Large assortment of 5 and 10c Sheet Music at Phil Young's.

The Lancaster county convention (Republican) has given Judge Pound a solid delegation for district Judge this is right and will receive the approbation of Cass County.

Ladies should remember if they want any thing in the line of Scrap Books, Scrap Book Pictures, Novelty pictures for decorating your parlors, sitting or dining rooms. You will find a large assortment of the latest designs at Phil Young's.

For some time a Dramatic Club has been spoken of in this town, and last night a few met and decided to commence business. They intend to play the Staff of Diamonds, and then will organize a club where all the talent in town will be needed.

All Ladies wishing any sheet music or music Books will do well to call on Phil Young who makes that line a specialty and will give a discount to music Teachers.

While Henry McMaken was at work on High School hill yesterday afternoon with his matched sorrel horses, on a scraper, the team backed on to the scraper cutting one of the hind legs nearly off from one of them.

Phil Young has a full line of Whisk Brooms and Feather Dusters.

We noticed our jolly democratic friend Doc. Wallace in attendance upon yesterday's convention. The Dr. examined the patient taking pulse and temperature and reported every thing in "apple pie order" the only fault the Dr. has is his being a stout democrat and although he is a little Savage just now. The HERALD rises to say that he is a good democrat all the same.

If you want any Combs, Hair Brushes and mirrors you will find a full line at Phil Young's.

Dr. Schildknecht informs us that the contract for the erection of his new office, was let yesterday to Peter Bates. He also says that in the adjustment of his loss, he got all the insurance he carried on his building, and $75 on the contents, making nearly $700 in all and expresses himself as perfectly satisfied. His loss, over and above his insurance, is estimated at $800. The doctor says he is slightly disabled, but "still in the ring."

Phil Young sells the Fountain Fine Cut Tobacco.

Salt Creek precinct presented the name of E. C. Coleman for county commissioner yesterday. Mr. Coleman is an old resident of Cass county, and a number one business man, who would have made the county a good commis sioner; and while Mr. Coleman was not personally an applicant for the nomination, he had many friends and neighbors both at home and throughout the county, who would have been well pleased to see him upon our ticket for county commissioner.

Try Phil Young's 5c "Cheroots" best in the market.

It is told on Judge Vanatta that he concluded the Gibbon House at Weeping Water was not run on the right principles, so he put a "plug" in the water tank in the wash room. The water is kept in a large tank, which is not provided with a cover, a fact the Judge found out for himself, and when he went in to wash, he took off his glassy, silk tile, and carefully set it up on top of the tank, as he supposed. When it disappeared and fell with a splash into the water some two feet below, the Judge's feelings can be better imagined than described. You couldn't tell what he thought by what he said.

If you want a good smoke for 5c go and buy your Cigars at Phil Young's.

Ghosts and Hobgoblins.

The room where Mettzer was killed has been occupied for some time by a well to do colored barber, but on yesterday he removed to other quarters.

A HERALD reporter dropped in to find out the cause of the aforesaid c. b.'s change from commodious rooms and good location to one in every way inferior. We were not a little surprised to find that the "debbil" was at the bottom of it. The c. b. stated as a matter of fact that he and his family had not been able to get any rest at night for some time on account of some horrid groans and manifestations of displeasure on the part of the spirits.

He said his head was so sore from having his hair pulled by some invisible agency, that he could scarcely wear his hat. In talking over the matter the darkey fairly trembled with excitement. The tale he told was harrowing in the extreme. Among other things he said: "My boy come running to me de other night and says, 'Did you call me?' I told him no; somebody shook me and woke me up and said you wanted me." I says, "No, souny, you go back to bed and go to sleep." Before I got to sleep I heard de most dismal groans, and (turning on his heel and snapping his fingers), "Dat settled it; no more sleep for me dat night." They have heard all the necessary noises for a first-class haunted building, and concluded an other location would be safer to live and do business in. The c. b. is a firm believer in spirits, (departed), and will authenticate this narration on application.

WEeping WATER VS. UNION PACIFIC.

The South Platte Champions Play A good Game but go down.

Considerable interest has been felt for some time in the game played yesterday at Omaha between these two clubs, as they have both won so many games this season. Some four or five hundred people witnessed the struggle for supremacy, which resulted so disastrously for the South Platte boys. The pitcher and catcher and one, or two other men in the Weeping Water nine did good work, but their falling seemed to be at the bat, the Weeping Water club claim to be the champions of Nebraska and went to Omaha in high hopes of defeating the U. P.s, but the score of tallies was 8 to 0 in favor of the U. P.

