I put my hand on my head; there was one big pain. Then I put my hand in my pocket, and there was nothing. Now there is no more pain in my head. I put my hands in my pockets, and there is twenty pounds. So I shall stay with temperance."

A JUDICIAL KINDERGARTEN.

Effective Use of the Sign Language in Sentencing a Prisoner.

Once upon a time, says George R. B. Hayes, there was a judge named Redman, who presided over a big territory which kept him racing from Santa Cruz to Salinas and San Luis Obispo. The Spanish population was the chief race to be found in that district, and Redman knew but two words in the language, which were 'No tiende,' and was put to the necessity of employing a court interpreter, who attended him in his rapid tour of the big circuit.

It happened that a murderer was to be sentenced in Monterey and that an important trial must be attended miles away on the same day. Redman's interpreter had gone off to a fandango in the wilds somewhere and couldn't be found when court was opened, and Redman was in a fury of impatience. At last, when he could endure the delay no longer, he said to the man below in the dock:

"Prisoner at the bar, stand up!"

"No tiende," said the man, shaking his head stupidly.

"You don't savey, do you?" exclaimed the judge sharply. "Well, do you understand this?" and he proceeded to gesticulate vigorously with his hands and indicate the motion of rising.

The man finally comprehended and arose stiffly in his seat.

"Prisoner at the bar, it is the sentence of this court that you be taken from the place whence you came on Friday, the 27th day of June next, be hanged by the neck until you are dead, and may God have mercy on your soul. Now, do you savey that?"

The poor prisoner shook his head in a bewildered fashion and could only cry, "No tiende, no tiende."

"Is there anybody present in this court who can translate that awful sentence to this prisoner?" demanded the judge of the half a dozen of officials and spectators in the room. They were all in the same boat as the prisoner and could only shake their heads mournfully.

"Well," exclaimed the judge, a bright thought striking him, "I'll just show you, then, this way!" whereupon he unrolled a yard of red tape that lay on the desk, and twisting it hurriedly about his own neck held the two ends high over his left ear, at the same time rolling his eyes and wagging his tongue down against his chin.

A dreadful groan went up from the prisoner and from the others in the court room. They understood the grim judicial kindergarten completely.—San Francisco Examiner.

Ammonia for Electric Shock.
An ingenious dentist has been making some interesting experiments with animals which have been nearly killed by electric shocks.

On Wednesday he was standing on the street and saw a sparrow in a small pool of water left by the street-sprinkler. The bird soon went up and flew to a wire overhead. The shock at once sent him to the ground, where he lay until the dentist picked him up, barely able to move his wings. The gentleman breathed into the sparrow's mouth and let him go. As the shock was not a very bad one the bird was soon able to fly, but he again returned to a dangerous locality, and the result was another shock much worse than the first. When the bird fell to the ground he was apparently lifeless, but the dentist took him to the office and began an experiment.

He at first resorted to artificial respiration as before, and then injected in the bird's flesh aromatic spirits of ammonia and poured a few drops diluted with water down the sparrow's throat. He then put him in a dry closet and gave him some clear water after a few minutes. When placed in the closet the bird's body was nearly cold, but the treatment proved so effective that in less than an hour he was able to fly as well as ever and was liberated.—Eastern Argus.

"Old Bill," That's All.

A familiar figure to all who have business about Park row is "Old Bill," the spectacle vendor. Day after day for the past twenty years or more this unique figure has arrived in front of No. 31 at an early hour in the morning and unfolded a little campstool sort of contrivance, on which he places a small tray containing a few of the cheaper variety of eyeglasses. After this he lights his pipe and awaits the occasional customer.

In winter Bill's tall, spare figure is hidden in a heavy overcoat buttoned to the chin, his thin face peeping out from a huge cap with large sides, that fold down over his ears. When the first days of summer approach the heavy trappings are cast aside and the purveyor of "eye windows" appears resplendent in straw hat, light trousers and clean linen duster.

All inquiries as to the surname of this odd figure fail to elicit anything satisfactory, and his cognomen of "Old Bill" is all that can be gathered. Of course he is reported to be wealthy—all such unique characters always are.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Saxon State Dinners.

At Saxon dinners slices of bread were the substitutes for plates, and these generally went into the alms basket afterward. Grandees were treated to a silver platter placed beneath the bread, which last, in course of time, became discarded as people came to recognize the superior advantages of metal and pewter.—London Cor. Chicago Herald.

PROTECTION COLUMN.

CONDUCTED BY THE W. C. T. U.

There is a called meeting of the W. C. T. U. Wednesday, June 22, at the residence of Mrs. S. A. Davis.

Oh, I think the women of this country are engaged in a noble work. They are co-workers with those women in other parts of the globe wherever the English language is spoken, who are working in this cause, and I would say to you—

God bless you, sisters; in the fight you are waging now we cannot fail. Oh, stronger is your sense of right than Error's triple coat of mail! The truths we speak are spread abroad By every wind and every tide; The voice of nature and of God Speaks out upon your side.

We have been asked the origin of the motto of the world's W. C. T. U., "For God and Home and Every Land." Great minds are apt to act in concert, but so far as we know its name was suggested by some of our Michigan white-ribboners who sought to find a motto analogous to the one we already had, and it was moved in the Minneapolis convention by Mrs. Benjamin that we suggest this as the motto of the world's W. C. T. U., which was done by vote in 1886.

A royal commission has been appointed in Canada to inquire into the drink question. Sir Joseph Hickson will probably be chosen chairman.

There is a battalion of boys, consisting of eighty members, in the Church of the Redeemer (Congregational), at Lakewood, Ill., every one of whom have taken the triple pledge against liquor, tobacco and swearing.

The National Carriage and Harness Retail Dealers' Association have put themselves in the advance by banishing intoxicants from their banquets.

An enjoyable entertainment was held recently in the interest of temperance by the ladies of Eddyville, Dawes county, Neb., at the instance of one or two members of the W. C. T. U. visiting there. This was to be the first of a series of entertainments with the two-fold object of establishing a branch of the W. C. T. U. in Eddyville, and of fighting the saloon that is trying so hard to find an entrance. Success to the undertaking!

University extension is having a mighty boom in these days and gospel extension is also getting a little underway. Sometimes we hear that the churches do not reach the people, that the pastors talk to the same set the year around, while the mass passes by. There is much truth in this, and some of our more progressive pastors have adapted the plan of theatre preaching and out door services. The Crusade taught us the lesson that Mohamet must go to the mountain. From the saloon drinking men followed the crusader to the church, which were in those days kept open like gates of gospel grace from morn until eve. Temperance meetings are now held in every part of Christendom at all hours and in most unaccustomed places—the depot waiting room is one of the best rendezvous, the blacksmith shop, the rink in summer the band stand and the broad shore. Whatever you do not undertake, we urge you, sisters of the local unions, to establish and maintain these blessed, free-hearted, open handed gatherings for the people; "the great humanity that beats its life along the stony street."

The twentieth annual convention of the State Catholic Total Abstinence union is in session in Muncie, Ind. Two hundred delegates are present.

There is in every true woman's heart a spark of heavenly fire, which beams and blazes in the dark hour of adversity.

The Catholic Total Abstinence union of Wisconsin will meet in convention at Stevens Point on the 28th and 29th of June.
