OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY.

A. Salisbury, Dentist, Rockwood Building, Telephone No. 35. Dr. Higgins, Office in Sherwood Block, Residence Cor. Sixth and Granite, Telephone No. 42. Drs. Care & Smith, the Painless Dentists, Union Block, over Citizens' Bank, Plattsmouth.

CITY CORDIALS.

Young people's meeting at the M. E. church this evening at 8 o'clock.

Everybody attend the sociable of the Y. L. R. A. at the residence of Mr. W. S. Wise.

The Glee Club took possession of a rig last night and drove around the city serenading some of their friends.

The Plattsmouth delegation under the head of Messrs. Poissell & Jones, returned from Chicago this morning.

When the republicans get through at Chicago, the democrats will give them a tussle. Dr. Livingston said so.

The meeting of the Alumni society of the High school which was to be held at the residence of Dr. R. R. Livingston, was postponed on account of the non-appearance of a good number of the members.

A blind man who arrived in the city this morning on the eastern bound train had apparently been in trouble on the road. After the porter of the Riddle house had secured his grip, he made him or any other man an offer of $5 if he would thump the conductor of the train he was a passenger on. No one accepted his offer.

Through the good taste of Mr. St. John, our popular express agent here, the office of Wells, Fargo & Co. presents a very much brighter appearance at present. He has thoroughly renovated, painted and decorated it. It is arranged better in every way for an office, and we say Mr. St. John is quite an artist when swinging the brush.

The Y. L. R. A. will give an ice cream and strawberry sociable tonight at the residence of Mr. W. S. Wise. From all appearances at present the evening will be delightful and a large number of both young and old will surely put in an appearance. The lawn will be lighted and decorated, in fine style and everything in readiness for a good time at a reasonable hour. All are cordially invited to participate.

There was a large attendance at the Christian sociable last night at Rockwood hall. The dudes had their dudines there in flying colors, and all apparently enjoyed themselves. The sociable was managed a little different from the usual order, no literary or musical programme being presented. The evening was spent by gratifying a craving for ice cream, strawberries and other luxuries which were served in abundance. The crowd did not disperse until a late hour when all were satisfied with their evening's enjoyment. The sociable was under the auspices of the ladies' society of the Christian church.

Switch engine No. 98, which was just brought from the shops yesterday jumped the track last night about 7:15, at the first switch north of the depot. The tire of one of the driving wheels slipped and threw the engine from the track. They were fortunately running at a slow rate of speed escaping any very serious injury. If the locomotive had moved much further from the track, the tire would surely have been severed from the wheel and no doubt would have caused some bad breaks and also considerable delay. They soon succeeded in getting it back in position again and to the shops where it is now awaiting repairs.

WHAT THE PEOPLE SAY.

Who's "She"?

Will Blaine be nominated?

Why is she coming to Plattsmouth?

Why are the strikers so busy thinking?

Will the bandana man lose his bandana?

Why don't the Wise man move the postoffice?

Why should a man with lots of money want to be rich?

Wonder why it was Cotton never coddled on last night?

Why are people so foolish as to try and keep cool now a days?

What kind of a Fourth of July celebration are we going to have?

When will the base ball boys secure the services of another ball team?

Why don't Ammi Todd take his pants from the front of Donnelly's store?

Why does a man with a large new house wear two pair of pants at once?

Why don't Newberry & Streight dissolve partnership or help each other out?

The dogs which do not pay taxes should not be allowed to howl at night.

Who sent the Poissell and Jones delegation dispatch from Chicago last night?

Who is responsible for the issue of the chewing gum portraits of Cleveland and Thurman?

Why didn't the sheriff of Cass take charge of the Plattsmouth congregation in Chicago?

What's the use of having an election since there are so many good republicans in the field?

Why is George Weidman heard four blocks away when talking confidentially to a friend?

The man who can navigate such a day as today without swimming part of the way is a bird.

How can Grover expect to have so much fun for the next four years at the expense of the nation?

Old satan is a dandy to feed you on on mixed candy, but he lets up feeding and smiles on you when you get hot.

Why did the Poissell-Jones delegation return from Chicago so soon? Was it because they refused the platform?

Will Judge Sullivan have his ballot box in readiness for the coming election? It would settle all disputes which might occur.

Why don't the citizens of Plattsmouth arm themselves against the canine fraternity which howls at night. Dogood if we'll stand it any longer.

The Morning News was crucified and the third year it arose and assumed the name of Evening News. It died a second death the first day, because the Green Mann did not make a Dabb in the right direction.

More Light From the Convention.

The following startling information was received last night which was tacked on the bulletin board with the other dispatches:

7:20 p. m.—A. N. Sullivan, of Plattsmouth, has been in Texas trying to influence the state's choice for Van Wyck Great cheering.

CHICAGO, Ill., June 21.—Bulletin 21—Poissell and Kroehler take the platform amid much enthusiasm—two sprinkling carts and a tank in the procession. A man by the name of Jones called time on them and the chair decided the point well taken. The Plattsmouth contingent subsides.

J. V. WECKBACH.

Will They Celebrate.

The Plattsmouth Herald last Saturday makes a pitiful plea to the citizens of that place to celebrate the 4th, quoting from its issue of that date we find it saying:

Somebody is continually wanting to see if somebody has done anything yet, and when somebody sees that somebody else has been looking to see if somebody has done anything, somebody finally does nothing, and if they only continue to look to see what somebody else does, somebody will certainly get left about the fourth day of July, 1888.

