Brown's Queen Bee Tree.
John Brown, who works in the lumber yards near Galston, Pa., came into town and got William Squires to go with him to Bald Hill to help him gather the honey from a tree he said he had discovered on his way in from the woods. "I heard the bees humming in the tree while I was five rods away from it," Brown said, "or I wouldn't have discovered it."
The men took with them three patent traps to hold the honey, an ax to cut the tree down, and a lot of sulphur to burn in the hollow for the purpose of smothering the bees. Brown led the way to the tree, but they could not hear the humming. The tree was hit with the ax and the humming struck up immediately and so loud as to startle the two men. They found near the bottom of the trunk a little where the occupants of the tree had made their entrance and the sulphur fire was started there, and its stifling fumes went up into the hollow trees. For a time the buzzing inside was terrific, but gradually grew fainter and fainter as the sulphur had its deadly effect and finally ceased entirely.

"Now we'll cut her down and gobble that stock of honey," said Brown.
The tree was chopped down, and when it fell and displayed its hollow interior the two bee hives were not only surprised, but disgusted. Instead of layers of rich honey they were greeted by the sight of a tangled mass of rattlesnakes, which had been suffocated by the sulphur fumes. The snakes had chosen the hollow tree for their winter home. There were fifty-eight white rattlers and eight blacksnakes, a puff adder, and three copperheads in the collection. The noise Brown had thought was the buzzing of wild bees was made by the rattling of rattlesnakes in chorus as he was passing. Brown and Squires will get about two gallons of oil out of the rattlesnakes, which will net them at least $100, so their queer bee tree will pan out a good day's work after all.—Cor. New York Sun.

Buried Cities of New Mexico.
"New Mexico and Arizona offer as great a field for archeologists as do the lands where the empires of ancient days flourished," said W. P. Metcalf, of Albuquerque, N. M. "An expedition left Albuquerque only a few days ago to seek for treasure which traditions say is to be found at Gran Quivira, 100 miles from that city. Before the pilgrims landed at Plymouth Rock there were flourishing settlements of white men along the Rio Grande. Coronado, in his history of the explorations made as early as 1540, wrote of the seven cities of Cibola, describing them as of fabulous wealth and magnificent beauty. The ruins at Gran Quivira are believed to be the ruins of one of those cities."
"Coronado told of abundant gold and treasures in all of these cities, and many expeditions have explored about Quivira. The ruins indicate that a large city stood there. The limestone walls mark out the sites of palaces, monasteries and churches. A curious thing is that no water can be found for fifty miles around the site of the old city, although treasure searchers have honeycombed the land trying to secure a supply of water. No treasure has ever been found there, but the belief that it is located there antedates any traditions of the Mexicans or Indians. Just what prospects induced the last expedition to start out I do not know."—Chicago Tribune.

Chicago's Highest Buildings.
The highest building in Chicago at present (and one which is not built on the new Chicago construction system) is the Auditorium. Its loftiest point is 290 feet above the sidewalk. The Fair building, now almost completed in one section, measures 241 feet to the coping, and it is possible that it will be carried higher—to sixteen or eighteen stories. The new Masonic temple will measure, over all, 274 feet. This is constructed entirely on the new system. The Ashland block measures 210 feet to the coping; the Woman's temple, whose topmost stories are now being finished, towers 206 feet from the ground; the Manhattan, 196 feet; the Monadnock, 194; the Fleming and Speed block, 162; the Abstract building, 150; the Chamber of Commerce block, 150; the Home Insurance, 178; the Tacoma, 175; the Northern hotel, 174; the Rookery, 164; the Owings block, 161; the Rand-McNally, 148; the Chicago Opera house, 135; and the L. Z. Leiter building, 133 feet.—Harper's Weekly.

The Last Mourner.
In May, 1890, there died at Perigat (Ain) a retired captain of artillery named Legouarnes, knight of the Legion of Honor. His dog, a spaniel, answering to the name of Black, accompanied the funeral procession to the cemetery of Lesmors. Ever since the date of interment Black has walked the distance of nine miles which separates Perigat from Lesmors, climbed over the wall of the cemetery, and gone to lie down on the grave of his master every day at the same hour. Neither the stone throwing of the village children nor the efforts of passers by to draw off his attention have prevented the accomplishment of his self-imposed task. For the last sixteen months Black has performed this daily pilgrimage in all weathers.—La Tribune de Geneve.

Telegraph Statistics.
According to statistics furnished at the last annual meeting of the Western Union company, messages have increased from 5,572,392 in 1887 to 59,148,548 in 1891. The receipts during the same time have risen from $8,598,935 to $93,084,230. The average toll for messages has decreased from 104.7 in 1887 to 22.5 in 1891, while the average cost to the company of each message has been reduced from 63.4 to 22.5.

Quick Photographs.

Climbing Mountains in Iceland.
The highest mountain in Iceland was ascended last summer for the first time. The successful mountaineer was Mr. F. W. W. Howell, who was encouraged when he started for Iceland by information from the Royal Geographical Society that the difficulties in the way of climbing the Qrosta Jökull were supposed to be insuperable. The mountain is near the southeast coast, and is an imposing sight from the sea. Mr. Howell made an attempt in 1890 to climb the mountain, but was defeated by the weather.

