Rumored Express Change.

For months past the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad has been considering the advisability of conducting its own express business.

Burlington officials have, during the past year, felt that they were not receiving the tonnage from the Wells-Fargo company that they deserved.

care of their express business was revived. But as the Burlington people realized that should they undertake the management of their express business tonnage would fall considerably below the present they began to cast about for a reason to increase their present receipts.

Mr. L. A. Garner, superintendent of the American Express company, when questioned by a reporter, said: "This talk of change always arises when contracts are about to expire. But there is nothing in the rumor that the Wells-Fargo company has received the contract for hauling the express on the Burlington east of the river next year.

To Be Emerged.

Hon. John C. Watson and Fred D. Smith arrived home Wednesday morning from St. Louis and they brought back some good news to the people of this city.

The plaintiff asked that the lands held by defendant be conveyed to the plaintiff, that an account be taken of the gains and profits of the defendants arising from the use of public money and that judgment be entered against them for that amount.

Under section 121, criminal code, a civil action by the county or a taxpayer against a county treasurer for the recovery of interest loaned, or the net proceeds of banking and real estate by the use of public money, will not lie prior to the act of 1891, Session Laws, chapter 50, paragraph 6, Wheeler St., 372 A.

Since the act of 1891, if Mr. Morton does not know he should know that all county and state treasurers have to designate a certain bank in which to place the money in and that the interest has to be accounted for.

Now, THE HERALD is unable to see how Mr. Morton is going to be able in the face of the recent decision of the supreme court, to prosecute those men for thirty years back.

MORTON AND SILVER.

Morton is Sound on the Currency Question.

BUT IS A FREE TRADER.

His Bold Assertions Upon Investigation Fall With a Slaking Thud—He Don't Expect to be Elected But Will Try.

The democratic candidate for governor, Hon. J. Sterling Morton, addressed a good sized audience Friday night at Rockwood hall. The meeting was called to order by Hon. F. E. White in the absence of the chairman of the central committee, Hon. J. M. Patterson, and introduced the democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, Samuel Wolbach of Grand Island, who spoke for a few minutes, after which the speaker of the evening was introduced.

Mr. Morton made last night the best democratic speech ever delivered in Plattsmouth, and what made it the more interesting was his sincerity, and the fearless manner in which he spoke.

Mr. Morton on the tariff is an absolute free trader; and he believes in it. There is nothing of the demagogue about him.

On the currency question Mr. Morton is one of the strongest republican speakers in the state. His arguments on the money question were unanswerable, even by the little god of democracy—W. J. Bryan—and the way Mr. Morton rolled up his sleeve and dealt the pet theory of Bryan—the money question—sledge hammer blows was amusing to republicans.

When Mr. Morton began on the money question there were several of the young democracy, who worship at the feet of Bryan left the hall, their tender hearts could not stand the test; and they were unable to listen to the truth on the currency question as expounded by their candidate for governor.

Mr. Morton for political purposes said that he would support Bryan although he differed from him on that great and all absorbing question.

The republicans were jubilant over Mr. Morton's currency speech and the democrats, especially the followers of Bryan were down cast.

During Mr. Morton's speech Friday night he said that if the people would elect him governor he would make the state office holders pay back to the state several million dollars that they had taken, and which he claimed they had unlawfully taken.

Just one case brought by Wayne county against an ex-county treasurer and his deputy is enough to prove the fallacy of Mr. Morton's assertion.

A case was brought in the district court of Wayne county, Nebraska against John T. Bresler, ex-county treasurer, alleging that as such officer he received large sums of money for the county, a part of which he loaned, receiving large sums as interest, and other parts he used in his bank, carrying on a banking business therewith by making loans, and also by buying and selling real estate, in the course of which he received large gains and profits on account, of and by the use of the county's money; that they also invested large sums of money that came into their hands in land in this state.

The plaintiff asked that the lands held by defendant be conveyed to the plaintiff, that an account be taken of the gains and profits of the defendants arising from the use of public money and that judgment be entered against them for that amount.

The case in district court was decided in favor of the defendants. An appeal was taken to the supreme court. The decision of the lower court was affirmed by the supreme court.

Under section 121, criminal code, a civil action by the county or a taxpayer against a county treasurer for the recovery of interest loaned, or the net proceeds of banking and real estate by the use of public money, will not lie prior to the act of 1891, Session Laws, chapter 50, paragraph 6, Wheeler St., 372 A.

Since the act of 1891, if Mr. Morton does not know he should know that all county and state treasurers have to designate a certain bank in which to place the money in and that the interest has to be accounted for.

Before the act of 1891, a county or state treasurer could place the money anywhere, he deemed advisable and that all was necessary was for him to turn the money over when called upon; that the treasurers had the use of the interest.

Now, THE HERALD is unable to see how Mr. Morton is going to be able in the face of the recent decision of the supreme court, to prosecute those men for thirty years back.
