untold history; but I shall never forget that hour."—New York Sun.
