CITY CORDIALS.

-We are sorry to learn that the wife of Rev. Hampton has not yet realized any marked change for the better, and is today very low.

-The Children's Day entertainment which was to be held next Sunday at the M. E. church has been postponed until the following Sunday.

-Messrs. Jas. Antill, L. C. Mercer and F. J. Bremer went to Omaha this morning in the interests of the A. O. U. W. to make arrangements for running excultat of trains in the city on the 13th inseve the day of the A. O. U. W. picnic.

-Dr. Schildknecht has improved the appearance of his office and residence considerable by the addition of a good quantity of loud colored paint. It has made quite a marked improvement, and we coagratulate the doctor on the fine appearance of his house.

The wedding of Mr. Jesse L. Root and Miss Evelyn Wise will take place this evening at nine o'clock at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. J. N. Wise, postmaster. They are both popular young people here, and we join in with their numerous friends in wishing for them a bright and prosperous future.

-Mr. Henry Waterman, and family. who left here a sew days ago en route to New York, missed their train east from Chicago which occasioned an inconvenient delay. But not being able to remedy their misfortune, made the best of it, and, after registering at the Palmer House, took advantage of their opportunity of viewing the great metropolis of the west, which attempt, we learned, they were successful in. They also visited Niagara Falls, spending a day there.

-A very pleasant surprise party was afforded Mrs. J. C. Eikenbary by her husband and a large number of her friends. After Mr. Eikenbary had invited some of their friends to be present at his house that evening and made all the necessary arrangements for a lively time, he invited his wife to take a drive in the country, which she did, and after remain-the boy, Mr. Stephen A. Davis, pushed his hand into the grain and felt a foot. Almost the first words he uttered were: "I wonder if that is my boy in there," and shuddered for fear it might be so. He tried every way to extricate him but found it impossible. Messrs. Sig Green and Frank Manley, seeing that some one appeared to be in serious trouble came to his assistance. They secured an ax and chopped away the boards letting the grain come out and with it came the reality of the father's, gravest expectations, his boy. The father became frantic when he realized the fact that his only boy who had been playing around there in good spirits just a few minutes, (probably ten or fifteen) was dead. Livingston, Siggins and others worked with him, applying batteries, rubbing him and trying to get his lungs into operation, for some time, but all in vain. Slight hopes were entertained when he was brought into the office, as he was quite cold then. The body was then re moved to the carriage for the purpose of taking it to his home on Pearl street. What a sad sight it must have been when the poor boy's remains were carried in before his mother who has been very sick for some time and has not yet recovered. As he was the only boy in the family, it is feared the shock may prove very se vere to his mother.

"Flower Mission Day."

Tomorrow is "Flower Mission Day," when something white, something bright and something sweet, tied with a tiny white ribbon and a little scripture card attached, will be given to every inmate of the poor farm and jail and also to all the sick in the city.

Meeting of Young Republicans. The Young Men's Republican club held meeting last evening in the county judge's office. Further arrangements were made for the coming banquet of the club. It was decided to hold the banquet Thursday evening July 12th in Waterman opera house, and the admission tickets placed at $1 each as before. A change is noticeable in this year's banquet, in the fact that the club have decided to admit ladies to the entertainment. This will no doubt prove of benefit to all and enliven the scene, and no doubt the presence of many of the bright happy faces of our fair ones will enthuse not only the boys but the distinguished sadder scene never was witnessed by any speakers who will be present upon the ocone, and in a short time the whole crowd casion. The various committees were instructed to push matters in their respective lines, and the Pioneer Republican Club of Nebraska will no doubt meet with another success this year as great if had no possible chance of escape not greater than it has during the past after falling in. News From Sarpy County." Corn is able to be up and is being tenderly plowed by all farmers. The Bellevue college students are champion ball players. They have not been beaten by any nine who have visited them for that purpose.

Papillion is talking jail. It is to be hoped they will succeed in getting one as it is a great expense to the county to send all prisoners to the Omaha jail.

The Bellevue college closes its college year June 14, 1888. There will be commencement exercises in the a. m. and p. m. will be passed in the beautiful grove near the depot. An excellent time is anticipated.

Sarpy county has four weekly papers, Papillion Times, Springfield Monitor, Bellevue Enterprise and Gretna Bemocrat. The latter has just moved from Portal, Neb. It was thought that the Bellevue Enterprise would never survive, but there could not be a livlier httle paper, and it is edited every week.

SUFFERING IN THE SOUTH.

A Woman Tells of the Privations of Families During the War.

"You northerners knew very little about the sufferings that war entails," said a southern woman. "Some of you may have lost money; some surely did lose husbands, sons, brothers or relatives of some degree; but none of you suffered the pangs of hunger, as we did. As the blockade grew tighter and tighter, it was as though a bandage was being tied closer and closer around the neck of each one of us poor dwellers in the south. That cut off our luxuries, that had almost become necessities so much had they become the component parts of our every day meals. Oh, how I have sighed for a cup of real coffee, after drinking deroctions of burnt rye or potatoes. And I used to dream how fragrant a cup of real simon pure tea would be, after sipping for months vile decoctions of sassa-

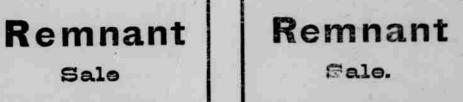

"The army in the field also depleted the land and drew away not only provisions, but the men that might have replenished the storehouses and larders by supervising the work in the fields. The slaves were wonderfully loyal to their masters' households while the masters were away fighting. They worked faithfully, but they could not work as understandingly as when they were directed by their old employers. So the field crops were not as large as usual. And it had always been the curse of the south that it devoted so large a share of its energies to raising cotton. "I remember that when Sherman's army came along many persons, once wealthy and who never knew want, watched till the cavalry horses had left their feeding troughs and then went and picked up the grains of corn the horses had wasted!" "What was the article whose loss troubled vou most?"

