CITY CORDIALS.

County treasurer D. A. Campbell is celebrating the arrival of a fine baby boy at his home last night.

The west Nebraska camp meeting of the M. E. church, will open at Kearney, July 18, and last five days.

Plattsmouth is beginning to receive the attention of Capital, and envy of sister cities to which her most magnificent position entitles her.

All children expecting to take part in the Grand Army entertainment, to be given by the W. R. C., on the night of May 30, are requested to meet tomorrow afternoon, at G. A. R. hall.

The fire boys who attend the State tournament at Red Cloud July 16 to 19 are promised a good time. They have a fine system of water works there to experiment with—52 pounds pressure.

Drs. Schildknecht and Siggins this afternoon amputated a finger for Mrs. Beal, on Pearl street, and in the operation used the local anesthetic, instead of chloroform. She was perfectly conscious and felt no pain at all, during the amputating.

Those cottonwood trees, which were set out fifteen years ago to grow fast and make shade, are now flying cotton all over the city, which lights tenderly on a person's neck, and reminds them it would be a good plan for all those trees to be amputated near the ground.

Today there passed through the city 11 teams, 11 wheel scrapers, eight wagons loaded with camping outfits, with a cow and a dozen or two men, going to Louisville from Omaha to do work for Roland, who owns a quarry there and has the contract for 2,500 car loads of crushed stone for street work in Omaha. Cass county for stone, grain and stock holds a front seat.

Locomotive Engine No. 59 which pulls the K. C. from Omaha to the Junction every morning, was disabled at Oresopolis today. Some said she blew the packing out of Oresopolis while others said she blew the packing out of one cylinder. Whatever happened she broke an eccentric rod and engine No. 4 which meets her there with the Schuyler train united and brought in both trains. 59 followed and went to the shops for repairs.

There is a natural reckless and daring impulse in boys in every town, which leads them to attempt to perform any feat that they can come just so near to being killed and not get hurt at all. The banks where grading has been done are cut full of steps where the boy has made his way from the street to the top. Last evening three youngsters started to ascend the east bank of the Third street cut which is about twenty-five feet high. They opened their jack knives and began cutting notches by which to ascend. Two got about as high as their heads, while the third reached a point fully fifteen feet above the ground. Here the bank grew so perpendicular he couldn't go any higher. The boy was actually in peril. An open knife was in one hand the other grasped the top notch he had cut and one foot rested in a lower notch, about two inches deep. The notches had been cut about eighteen inches apart, and the dirt on which his foot rested was only clay and liable to give way without warning. Any one who has ever climbed a bank in this manner knows it is next to impossible to retrace one's steps. The lad realized he couldn't hold his equilibrium and go any farther, and after hesitating until he began to tremble, he started to descend. He reached the ground safely, but the feat was as risky as climbing. Today, he will forget his fears and brag to the rest of the boys how high he got, and some daring kid will try to out do his mark and get his neck broken, which would be about the only warning a boy would take to keep off the banks.

"WHEN PLATTE COMES ROLLING IN."

We have no confidence in boomers made of wind. But we have common sense and back a scheme that's planned. To give us motive power and benefit the land; So, in this brilliant hour, we take our poet pen To tell about the boom when Platte comes rolling in.

Wise men have thought to build a water channel down. From Cedar Creek above, to Plattsmouth here below; To wrest power from Platte and bring it here in low.

Ah! Truly grand this thought, for great will be the day That sees a channel dug—when Platte comes rolling in.

There is a silent joy, which makes the heart its home, To those who love old Case and want to see her boom. They know her county seat the fairest site will be.

In all Nebraska state, engaged in industry, At that near future date when Platte comes rolling in.

The plans now deeply laid, the scheme so wisely poised, Will bring to Cass's aid rich wealth and factories. They'll come in eager haste, they'll come and come to stay.

Economy drives men where they can make it pay— And this will be the case when Platte comes rolling in.

The Platte is coming soon, this city to endear. Get upon you a move and leave behind that fear. Let kickers kick and moan, let kickers have their way. We are going to boom this town, and all the state will say "Behold the STAR CITY" When Platte comes rolling in.

EBINGER-WEIDMANN.

A Noon Day Wedding With Large Attendance.

At 11:30 this forenoon Fred W. Ebinger and Miss Mary Weidmann were married at the home of the bride's parents on Sixth street in the presence of a large company of friends, by Judge Russell. Grand preparations had been made for the occasion and friends from the city and country had come to participate in the festivities celebrating the start in wedded life by this couple. A grand feast was served to the guests.

