CARING FOR THE GOOD BOOK. How the Scriptures Were Preserved Previous to Their Translation. The books of the law wires the first books of the Eible to be collected by the priests and leasters of the brack test after the low came the written history of the people, in the Filth century B. Co. the collection of the prophots by Neberniah; and from his time enward the collection of hagiograpma, the Pealine, Proverbs, Job, Canticles. All of these had been preserved by the pricats, copied and recopied as occasion required, and circu lated in manuscripts, as of course all writings were circulated in those days,

The dispersion of the Hebrews and their acquisition of other languages and loss of the Hebrew Imprungs, necessitated the translation of the Scriptures into other than the Hebrew, and previous to the Second century B. C. what we know as the Septuagint translation-the LXX -Was completed in Greek, designed os pecially for the Habrows living in Alexpalpatation, irregular pulse, wind seventy scholars—seventy-two actually -made the translation. Translations unrecensions into she Aramaic were also made, and these translations were copied from time to time, so that the oldest manuscript of the Old Testament now extant is only about 1,400 years old.

The case is the mine with the New Testament. It was written again and again, until now there are upward of 1,000 manuscripts for the Gospels and as many more for the rest of the New Testament. The oldest manuscripts are the Codex Sinaitions and the Codex Vaticanus, which date from the Fourth century A. D. So the books of the Bible were handed down, the old copies always being renewed before they were out, the language being Hebrew, Greek and after A. D. 300, Latin. The latter, in the translation adopted by the Roman church, and known as the Vulgate, because com-monly used in the Christian churches, was the first book printed, in 1450-5.

As far back as the Seventh century into English, and the early versions by Wyclif and his predecessors, by Purvey and others, were translations from the Vulgate. Tyndale used Luther's German translation of the Greek Bible. The authorized version of King James was made by forty-seven scholars and finished in 1611; the manuscripts, so far as accessible, were consulted, the translators not restricting themselves to the Vulgate, but going to the Hebrew and Greek whenever they could .- Pittsburg Dispatch,

A "Character" in France.

Recently a French gentleman, replying to an inquiry by a lady concerning the character and qualifications of a woman who had applied to her for the position of cook, and who had lately been in the gentleman's service, said that he could not recommend the applicant; that she was "extravagant, impertinent and somewhat given to drink." The lady gave the letter to the applicant for the cook's position, who immediately brought suit for damages against the writer.

The case was decided against the writer of the letter, who was fined and admonished that he had no right to give circulation to injurious statements concerning another person, even if the charges were true.

In order to evade the responsibility thus introduced in French law housekeepers have taken to issuing such "recommendations" as this:

"This certifies that Mme. Hortense, late nurse to my son, aged one year, did not leave him on a bench at the Jardin des Plantes and go away and forget him on the 20th of August last."

The certificate is intended to be taken in a contrary sense, and serves its purpose without laying the writer open to a suit for damages .- Youth's Companion.

A Problem.

Once there were two tramps who were actually looking for work. In the course of their wanderings they came upon a pile of coal in front of a palatial resi-

Said the tramp with the inferior intellect, "Let us engage ourselves to stow away this fuel at a price of twenty-five cents." "Nay, nay," said the tramp of superior intellect; "let me go within and negotiate."

And he did negotiate and secured the job at a rate of fifty cents, of which sum he gave one-half to his companion to perform the necessary manual labor, reserving one-half unto himself for superintending operations.

Whereat he of the inferior business ability, though he had received twice the amount of work he expected and at his own rate of compensation, lifted up his voice in wrath and swore by various deities that he had been bunkoed.

Was he right?-Indianapolis Journal.

What Men and Women Tell.

There is one radical difference between men and women that "it may be said generally of novelists, that men know more than they tell, and women tell more than they know." It may be true of novelists. In real life neither tells all he or she knows, and the difference shows in what they keep.

A woman tells the thing that is not vital. She will tell some one almost every detail of her daily life, but let her have a heart story, and she not only keepsit locked in, but she lives as though it had no existence.

