CITY AND COUNTY.

WEDNESDAY

Charley Beach, the postal clerk, enjoyed a visit from his father yesterday.

C. S. Polk is still in bed, wrestling with an ugly carbuncle on the back of his neck.

Superintendent Farley and Professor Noble went overland to Weeping Water today.

Charles Sheeley, the Lincoln bridge contractor, is in the city settling up with the county board for his summer's work in the county.

R. F. Dean has some good stalk pasture for horses and cattle, plenty of straw and good shelter for stormy weather. See him at the poor farm.

John Sherman of Ohio has served his state in the United States Senate thirty-two years. No man now living has quite equalled that length of time.

Miss Minnie White accompanied by her cousin, Miss Mae Bake, departed this afternoon for Weeping Water where they will visit Mrs. Jno. Donegan and attend the ball to be given this evening.

The court house clock did not go out on a strike, but refused to strike, in fact would not run at all. John Coleman's services were secured, and after fixing a broken piece of the mechanism the clock runs again as good as new.

Some fellow with an instinct born of the lower regions made an effort to rob Jap Young's honey house the other night, but he made so much noise breaking in the window that it awakened the owner, and the visitor had to fly for safety, as Jap is a crack shot with a shot-gun and he generally keeps an eye open for late callers.

THURSDAY

Dr. E. W. Cook made a brief business trip to Omaha today.

Dr. A. Shipman is attending to business in Omaha this week.

Philip Thierolf made a business trip down to Union and Nehawka today.

D. S. Guild returned home this morning from a business trip to Chicago.

The board of county commissioners adjourned their December session today and have gone out in the county to inspect bridges.

The Chicago Quartette, billed to come here at an early date, is said to be one of the best small musical organizations on the road.

Mary A. Murphy and John C. Murphy, children of Edward Murphy, made application today for the probate of the last will and testament of Edward Murphy, deceased.

Hon. E. F. Warren, one of the ablest lawyers in Nebraska, was in the city today in the interest of the Otoe county bar association which is about adopting a new set of rules which they hope to conform as near as possible with the Cass county rules, both of counties being in the same judicial district.

How to Cure Bilious Colic.

I suffered for weeks with colic and pains in my stomach caused by biliousness and had had to take medicine all the while until I used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy which cured me. I have since recommended it to a good many people. Mrs. F. Butler, Fairhaven, Conn. Persons who are subject to bilious colic can ward off the attack by taking this remedy as soon as the first symptoms appear. Sold by all druggists.

The White Trout Legend.

In county Tipperary, Ireland, there is a holy well in which swims a white trout with a red spot on its side. Lady Wilde, mother of the poet, tells the following legend of how this strange fish originated: When Cromwell's army was passing through Ireland, it bivouacked in the neighborhood of this well. A soldier, hearing of the splendid white trout in it, swore he would have it for his next meal. With a scoop net he managed to capture the fish, and when he reached home laid it in the frying pan. Immediately it leaped out on the floor. Several times this was repeated. Finally the soldier put the lid on the pan and a great stone upon it to hold it down. When he thought the fish cooked, he transferred it to a plate. The moment, however, he stuck his fork into it there was a great shriek, the trout leaped to the floor, and there instead of a fish lay a beautiful young girl with blood streaming from her side where the fork had entered. The girl reproached the soldier with his cruelty and commanded him to put her in the well, where she was obliged to stay until the last day under the spell of enchantment. This the soldier did, and the enchanted one is still there, in the form of a white trout, with a blood red mark upon its side. The legend does not tell what became of the soldier.

Wanted Too Much For Earth.

The janitor had conducted her through the building, and she seemed not altogether displeased with some of the apartments. "I hope," she said, "that none of the people here keep dogs." "Some of them do," replied the truthful employe. "Are there any children?" "There ain't any use of insistin on folks born grown up." "The style of the decorations doesn't exactly please me." "They're all brand new, and I'm afraid the landlord wouldn't change 'em."

"Does anybody in the building play the piano?" "No, ma'am. But two or three people is learnin'." "That's too bad. I dislike noise. It's a very nice place in many respects. But dogs bark, and children cry, and pianos jangle, and I'm very particular about decorations."

"Well, ma'am, there's only one thing I can say."

"What is it?"

"You can't expect to rent heaven for $60 a month."—Washington Star.

An Old Country Superstition.

In some of the southern counties of England queer superstitions are current about eating blackberries after Michaelmas day. The country people say that on Michaelmas eve the old gentlemen "plant his cloven foot" on all the blackberries as yet ungathered. After this date, Sept. 29, it is unlucky to pick or eat the fruit.