Mr. F. W. Ebinger, the groom, is widely known in the city, is clerk in the hardware store of Weidmann & Brekenfeld, which position he has held for a number of years. The bride is also well known, having resided here and associated in society many years. The circle of friends that extends congratulations is large.

Christian Forgiveness.

At the last election our esteemed townsman, Stephen Buzzell, was in the village of Weeping Water, an eye witness to the fraud and corruptions by which the town site company were attempting to secure an expression of popular will, and to falsify the vote of this county. The presence of Mr. Buzzell served as a deterrent to the thugs and corruptionists engaged in the business. Thereupon he was attacked by those thugs and would-be assassins and forcibly driven from the village without even permission to take his team with him. Now then, from the conduct of Mr. Buzzell, does he nurse his injuries and determine upon revenge? No, but with a spirit of forgiveness and regard, as it were, for the lawlessness and thugery which was conducted in that place, he goes there, almost in the identical locality that perpetrated the great wrongs upon his constitutional rights, and selects one of the fairest maidens in the land and leads her a blushing bride to the altar and, she is now Mrs. Buzzell, but was at that time, Mrs. Exa Critchfield.

HIGHWAY ROBBERY.

Ben Albin, a Liberty Precinct Farmer is held up and Relieved of $18

Three Parties Arrested, Tried and Released.

On Saturday last Benjamin Albin, a well to do and respected farmer living ten or eleven miles south of this city, as administrator for the estate of John C. Rakes deceased, held an administrator's sale. It was thought quite a sum of money had been taken in by Mr. Albin. In the evening he found it necessary to go to Union on business. As he was returning and coming through a lonely part of the road about a half a mile west of his place, three men disguised with hankerchiefs over their faces stepped into the road. One grabbed the horses' heads, another covered Albin with a revolver and the other did the talking.

As requested Mr. Albin handed out his pocket book. The speaker then asked him where he wished to go, to which he replied "home." He was then ordered into the back end of his spring wagon, the harness reins were unsnapped and the highwaymen took their way across the field to where it is supposed they had a team. Mr. Albin went home that night and did nothing till Sunday when he had Bob Kendall, Chas. Gree and another party named MacWalter arrested. These parties demanded an immediate trial and Justice Barnum heard the case. Lawyer C. L. Graves appeared for the defendants and the proprietor of the billiard hall appeared as attorney for prosecution. Defendants proved that they were at Gruben's drinking wine at the time of the robbery and the case was dismissed. The robbers would have been more successful in securing money had not Mr. Albin deposited a large part of the receipts of the day in a trunk before leaving home. As it was they only secured $18.

Board of Trade Meeting.

There will be a called meeting of the Board of Trade held at the G. A. R. hall Wednesday evening at 8:15. All the business men of Plattsmouth are invited to be present and talk over matters of interest to the city.

MASON ON HUMBUGS.

Lincoln Journal Topics: When Col. Phineas T. Barnum remarked that people liked to be humbugged he showed that he was a close student of human nature and an observing man. People like to be humbugged to the belief that they are sick, for instance. And then they like to be humbugged into the belief that they have been cured, and they pay their money for the fun of it. It is strange that so many will patronize fakers of all descriptions. There are several Indian "doctors" traveling about the country just now, selling "remedies" for the cure of everything from a bad cold to eternity, and they are making money hand over fist. It is improbable that any one of these fiery Kickapoo physicians knows the difference between a calamel and a yellow ochre, yet people rush to them and buy their fool medicines by the ton. There are Chinese doctors who claim marvellous powers in the line of healing, and they are piling up big bank accounts. Another fortune teller. Nothing could be other fakir who finds numerous victims is more absurd by the pretense of describing a man's future by examining his hand.

A Lincoln young man recently visited a prophetess, and was assured that he would soon marry a tall woman with auburn hair. He was deeply impressed by the information, and went home in a sombre mood. He had been married several years and his wife was still abiding with him. The humbug business is even found where religion is concerned. People who will not go to church and listen to intelligent sermons will be "converted" by some street shouter who has a minstrel choir and a fiddler to play "Nearer My God to Thee" and other sacred melodies. It is a world of humbug, and humbug continues after death. It is a humbug to decorate a coffin with silver and gold and then put under the sod forever. It is a humbug to put a monument over the head of a man who starved to death; and it is a humbug to speak of the deceased as being with the angels when we know that the deceased is a stoker below.
