THE MERRY HEART.

The merry heart goes all the day; It goes and never tires, Free to bestow Much warmth and glow From out its hidden fires. Though days are long And nights are drear And all around it sadness,

The merry heart

With songs of cheer Restores the light of gladness. When other hearts are out of tune, And tinged with melancholy, Tired of the strife And toil of life And quick to frown at folly, The merry heart, With courage still,

And every day, In every ill, Sees something bright and cheery.

Goes on, and is not weary

O rather than a crown of gold, And rank and honors great, Than jewels rare Beyond compare, And rich and vast estate, I'd much prefer A merry heart, With laughter all a-bubble, That strives its joy

And hope t' inspart, And sings its way through trouble, —Josephine Poliard in Pittsburg Bulletin.

"John's" Object Lesson.

"There is no trouble in teaching a Chinaman a new thing, but the teacher has to be extremely careful in doing so," said Mrs. A. L. Lord, a prominent temperance worker who recently arrived in this city from California. "I have heard many amusing stories told as to how faithfully John carries out instructions, but I may say the most amusing was told me by a lady with whom I stopped a short time ago. The lady had hired a Chinaman, intending to make a cook of him. The Celestial was as apt to learn as any of his brethren, and made himself very useful. A few days after his arrival the lady of the house thought she would learn him how to make cakes, and that end in view bought a few eggs. The Chinaman watched her every motion intently. She broke one egg, but it was 'bad' and she threw it away. The second was healthy and it went into the cup. Then the other directions were carried out, and when the cakes were baked she set the Chinaman to try his

"The lady paid no attention to him, and when done the cakes he baked were as nice as hers. Every day he baked them and they were excellent. On one occasion, several weeks after the Chinaman arrived, the lady entered the kitchen just as the Chinaman started to make the cakes. The Chinaman picked up one egg, broke it, and without the least hesitation threw it out of the window. Before his mistress could interfere the second was broke and put in the cup. 'Why, John, why did you throw that first egg away? It was good.' The Celestial looked solemnly into her face and said, 'Misses do it.' And after inquiry she found he had been doing that every day for three weeks. John was shown the right way and he never gave any more trouble in that line."-Baltimore News.

Consumption of Coffee.

Coffee is more generally consumed in Brazil than in any other part of the world. The coffee fields of Brazil cover 2,000,000 acres, with 800,000,000 trees, each tree averaging about one pound per annum. The industry there employs 800,000 hands. The consumption of coffee in Brazil averages yearly 14 pounds per inhabitant; in Belgium and Holland. 11 pounds; in the United States, 7 pounds; in Germany, 5 pounds, and in Great Britain very little more than half a pound. Britons drink five times as much tea as coffee, while Americans drink eight times as much coffee as tea. Down to 1690 the only source of coffee supply was Arabia, but the berry is now cultivated throughout most regions of the tropical world. Java and Ceylon are the principal centers of production after Brazil, and the total output of the world has been estimated to amount to not less than 1,000,000,000 pounds.-New York Telegram.

A Horse and Harness Story.

Some years ago, while drawing wood to town on a rainy day, he got stuck with a heavy load at the foot of Blackwood's hill, and the team he had being daisies to draw, he put them down to business. The horses pulled and the traces commenced to stretch, and the horses walked up the hill with ease. The traces continued to stretch until they got to the Lisgar house corner, where the driver unharnessed the horses and threw the harness over a post, fed the horses and had dinner. The sun came out in the meantime and shrunk the traces, and when the farmer went out he was surprised to find the load of wood at the door .- St. Thomas (Ont.) Journal.

"Doctor, what's the matter with me?" asked Blifkins when the family physician arrived. "Anything very serious?"

What Is Malaria?

Another delusion is malaria, so called. The word malaria means bad air. The diseases that are attributed to this cause are frequently common in districts where there is no stagnant water or anything else to taint the atmosphere. It will be remembered that during the autumn of 1881 there was an unusual number of people who were attacked by these diseases in southwestern and west central Missouri and also eastern Kansas, when there had been no rains of any consequence for months, and that, too, in districts far removed from decomposing water or any other substance.

The cause or causes of these diseases were surely not in the air, consequently should not be attributed to malaria. It is more probable that during the dry, hot weather of summer the heat that is radiated and the electricity that is generated by the sun have an enervating influence on the system-that from the nerve centers this influence reaches the muscular system principally through the pneumo-gastric nerve, and the stomach being the most delicate and intricate of almost any of the involuntary muscles, is the principal sufferer from such enervating influence. Indigestion follows as a symptom, and an increase of bile brings what is called biliousness and malaria. I hope my medical friendsand I claim many as such-will pardon the presumption on my part of the discussion of a subject that comes more within their province than that of mine.

But this conclusion has been forced from observations that reach over a pe riod of many years as a surveyor in the west. I have observed that there were more cases of sickness of this kind during or immediately after the season in which there were the greatest number of electric showers or electric disturbances, as shown by the surveyor's instruments. I conclude, then, that heat and electricity are the prime causes of "malaria," and that they weaken the stomach and, in a large majority of cases, produce the diseases usually attributed to this cause. I give the thought to the profession with the hope that it will offend none.-Cor. St. Louis Republic.

