—The B. & M. band discoursed sweet music for about an hour last night in front of Morrison & Thornburg's Bon Ton restaurant.

—The company to play "We, Us & Co." will arrive on the 6:10 train this evening and will present the play at the opera house in grand style.

—Main street, and in fact most all the streets were very disagreeable to-day on account of the dust. The sprinklers would do good service on such days.

—The sociable given by the Y. W. C. T. U., last evening at the home of C. E. Wescott was a pleasant success. The parlors were filled to overflowing by young people, and refreshments of cake and coffee were served on shingles. The evening was spent in lively games and will reflect credit on the young ladies of the union.

—A. O'Leary, M. D., who was here about five years ago and gave such an interesting series of lectures on anatomy, physiology, hygiene etc., arrived in this city last evening and will commence a series of lectures on the same subject next Wednesday evening which will be illustrated with maps, pictures, marikins and models.

DIED.—Charles Henry Farnsworth, of Elmwood, age 30 years, 2 months and 8 days, died Saturday, Oct. 30th, 1887, at 4:15 p. m., of typhoid-malaria, fever accompanied with a general congestion, and was buried Wednesday at 11 in the Elmwood cemetery, services being conducted at the Christian church by Elder Sumpter, assisted by Rev. Bird and Elder Cyrus Alton.

—This morning just before train time a HERALD representative while waiting on the depot platform heard a great hubbub and loud talking in the baggage room and stepping around that way found an excited traveling man seated on a box, talking in an emphatic manner to a few bystanders. A few moments of patient listening disclosed the fact that the man had called at the post office for his mail.

—The dance given at Fitzgerald's hall last night was a complete success. The following is a list of those present, the music being furnished by the Bohemian band: Messrs T. Phillips, C. The Home for the Feeble Minded at Beatrice a Poor Job.

The Beatrice Express complains very bitterly against the loose and careless manner in which the stone and mortar to be used in building the state home for the feeble minded at that place is being heaped together.

The following is clipped from an article in the Express concerning the structure:

"In places, and there are many, the walls show gaping holes that it is expected to be filled with mortar and rubble stone, but which will detract rather than add strength and solidity.

There is no uniformity in the cutting of the stone. Window caps and sills vary greatly in thickness from end to end.

The joints are not broken and in places can be seen continuous seams running from the foundation to the water table, and cracks in the walls are inevitable, as in fact one corner of the foundation wall which now only bears the weight of the partly completed superstructure is already cracked.

Standing on the inside of the building one can look in any direction and see the rough, ragged, and irregular surface of the most miserable specimen of masonry that ever disgraced a community or state.

In places such large stones are used on the outside that scarcely two or three inches of space is left for "backing up" and it looks as though the workmen, not having stone of the required size at hand, have used brick for the purpose set on edge.

Again, who ever saw or heard of a contractor carrying up one side of the wall of a building at a time, as Long & Krone are here doing?

Instead of excavating to the same depth all around the building for the foundation, in places the same describes an absolute step up. What does this create but a weak spot that is sure to create a crack in the wall?

The half cannot be told of the unsoundness of the work and needs to be seen to be even faintly understood.

Stop the work at once, and if the contractors are not held responsible by a sufficient bond, let it be placed in hands that will secure the completion of the structure as it should be.

Mr. C. A. Sweet of this city, who is superintending the work, when his attention was called to certain defects in the construction, admitted that such existed, but excused himself and the contractors by saying that the specifications called for such work, and said that Mr. F. M. Driscoll, the architect, was to blame for them. Be that as it may, somebody is certainly at fault, and the Express calls for an investigation that the blame may be placed where it belongs, and the remedy if there is any, applied."

—Plattsmouth is enjoying a season of rest from police court proceedings. Marshal Medick informs us that in all his official career he has never noticed so little drunkenness as has occurred in the last two months.

TO THEIR TASKS AGAIN.

The Women of the Home Missionary Society Separate for Their Various Fields.

SARATOGA, N. Y. Nov. 2.—The convention closed last night, Boston to be its next place of meeting. Baltimore sent a cordial invitation to have the next meeting held there and we had to rise and "be counted" three times before we could tell which point had the preference.

