OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY.

Dr. Withers, Dentist, Union Block.

CITY CORDIALS.

For authority on forms for verdicts Ex-warden Hyers is recommended.

The Kate Bensberg opera company played to a small audience at the opera house last night.

Mrs. P. P. Gass has been very ill since last Saturday, when she was taken down with pneumonia.

All members should remember the call of the meeting of the Business Men's Association at the Riddle house parlors tonight at 8:30.

Byron Clark today filed in the district court an answer to the injunction against the city forbidding the removal of the trees on Main street in front of lot 7, block 30.

The costumes for the gentlemen who take part in the Washington Inaugural entertainment were received from Chicago last night and are now at J. P. Young's store.

The Presbyterian church today purchased the three lots on Granite street for the erection of their new church, one from O. M. Straight and two from C. H. Parme, all for $1,700.

A game of ball has been arranged for to-morrow between a couple of shop-keepers. The carpenters with F. Browne as captain play the machinists with Geo. Copeland, captain.

The little folks' concert given at the M. E. church last night was a beautiful and entertaining affair. The attendance was not large, but the little ones highly pleased those who were present.

W. S. Wise, secretary of the Cass County Agricultural Society, will soon call on the business men of the city for adds. for the premium list of 1889. A well supported premium list is a boomer for a good fair.

Messrs. Parmele & Newell last night shipped to South Omaha two car loads of fine cattle, of their own feeding, and went up this morning to attend to the selling of them. They were doubtless the finest bunch of cattle received there this spring and will advertise Cass county's stock qualities.

Dr. T. P. Livingston was called to the farm of Nicholas Holmas last evening to attend a seriously injured little girl. The three-year-old daughter of Frank Spencer, who lives on the farm and is in Mr. Holmas' employ, received a kick in the forehead from a young colt which fractured the frontal bone.

Mr. Vanarnaman, of Omaha, who was in the city yesterday, went out on the Platte bottoms in the afternoon to have a hunt. He brought down a good number of fine specimens of Virginia rail, which he took home with him this morning to show to the Omaha gun club to induce them to come down on a hunt.

The several car loads of stone which have been in the city several days for the Riley hotel, from Parmele, Murphy & Co.'s quarry at Cedar creek, are pronounced by those able to judge, as first-class foundation stone, of good finish. Cass county stone has a state reputation, and every car load used spreads her notoriety.

A young man named Churchill came up from Rock Bluffs yesterday with a horse to trade. Of course he knew it all and could make a better trade than anyone else. He traded. He gave his horse for a brisk young colt and a $30 mortgage on the colt. He was in town this morning, sought out the owner of the colt he had traded for and begged that the trade be declared off. The party of the second part to the trade is an upright and fair man and observed the young man had learned a lesson (although the trade was a good one, the young man had got "scared") and after giving him advice which he will be wise to heed, sent him to the barn to get his horse and leave the colt instead.

IN COUNTY COURT.

A Jury Case of Two Verdicts--The First one a Mistake.

Bartos vs. Todd.

The case of Bartos vs. Todd which was tried before a jury in the county court yesterday, as mentioned in last night's HERALD, resulted in a peculiar manner in the way of a verdict.

To state the case briefly, as gleaned by the HERALD scribe, from the evidence offered, it was as follows: In February, 1888, Doom Brothers, of Ashland, rented to one Alvin Todd, of Greenwood, a farm four miles south of Plattsmouth, representing to him that there were 90 acres of broken land, 20 acres of pasture, and 20 acres of meadow with good house and corrells. For the rent of this farm Mr. Todd, without visiting it, gave notes to the amount of $350, and secured them with a mortgage on his chattels valued at $460. In the spring time when Todd moved to his farm he found it had been greatly misrepresented to him, there being only 30 acres of broken land and no pasture and no stables and the house in poor shape, and refused to pay his notes on the ground of misrepresentation. Meantime Doom Brothers sold the notes to one Paul V. Bartos, who "went to Kansas" and returned the notes to them for collection--[But the evidence seemed to plainly say "Paul V. Bartos" was a fictitious person and the suit brought in his name that the real parties might masquerade as innocent parties and avoid the claim of fraud by misrepresentation which Todd could produce]. Doom Brothers then brought a replevin suit to force a payment of the notes by the mortgage on the chattels. The case was argued by Sullivan for the defense and Beeson and Browne for plaintiff. The jury was made up of six business men of the city, and the case submitted to them for a verdict after 4 o'clock. At 5:30 they returned a verdict like this:

In the county court of Cass county, Nebraska, Paul V. Bartos, plaintiff, vs. Alvin Todd, defendant.

We, the jury duly empaneled and sworn in the above entitled cause find that the right of property and right to possess the said property when this action was commenced was in the plaintiff, and assess his damages in the premises at the sum of $125. R. W. Hyers, Foreman.

By the above verdict the jury gave to the plaintiff not only all the chattels, valued at $460, but $125 damages besides. When the jury reported the verdict to the court one of the jurymen saw the error and called attention to it (for they had only intended to give plaintiff $125 as the rightful amount due), and the court instructed the jury to again prepare a verdict, which they did. The second verdict found "that at the commencement of this action the plaintiff had the right to possession of the chattels in said writ of replevin to the amount of $125." They also found that defendant had the right to the rest of the chattels valued at $335, which allowed Doom Brothers $125 instead of 350 for the rent of the farm.