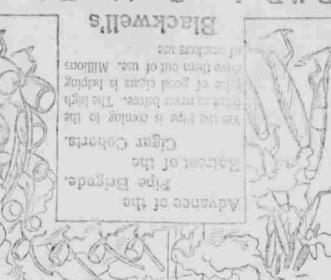

A man scorus to relieve his mind of little worries by asking for sympathy. But let a great secret come into his life -be dies unless he tells it to some oue. He will do it even when it brings him in the shadow of death or bitterest disgrace.- Charles Dudley Warner in Harper'a.

THE RIGHT TO THE ROAD.

Like dreams the changing years have fled Into the realm of the stlent dead Since seventeen seventy-five, and June Made bridal sance to the river's tune. And then, as now, on the world's broad face. The lovellest green clad, leaf crowned space Was the old West read to the ferrying place. Here Jonathan Parsons, a man of peace, On a cart heaped high with the earth's increase.

Through woodland sweet with the flowering thoru,
Came riding up from his fields of corn.

General Washington's coach of state, Bound for Cambridge, had reached the lane; In it the general, grave, sedate, Sat planning the course of a great campaign, For a terrible struggle possessed the land, And the fate of a nation was in his hand! Riding before came horsemen twain; portions of the Vulgate were translated If the truth be told they were young and vaing They reached at length, in the narrow road, The farmer, perched on his fragrant load.

> "Lazy bones, haste! You are all too slow; How can we pass, we should like to know? General Washington rides this way! Turn out, turn out for the coach!" cried ther. But Parsons doubted the courier's word, The soldier hero?—'twas quite absurd! He was still in congress the last he heard! He turned - looked back through the vista green; No sign of the uncrowned king was seen. These were playful youths, it was very plain! He would meet their sport with a calm disdain! And his right to the road to the end maintain,

A droll procession in truth they made That summer day in the green arched gladel A frowsy colt was the first in view. Vanguard of the rustic's retinue! A white mare next, then oxen four ("Five cattle team," the name it bore); Then the peasant prince, who a crown would scorn, High on his throne of fresh cut corn; The baffled horsemen behind him came, And last of all rode the one whose name Was yet to conquer the pride of kings, Whose truth and courage the world yet sings! Still unmindful of rank so near, Parsons the order refused to hear.

When, nearing the ferry where all must wait—
"Make way, make way for the coach of state!" Again they cried in a stern command; He plodded on till, whip in hand, He calmly got down at the river's brink To let the mare and the oxen drink!

He turned-and then, for the first time saw The strong right arm of the colonies' lawl A freeman true, he had dared to stand, And the right to the king's highway demand In the face of the greatest in all the land! He speechiess stood, and his brown face paled, While the scouts to their chief the affair detailed.

"He was right!" was Washington's wise reply: "He's as good a right to the road as I!"
-Ernest N. Bagg in Youth's Companion.

Sleight of Hand Poisoning.

A very curious item in toxicological lore I chanced to light upon may be called the feat of poisoning by eleight of hand. You were jealous of a lady and you wished to kill her. Well, you asked her to lunch, and you caused a very nice peach to be served at dessert. You cut the fruit with a golden knife, one side of the blade of which was endued with a deadly poison. You presented the poisoned half of the peach to the lady, who ate it with much relish and then dropped down dead.

The wholesome half you ate yourself, and laughed in your sleeve, and went on slicing more peaches for the ladies of whom you were jealous-till you were found out and broken on the wheel. Aye, there's the rub! What high old times we might have, to be sure, but for that plaguey contingency of being found out. -G. A. Sala in London Sunday Times.

A Bowery Sign.

A Bowery sign which has added to the gayety of the travelers on the Third avenue elevated for some weeks has recently disappeared. Men forgot business and politics for a brief moment while contemplating it, and careworn women eased their burdens long enough to smile as they were whirled past it. It was large and lurid, telling in big letters that within the first convention of "Lady Pie Eaters" was in session, three gayly dressed females, nearly life size, with abbreviated skirts and French gaiters INTEREST ALLOWED ON TIME DEPOSITS and each holding a huge triangle of pie, illustrating the type of members. Further than this their identity was not established .- New York Times.

Looking glasses of polished bronze or silver were a necessary adjunct to the toilet in ancient as well as modern times

During the Sixteenth century all witows were required to dress in the plain robes wern by conventual orders.