Evidence Against Himself. Among the many things the saw mill man has to contend with in this part of Georgia is the lack of perfect titles to the lands on which he purchases timber. Numerous troubles result therefrom and, as a rule, we are waited on every day by some native who claims that we are cutting timber from land that has been in his possession for years, although we have leases on it from other parties. A few days since our general manager was called on by one of these persons, who told him that he must stop cutting on a certain lot that we had just begun.

"Have you the titles to it?" was the first question put to him. "I have," was the reply, and he forthwith pulled from his pocket a dirty, aged looking roll.

The general manager took it and carefully read them through, then, turning to the would be owner, said: "I can't notice such documents as those." "Why?" asked the astonished man.

"Because," replied the general manager, holding the paper up between him and the light, "this deed was written just twenty-five years before the mill was built that made this paper."

The claimant took his papers and went sadly away without another word .- Atlanta Constitution.

They Preferred the Higher Price. The story is told of a retail dealer who obtained a rare bargain in ladies' herastitched linen handkerchiefs, which he designed to sell at a fair profit at twenty-five cents each. On examination of the goods he determined not to give such value for so small a sum. Taking one-half this lot, he marked each handkerchief in the corner with a lead pencil, twenty-five cents, and the other half of the lot, precisely the same style and quality, he marked in the same way thirty cents, and displayed the goods on the counter side by side.

Imagine his surprise when he found that his lady customers, on their own judgment, and after a seeming careful and critical comparison of the goods, in two purchasers out of three, selected the bargains at thirty cents, leaving him with the larger part of those marked twenty-five cents on his counter. As it was impossible to alter the marks on the goods from twenty-five to thirty without soiling them, he was actually compelled to purchase another invoice of the same lot to oblige the dear creatures who preferred to pay thirty cents for the article rather than twenty-five cents .-Cloak and Suit Review.

Olives.

The olive is one of the oldest trees mentioned in history. The ancients had almost a religious regard for it, and its branches early became the emblems of peace and good will. In this age it is valued chiefly for its oil. In Southern Europe, where it is extensively grown, the fruit, which is a small green oval, is gathered when rare ripe and spread for several days to dry and ferment. It is then crushed in a mill, the stones being so adjusted as to avoid breaking the stone of the fruit. It is then put into coarse bags and the oil is expressed by a screw press. The crushed mass is ground very extensive use as food, the oil is valuable for its medicinal qualities and for the oil is extracted, is used to fatten hogs, attorney.

A Smart Horse.

One day the driver of Bigelow's milk route was unable to make his trip from sickness. He said to the proprietor: "Take Kitty, the old mare, and she will take you to every place." She did so, not missing one customer of the hundred on the route, and called at The Journal office, at the end, for him to get his paper. - Lewiston Journal.

Relies of Washington.

Of the relics of Gen. George Washington none, perhaps, exceed in interest or are more valuable on account of their associations than the collection now owned by Mr. Lawrence Washington, of Marshall, Fauquier county, Virginia, who inherited them from his father, Col. John Augustine Washington, the last of the family in ownership of Mount Vernon. This confilered from Judge Bushrod Washington, and he from Gen. Washington. These relics. kept at Mount Vernon from the time of Washington till that property passed from the possession of the Washington family to the Ladies' association, are more intimately associated with Washington's home and, having been for nearly a century in the possession of his male heirs, are probably more intimately associated with his name than any other collection, and while every article in it is highly interesting there are two pieces of surpassing interest not only to Americans, but also to the people of France.

The first in point of interest is a full length engraving of Louis XVI, presented to Washington by that unfortunate monarch, whose support of the American colonies in their struggle for independ- Platismonth Gas Co., gas..... 160 50 ence so largely contributed to his own destruction by the impetus given to liberal ideas. The other relic deserving special notice is a statuette of Neckar, to the pedestal of which are attached two brass plates. On the upper plate is the inscription, "Qui nobis restituit rem," and on the lower, "Presented to George Washington, President of the United States of | tee. America, by his most dutiful, most obedient and most humble servant, Estaing, a citizen of the state of Georgia, by act of February 14, 1783, and a citizen of France, 1790."-Washington Cor. What "John" Has Done.

At least in one way the public generally have been benefited by the influx of Mongolians into this country. The Chinese at one time threatened to completely monopolize the laundry business throughout the United States. There was only one way for the American laundrymen to fight them, and that was by doing superior work. The Americans realized this, and rose to the occasion. Every device for improving their mode of washing and ironing clothes was rapidly taken up. Steam laundries multiplied everywhere, and their systhe American. On the other hand the Chinese have not made the slightest effort to keep up with the American system. They have no idea of progress, with John and to run a very likely chance of losing their linen if they should happen to mislay the pigtail's hieroglyphic check, which he furnishes clothes. -St. Louis Globe-Democrat.