On Aug. 17 last he left Sandfell, a little settlement on the coast near the base of the mountain, at 4 a. m., when of course it was broad daylight in that latitude. He was accompanied by two Icelanders as porters. He struck the snow slopes at 10 a. m., and it took him nine hours and a half to reach the top of the mountain whose sides are quite steep and covered with ice and snow. Though this mountain is the highest in Iceland, its elevation was found by Mr. Howell to be only 6,550 feet, but owing to the latitude the phenomena of the snow slopes compare most favorably with those of mountains 10,000 feet high in Switzerland. Mr. Howell says the ice galleries in the upper crevasses are particularly fine. This is undoubtedly one of the most successful feats of mountain climbing of the year, for the mountain presents as many difficulties as any of the Alps, with two or three exceptions. It is comparatively easy to ascend Mount Hecla, and the climb is made every once in a while by one or more tourists.—New York Sun.

Life in Central New York.
One night about three weeks ago George Con, Frederick Shepp and Frederick Gott, farmers residing near North Manlius, had their harnesses and robes stolen. Of course they were annoyed and anxious to catch the thief, and somewhat inclined to believe in the mysterious. Shepp and Gott went to a Syracuse fortune teller for information. She took their money and informed them that they would find the harnesses on the premises of some one whose first name was James, secreted in a barrel. They thought of the Jameses in their vicinity. There was neighbor James Rich and neighbor James Wright, the latter a well-to-do farmer, and they got a warrant from a Collamer justice to search the house of the first James and one of the barns of the second James. The officer who had the warrant did so, accompanied by Mr. Gott and Mr. Shepp. But the harnesses were not found, and now James Rich promises to make it interesting for Gott and Shepp. He claims they dug up his cellar, scattered his potatoes around and did other mischief of this character, and made no effort to put things in as good shape as they found them. He wants damages from the two gentlemen, and says he will ask the court to grant his request unless Gott and Shepp walk up and pay.—Madison County Times.

A Question for English Lawyers.
A correspondent raises the question whether a retired judge can practice at the bar, and goes on to say: "The point is an interesting one, and if report speaks truly it is not unlikely to be raised by the action of Mr. Justice Hawkins, who, on his retirement next month, it is said, will resume his old role of advocate. There is no precedent for an English judge appearing again at the bar after retirement, but it is not an uncommon thing for an Indian or colonial judge to resume practice when he has left the bench. These officials, however, are in an entirely different position to their English brethren, and their example counts for very little. "The absence of an English precedent is much more to the purpose, and it would probably be considered conclusive by the bar committee if not by the judges before whom the question might be raised. Anyway, it would be decidedly unfair for a judge who had received a handsome pension to enter into competition with his struggling professional brethren who had yet a career to make, to say nothing of the awkwardness of the situation which would be created."—Yorkshire (England) Post.

A Sewed Fish.
A peculiar fish was brought into this port Monday by the schooner Mildred V. Lee. The fish is nearly oval in shape, with a very short tail; is 24 feet in length, 24 feet in width and weighed 112 pounds. When taken from the water it was of a bright red color, and the meat is about the color of salmon. The body except the head is covered by small scales, and the back is covered with light spots. On either side of his back is a peculiar line, resembling a scar, as if he had been cut and stitches taken in the wound. The fish was taken on La Have bank in a trawl in 800 fathoms of water, but nothing like it has ever been landed here before, neither can a fish answering its description be found in the publications of the fish commission.—Gloucester (Mass.) Times.

A Student of Human Nature.
Mrs. Slinpurs—Why in the world did you tell Mrs. De Fashion we had summered in Europe?
Mr. Slinpurs—You don't suppose I'd confess to her that we'd been economizing in Frugtown, do you? Not much.
Mrs. Slinpurs—But, dear me, she'll tell others, and before long all sorts of people will be asking us about Europe, and we haven't either of us ever been east of Sandy Hook.
Mr. Slinpurs—Don't you fear. Tell people you've just got back from Europe and they'll change the subject quicker than a wink, for fear you'll start talking about it.—New York Weekly.

After many trials it is now shown that color can be given to cotton while growing, and a beautiful red variety of this article is now being raised in Georgia.

Surveyors at work on the Otis river in New Mexico claim that they have discovered a mountain of pure alum a mile square at the base and 3,000 feet high.

Wonders of the World's Fair
The holding of the World's Fair in a city which, six years old, will be a remarkable event, but whether it will really benefit this nation as much as the discovery of the Restorative Nerve by Dr. Frank M. Weston. This is a question which the American people need to cure their excessive nervousness, dyspepsia, headache, dizziness, sleeplessness, neuralgia, nervous debility, falling out of hair, etc. It is a bottle of Dr. Weston's Restorative Nerve, with a full and complete testimonial, sent to F. G. Fricke & Co. It is a safe and reliable cure for all these ailments, and is a safe and reliable cure for all these ailments, and is a safe and reliable cure for all these ailments.

Wonderful.
E. W. Sawyer, of Rochester, Wis., a prominent dealer in general merchandise, and who runs several peddling wagons, had one of his horses badly cut and burned with a lariat. The wound refused to heal. The horse became lame and stiff notwithstanding careful attention and the application of remedies. A friend handed Sawyer some of Haller's Barb Wire Lintment, the most wonderful thing ever saw to heal such wounds. He applied it only three times and the sore was completely healed. Equally good for all sores, cuts, bruises, and wounds. For sale by all druggists.

Cure for Paralysis.
Frank Cornelius, of Purcell, Ind. Ter., says: "I induced Mr. Pinson, whose wife had paralysis in the face to buy a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. To their great surprise before the bottle had all been used she was a great deal better. Her face had been drawn to one side, but the Pain Balm relieved all pain and soreness, and the mouth assumed its natural shape." It is also a certain cure for rheumatism, lame back, sprains, swellings and lameness. 50 cent bottles for sale by F. G. Fricke & Co., Druggists.