SIGHT-SEEING IN THE WEST.

The B. & M. Band's Excursion to Denver and the Rockies.

Having received a kind invitation from F. H. Wilson, Assistant Secretary of the Denver Mining and Industrial Exposition, to attend and witness the wonderful sights now on exhibition there, and being provided with passes from Mr. Holdrege, Ass't Gen'l Manager of the B. & M. R. R., the members of the B. & M. Band, numbering twelve men, started for the Far West, on Tuesday of last week, dressed in full uniform, and properly equipped for a long and tedious journey.

Leaving Plattsmouth on the morning of that day, we were somewhat inconvenienced by an overcrowded train, but this difficulty was removed on reaching Lincoln, and from there on to the end of the journey we had plenty of elbow room, and gave the passengers the benefit of our superior accommodations by frequent and well appreciated bursts of music, all along the route, until we reached Red Cloud, when night had set in, and we were compelled to shut ourselves up like jack knives and get as much repose as the limited space of a smoking car would permit. But the boys felt happy, nevertheless, under the circumstances, looking forward with great eagerness to what the morrow would reveal. And so the night passed, through the sandy plains from McCook onward and into the great State of Colorado, now and then leaving our comfortable quarters (between two of the seats), to shake the sand from our persons, until we reached Fremont Buttes, where we witnessed one of the grandest sights a mortal could wish for, being nothing less than a Colorado sunrise, such as must be seen to be appreciated. Rising under a thin bank of clouds, and when the same became fully visible in the east, a magnificent rainbow appeared, the prismatic colors winding and weaving among the rifts of clouds and the vapors, and above that the clear blue morning sky, furnishing as grand a sight as was ever beheld. Shortly afterwards we got the first glimpse of the snow capped crests of Long's and Gray's peaks, being then within 110 miles of Denver, and this explained the formation of the rainbow at sunrise—the reflection of the sun's light from the snowy peaks. But the sight of that sunrise was such as to impress us all with its grandeur, and will ever be remembered.

We reached Denver at 8:30 a. m. of the next day, and were received at the depot by Frank H. Wilson, and escorted to the St. James Hotel, where we were hospitably entertained during our stay. Denver at once started us by its vastness and grand business blocks, chief among which may be mentioned the Tabor Opera House, the Tabor block, the Court House, and many others, and not least among them the Union Depot, an immense structure, built entirely of granite, and presenting a picturesque appearance. But no need to describe Denver; it has been written up so often and by able pens, that any further description would be superfluous. Allow us, though, to mention incidentally, that amongst her new and late ventures Denver has gone to boring for Artesian wells, and with the greatest success. Your correspondent witnessed the workings of a well on the Court House Square, where a boring had been made of 560 feet in depth, yielding a strong magnetic water, highly agreeable to the taste, and very clear. The magnetic properties of this water are such that when a knife blade is dipped in the water for the space of three minutes, tacks, small nails, and other light iron articles can be lifted easily, and the blade will retain its magnetic power for several days afterward. Already other similar wells have been sunk by private individuals, and others are talked of, so that eventually, Denver, through sufficiently provided now, will have more water than any other city in the United States. The water works authorities are naturally alarmed at the state of affairs, and water rents have been reduced to less than one-half of the former rates.

The Denver Mining and Industrial Exposition is really something grand, and has never been exaggerated in the least in any of the accounts given in the HERALD's columns, by D. W. M., the special correspondent from that city. The exhibition of ores and mining implements, machinery, etc., from all parts of the Union, is probably the greatest sight to be seen there, though every other branch of industry is fully represented and of high merit. Among the ores we were shown by our affable entertainer, F. H. Wilson, a solid piece of silver quartz, weighing about 250 pounds, and valued at $1,000. Friday last was Summit county day, when a delegation of miners and mine owners from that county paid a visit in a body to the Exposition, and of course lauded their own productions to the sky and displayed them to their best advantage. The boys were kindly remembered by them with a 50 pound chunk of silver ore, which they brought home with them. A smaller piece was also presented to them by Mrs. Mary Smith, who, it is admitted, was the first and only female prospector in that county, and who today owns one of the finest silver bearing mines in that country. Mrs. Smit kindly narrated to us her experiences as a miner, she doing all her own work, mining in the winter, and gardening and doing household work during the summer months. She also had several halfbrother escapades from bears and other monsters.