If a grand celebration here is advertised to some extent outside, a large number will certainly come here to see what is going on, if for nothing more than the novelty of seeing Plattsmouth get in motion. Rock Bluffs, Weeping Water and all the great cities in the vicinity of the metropolis of the county are energetic enough to have a time—why can't we? We would like to see Rock Bluffs Weeping Water once over the loss of a celebration which they might have had had it not been for that town up there on the mouth of the Platte.

If nothing is done, a lot of the people will go to Weeping Water and Rock Bluffs to spend their filthy lucre.

If the writer of the above would pack his grip with a boiled shirt and a clean pair of socks, and take a pilgrimage to this city on the 4th, The Eagle will guarantee him a first-class time and entertainment free. A man—especially such a patriotic man is to be pitied for casting his lot among such people. Come here, bring your friends, invite your enemies to come with you, and you will die happy and patriotic.—Cass County Eagle.

Since the quill artist of the Eagle has been so sympathetic since he read the pitiful wail of a Plattsmouth citizen and has generously opened his heart to us, without knowing us, we are waiting for the 4th to roll around that we may take advantage of the kind offer. One thing we do object to, and that is his advice as to wearing apparel. A representative from this office will certainly take the gentleman at his word and accept his kind invitation. If business is booming between this date and the 4th, we may be able to attire as he requests, but if only a half way business should fall to our lot, the boiled shirt may demand the extent of our finances. If our representative is obliged to adopt both socks and shirt—and both clean—he can only anticipate his coming, but if he will kindly drop that clause from the by-law, he might expect him.

At least, we will promise to send one representative from here if you promise not to feel elated over his company and not require so much of him in the line of good clothes.

Ingalls' Command of Language.

The speaker was a general on the Union side in the late war, a native of New York state and a graduate of Union college. He emigrated to Kansas after his graduation from college.

"There was a little crowd of us in Kansas City just before the war," said he, "from the eastern states and graduates of the eastern colleges. We formed a set by ourselves. Some of us were lawyers, some bothering about real estate and town lots, some practicing medicine—all doing something actively; all, I believe, have since attained notoriety in some way or other. Ingalls was a graduate of Williams college. He looked as he does now—thin and spare. He was eccentric in his dress, and always wore something striking. He used to love to wear, I remember, a big red necktie. He was a shy, reserved fellow, and had the reputation of being very cynical. It was said that he lay awake nights polishing his bitter epigrams. He wasn't very popular, and as a lawyer, though he was considered smart, he had only a fair practice.

"I think I came to be as intimate with Ingalls as any of the boys were, and I well remember his telling me one night, as we sat in my room smoking together, the manner in which he was working to secure command of language. He said that it was his practice for an hour or so each day to open Webster's Dictionary at random and run down a column or so of words, carefully studying the meaning of each word and hunting up in the lexicon its derivation and so forth. You know that in explaining the meaning of a great many words the dictionary gives a line or a couplet from Pope or Johnson, or from some one or more of the classic authors, and these quotations Ingalls would often commit to memory, especially if they happened to appeal to his imagination. Then, too, he would look up in Crabbe's synonyms, the words which meant the same, or nearly the same as the word he had in mind, and he would study carefully the nice shades of difference between them all. He told me that so far from finding this work tiresome or disagreeable he took the greatest pleasure in it, and that he knew it did him inestimable benefit. He considered this practice far superior for the purpose of giving one command of his own language, to the old traditional one of translating the Greek and Roman classics into English and of then translating them back again.

"I met Ingalls years afterward, and he told me he was still keeping up the practice. I suppose he is keeping it up now, and that's where his facility of expression comes from."—New York Sun.

A Remedy for Fetid Feet.

A Chicago correspondent writes us for a remedy for perspiration of the feet, complaining that this trouble makes him unduly sensitive. Frequent washing, he asserts, does no good. The disease, for such it really is, may have its origin in the skin, in the glands or in the system, and the cause must first be removed. At least once a day for twice if possible the feet should be soaked in tannin and warm water. Stockings should be changed once or twice daily, and only woolen should be worn. Insoles of felt should be worn and changed with the stockings; they can be wet in chlorinated soda, and then dried for further use. The stockings, when removed, should be dried by the fire.—Herald of Health.

A Church Mouse.

"I want a warrant for the arrest of a hated rival," said a western young man. "I may be poor, but no man can insult me and get away with it."

"What's the trouble?" asked the justice.

"Disturbance. It was at the wedding ceremony. I won the girl and just as I repeated, 'With all my worldly goods I thee endow,' there came from the organ loft in the voice of my hated rival the word 'Hats.' I go on no wedding trip until this thing is settled."—New York Sun.

His Only Vice.

"Has your son any vices, Mr. Blank? Pardon the question, but I like to know all about the boys I take into my office."

"No; Henry has none that I know of, except, perhaps, amateur photography."

"Well, that's a negative sort of a vice. I never met an amateur photographer yet who took anything worth talking about, and I think I may trust your boy. Send him along."—Harper's Bazar.

Less Demand for Guns.

The chairman of the Birmingham Gun-makers' association reports that there has been a decrease of 18,000 proofs as compared with last year, and there is such a depression in the trade as has not existed for twenty-seven years. The demand for high class guns has decreased, owing to the diminished incomes of those who use them. On the other hand 12,000 more revolvers have been sold.—New York Sun.
