A Citizen's View of Main St.

ANOTHER ATTENDS COURT.

MAIN STREET.

Main street, of this city is, as it has been from time immemorial, an eyesore to the citizen and the business man.

It has been suggested that the board of trade visit Kansas City, that they might observe what a city with pluck and energy can accomplish.

It is needless. Our board of trade have not the grasp to catch on to anything with such gigantic proportions as Kansas City.

It would be better for Kansas City to visit Perual. For the past three years cellars have been filled with water, mud-holes have festered all summer on Main street, scales have put in their unsightly appearance, while boxes, waste paper, plows, wagons, ashes and garbage find a resting place in the street.

With these things the city council has arrested and accomplished nothing. A few of the business men have ripped the scales, and there the improvement stopped. Is it not possible to widen the sidewalks to twenty feet, and thus give room for the merchants to expose their stock in trade and still have space for pedestrians to walk on the sidewalks without running against plows, wheelbarrows and barbed wire?

Paye Main street to Seventh; fix Fifth street and shut up the unsightly hole there, and let us purge, leave sick and live cleanly.

OUR JURY SYSTEM.

It has long been a question in the minds of the legal fraternity and all sensible men who have given thought to the matter, whether in this enlightened age the "trial by jury" was the bulwark of American liberty, and it has been concluded that if that was the only protection of our Magna Carta, that the rights of person and property were held by a very slight tenure. There was a sample of our jury system in our district court a day or so ago.

"The twelve men, good and true," proceeded to listen to the evidence in the case of Holmes vs. Bailey, and upon their retiring it was discovered that there were some at least who could scarcely understand the English language, while one man was unable to read the judges charge intelligibly.

Now, we do not mean to say that our friends from abroad are not honest men, but we do say that when a jury sits to hear evidence and to determine the rights of property, that they should be able to understand distinctly every word spoken by the witness. And while we do not mean to criticize the penmanship of the honorable judge, yet we say that when the law compels the court to make a charge in writing, that he cannot be expected to write in such a manner that men who are not experts can get the entire meaning of the charge. The court cannot make up his charge until he hears the evidence, and hence when he is compelled to write his charge he must necessarily be brief and hurried in his writing and composition. Why is it that the court cannot instruct the jury orally, thus enter more into detail into the points of law involved in the case? It is the custom in almost all other states, and has been so always. Why not in Nebraska? Why not dispense with juries in all civil cases and try them to the court? If we elect judges we have entire confidence in their honesty, and as for me I would rather have one honest, intelligent man than a dozen honest men who know nothing of the rules either of law or evidence.

Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine.

For delightful, edifying and instructive reading, this magazine is not excelled by any of its contemporaries, and the June number, in these respects, we think, could scarcely be surpassed.

The following admirable articles are profusely illustrated: "What is the Baptist Church?" by Rev. Dr. Chamberlain, being a continuation of "Religious Denominations in the United States," "Among the Natives of the North," (No. II) by Lieutenant Schwatka; "The Other Side of Greek History, Ancient and Modern," by Rev. Wilbur F. Crafts; "Sacred Musicians of the Nineteenth Century," by Alfreton Hervey; "The American Pilgrim in Palestine," by E. De Leon, etc. There are articles by the editor, Dr. Tallmage, on the late Alexander H. Stephens and Peter Cooper, and a sermon in the Home Pulpit. "The Clodless Horning." There are also articles, essays, stories and poems by Adelaide Stout, Ida Hervey, Olive M. Birrell, Rev. W. W. DeHart, S. T. B., Mrs. W. Fawcett, Rev. E. Payson Hammond, etc., etc., and a most interesting miscellany. Price 35 cents, or $3 a year, postpaid. Address, Mrs. Frank Leslie, publisher, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, New York.

How like the supposed sepulchral tones which break over the walls of the damned comes the devil's cry of 'Tory!' The editor has gone away, the scribbler about town, who is always ready to throw off an item to help out, away fishing, and a head on you which aches like a catarrh, and unable to do anything, but wish that printers' devils were all in the street, yet we must write copy; so here it goes.

It is night; that it was, last night; the chilly blast of the north wind causes them to cuddle close together, and he was saying much that was calculated to induce the belief that he was washed on his girl, while she was looking up in his face with the same confidence that a young gosling bestows upon the mother goose, and while his heart was surging and thumping against his vest, he says: "If you, fair Kestrel, will bestow your affections upon me, it would indeed be a boon to me. While he stammers and hesitates, she says: "Oh, Ephraim, do not mind the wood-sled, but go on with your pretty talk." Today there is a coolness between the two. She wonders if his screeking boots were too tight, or if she hurt his feelings.

The Dorchester Star has been resuscitated, and makes its appearance guided by J. Frank Longnecker. It swings the anti-monopoly banner full size. He ought to change his own name though to be consistent, for we think he has a monopoly on name. However, J. Frank will give me a live paper at Dorchester, and the Herald extends the hand of fellowship and wishes the Star all the prosperity it deserves.