Mrs. Ruthford B. Hayes was again unanimously chosen president, and Mrs. R. S. Rust cor. sec.

During the last afternoon session greetings were received from Mrs. C. S. Grant and regrets that she could not be present.

The society has greatly enlarged upon its plan of work and taken up new fields. This year we will build an emigrant's home in Castle Garden N. Y., take up work in Glasco, New Mexico and among the Indians in Colorado.

Your correspondent represented the needs of our frontier work which appeal to the people pledged to hear them. Spending in Brown memorial chapel in the remaining also representing the west field on Tuesday night in the First M. E. church.

The Woman's Home Missionary society concluded its interesting and profitable session in this city last evening, but various committees were in secret session until midnight in order to complete their work so as to leave for their homes early this morning. A number of delegates will remain in town long enough to accept chancellor Sim's invitation to attend chapel services in the University to-day. Rev. Charles Buchanan dismissed the convention at the First M. E. church last night with a prayer.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

Two months of school have passed and the teachers are once more made happy by the advent of pay day. I have sometimes wondered if our Plattsmouth teachers teach merely for the money or if they are philanthropical inclined and teach the rising generation for the love they bear them. But be that as it may, money is needed to keep the teacher alive just as much as it is needed by any other class of people, and still they (the teachers) are generally the most poorly paid for their work, considering the time necessary to qualify themselves for the duties of the position. The carpenter receives his three and four dollars a day, the backlayer receives five and six dollars. You may say these are skilled laborers, so is the teacher a skilled laborer. But the best business man you have in town in the school room for one day—in the first primary, if you choose—and see what would be the effect. He would not stay another day for $20. And still the teacher is expected to remain there day after day and month after month, waiting away her strength and patience for a mere pittance. And further by comparing Plattsmouth with other towns in the state I find our teachers are among the poorest paid. Why is this? Are we not going to properly educate our children? For pay certainly means poor teachers and consequently poor schools. I have often wondered how the Plattsmouth schools have attained such a high rank among the schools of the state when she is so persistent in paying poor salaries. The only theory I can give for this is the fact that the town is fortunate in retaining one of the ablest of men as its superintendent.

I hear considerable complaint from business men about town of certain boys who have a habit of leaning about the store smoking, swearing and in other ways making themselves disagreeable. It is my opinion that for such boys our compulsory educational law should be enforced. If our common schools can do them no good they should be sent to the reformatory. It is getting so bad one can hardly go along the street without being insulted by these boys.

I have often noticed that those boys who play at home nights help their parents and read the newspapers and other good periodicals, are the ones who are always foremost in their classes and when they grow to manhood I certainly believe will make the best men—the men upon whom we may depend, the men who will step forward and take the helm of government when the helmsmen of the present day have retired. Let us, then, teachers and parents, inspire the boys to stay at home, to read proper literature and to make men of themselves.

At a meeting held last night of the Omaha national prohibition committee the following letter was drafted and ordered sent to the members of the general committee:

CHAMBERLAIN, Neb., Nov. 5, 1887. The republican members of the state convention, in favor of locating the national republican convention in Omaha, 1888, a request has been secured by the board of trade and city committee on Omaha, and committees have been appointed to make arrangements to hold the same and place the advantages and claims of Omaha before the convention.

As a preliminary step the committee take the duty of making an individual appeal to the members and respectfully call your attention to the following facts: Omaha is located in the geographical center of the continent, and is accessible to every part of the country. The twelve trunk lines of railway with their 112 passenger trains arriving and departing each day afford facilities to all who may desire to attend the convention. Within a population of over 100,000 Omaha is the best paved city in the west, and with her broad streets, boulevards and parks, one of the handsomest cities in America. Ample hotel facilities and restaurants for all who may come are to be found here. The exposition building will furnish blocks of the principal hotels with seats for 10,000 people.

The proposition of Omaha in detail will be presented to the national committee at its December meeting. Should you desire information in any way it will be furnished with pleasure. We hope you will give Omaha a favorable consideration and we shall be pleased to hear from you at the earliest. Yours respectfully, H. H. MEDAY, Chairman DANIEL H. WAREHAM, Secretary.