"Salt. It grew scarcer and scarcer. After while we boiled the bags in which bacon had been shipped and the coverings of the hams. Then, after the supply was exhausted, the ground under the smoke houses was dug up and mixed with water in huge caldrons, and roaring fires were set going. As the water bubbled up under the fierce heat, we skimmed the salt from the surface. Doubtless much sickness was chargeable to the lack of salt, which could not be procured for love or money." "Did anybody absolutely starve?" "I never saw any statement that anybody actually died in the south for lack of food, but many came very near it. One case that came under my own observation was particularly sad. One lady, with her daughter and two little boys, were left alone upon a farm of 150 acres, the father being absent with the army. This family had eaten everything there was on the farm except one old hen that had escaped the raid of the foraging soldiers by running under the barn. A little corn that had been hidden in the boarding of the barn had at last given out, and the old hen was killed and cooked. There was no salt or pepper with which to season it, but it was set upon the table for what seemed to be the last meal the family would ever eat, when the door was burst open and a party of camp followers swept the fowl from the table and tore it limb from limb. A kind hearted Federal officer came along shortly after and gave the poor woman some rations. Had it not been for his providential appearing she and her little ones must have starved."-New York Press.

ing away all day, returned to find their friends gathered at the house to welcome them. Yesterday was her 39th birthday and the event will ever be remembered by that lady as a most enjoyable one for her.

-" Jim Chambers," a prominent mem ber of the canine fraternity, and a noted "scrapper" of his order, caused some excitement and amusement yesterday through a dislike he had cultivated for one of his brothers, and without giving any warning to his antagonist, jumped onto him and did not let up until his blood-thirsty desire was gratified. "Jim" has added another one to his list of victorious "scraps," giving a very sore head to his opponent. Before he completed his job, however, Will, his guardian, put in an appearance and furnished him with boot ammunition.

-We must have trampled on the toes of the Journal again judging by the pulling of hair we received at their hands | ing made for the funeral, which will take in last evening's issue because we clipped place Sunday at 9 o'clock from the a few lines from the official paper as a report of the last meeting of the city school board. They wish to receive credit for it, and from all appearances worked themselves up to such a state of excitecity. ment that sleep for them last night would certainly have been out of the question. But if they will take a rest for a while and let up crying, we will credit them with the report which we published. They seem to forget the council proceedings they clipped from THE HERALD a short time ago to the extent of about a column and we never even gave them away, and only credited it to their unconscionable gall, never saying a word.

--- A rather painful accident happened yesterday afternoon, the victim being Miss Lena Weckbach, daughter of Mr. Henry Weckbach, a prominent grocer of this city. She and Miss Julia Bilstein had started out late in the afternoon on horseback and had been riding around the streets for some time apparently taking in all that was to be seen and enjoying themselves immensely. As they were moving up Third street in the vicinity of the B. & M. shops with great rapidity, the stirrup attached to Miss Weckbach's saddle broke, throwing her violently to the ground on her left shoulder. She was immediately carried to her home and Dr. R. R. Livingston, sr., soon arrived, and after he had examined her injury. announced that she had broken her collar bone. The injury, though very painful, is not serious, and with the exertion of a little patience, she will come around all right and feel thankful she escaped so narrowly, sudden death. She exhibited great bravery in standing the operation of setting the broken shoulder so well.

We participate with the entire community in extending to the family our sympathy in their sad bereavement. No event has been so sad in the history of our city, and it has cast a gloom over the entire population. Arrangements are be-

The Capriotes of Today.

The inhabitants of Crapi retain many of the peculiarities of their Greek ancestors, as well as much of their beauty. The women are celebrated for their clear cut features, healthy olive complexions, their dark, laughing eyes, and their fine straight forms, which the carrying of burdens on the head tends to increase. Most of the men are away from the island nearly the whole of the year, at sea, either coral fishing or employed in the coasting trade, and for this reason almost all labor is done by women. The Capriote of today is as avaricious as his celebrated ancestor of the Grecian isles, and in making a bargain with him it is necessary to stipulate everything beforehand; even then he will find some excuse to increase the sum agreed upon when the time for payment comes. Quite a number of Englishmen of good families, among them a nobleman, have married Capri girls, owing, no doubt, to their beauty and winning smiles, and have settled down to a "dolce-far-niente" existence on this little island in the tideless summer sea. . It is pleasant to see the strong, healthy looking, handsome girls toiling up the rocky paths, with burdens on their heads, but laughing and chatting with infectious vivacity, and casting a bewitching glance at the tourist, who has come from crowded cities where civilization makes its iron rule felt and cramps or develops our faculties and sensations as it chooses. We cannot help feeling that, after all, we, who are born to a highly civilized life, have not all the good things in this world, as we look back on the struggle for gain or honor among the educated, whose faces are marked with the lines of care and thought, and compare the picture of selfish life in the moder a gain getting countries with the happy "sans souci" existence of all those who have eaten the lotus and dwell on this "bright gem of the sea."-Boston Journal.

Speaking Trumpets for Firemen. If speaking trumpets are of any use I don't see why they are not used more by the firemen. It is a noticeable fact at every fire caused by the difficulty that the men experience in understanding each other amid the roar and confusion of the fire. They are frequently in such a position that motions cannot be distinctly seen or understood, and if the foremen, in particular, would carry trumpets at a fire as well as in a parade, I believe that their work might b) conducted to better advantage.—Buffalo Naws.