The date upon which the devil "puts his foot down" against blackberry eating varies in different districts. In some it is as late as Oct. 10, by which time one would naturally suppose there were no blackberries left to stamp out. But the story of his prohibition is told in many places. Great misfortune, sickness or death will surely follow disobedience to his orders.

But why his satanic majesty should concern himself so particularly about blackberries, when so many greater matters might be said to claim his attention, none of the stories states. It may be that he considers blackberries too healthy and wishes to limit the consumption.

Useful Member of a Family.

The Portuguese say that no man can be a good husband who does not eat good breakfast, which leads the Waterbury American to say this is a mean way of throwing upon the wife all the responsibility for the husband's goodness, for without a good wife there can be no good breakfast for him to eat. That may be right in theory, but it is wrong in practice. We know a man who has cooked breakfast for the greater part of the time for the past 15 years for his family. And we violate no confidence when we say it is a good breakfast too. He is a man who loves good living, and he knows how to prepare a meal with the best of women. Yet he is a workman who puts in from 10 to 15 hours a day of hard work and the kind of work that is exhausting.—Ansonia (Conn.) Sentinel.

Berkshire Hogs.

I have for sale thirty-five head thoroughbred berkshire hogs of either sex some brood sows that will farrow in October. Prices to suit the times. At the head of this herd is a grand son of "Stumpy Duke" who is said to have taken more premiums than any hog in the world. Call on or address, JOHN F. POLK, Greenwood, Neb.

Conan Doyle's Rapid Work.

Dr. Conan Doyle is a remarkable worker. Most of his time really seems to be given up to the healthy enjoyment of life. He seems, however, to be able economically to combine work with play. For instance, one may see him engaged in a vigorous game of cricket in the early afternoon, and the cricket may be followed by a brisk country walk with a friend. Returning from the walk, Dr. Doyle will say to the friend: "W dine at 8 o'clock. Perhaps you would like to take a stroll round the garden before dressing while I go up stairs." And he retires, presumably to enjoy a rest. After dinner he may make some quiet remark as to this his friend, "By the way, rather a happy idea occurred to me during our walk this afternoon." Hereupon he gives the outline of a very fine plot. "What a capital idea for a short story," exclaims the friend. "So I thought," remarks the novelist. "Well, will you do it?" "Oh, I've done it," comes Dr. Doyle's calm reply. "I wrote the story while you were walking in the garden."

A Matter of Courtesy.

An irascible man entered the station exactly at 4 o'clock, and, approaching the money order desk, politely requested the presiding genius to issue him an order for $50. "Too late," said the damsel curtly, pointing with an impatient finger to the clock. The irascible man stormed, raved and finally challenged the correctness of the time-piece. The imperturbable lady smiled. The following afternoon, two minutes before the closing hour, he again presented himself and calmly asked, "Am I too late?" "Only just in time," replied the damsel crossly. "Thank you. Now, miss, I must trouble you to issue me 50 orders for $1 each." "F-i-t-y!" gasped the horror-stricken woman. Her tea had just arrived and was standing on a table behind the screen. "Surely you are joking?" "Madam," said the man, raising his hat politely, "courtesy begets courtesy."—New York Advertiser.

An Amusing Toast.

A well known young lawyer is credited with making a harmless ball at a banquet given by a local organization not many nights ago. Toasts were called for, and to the young lawyer fell the honor of suitably remembering the absent friends. This is the way he announced it: "Our absent friends—how soon we would show them the depth of our regret at their absence if they were only here with us tonight."

And the funniest thing about it was that nobody caught on to the ball until some time afterward.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Her Application.

The study of definitions presents many obstacles and difficulties to childish minds. "Spell ferment and give its definition," requested the schoolteacher. "F-e-r-m-e-n-t, ferment, to work," responded a diminutive maiden. "Now place it in a scientific case, so that I may be sure you understand its meaning," said the teacher. "In summer I would rather play out of doors than ferment in the school-house," returned the small scholar with such doleful frankness and unconscious humor that the teacher found it hard to suppress a smile.—Youth's Companion.

Wooden Spoons.

In the district of Semenovsk, where wooden spoons chiefly come from, about 7,000 men make a living at the trade. The spoons are generally made from birchwood, and a skillful workman can turn one several hundreds a day. No fewer than 12,000,000 spoons are manufactured during the course of the year, which are sold at 6 to 8 rubles (12 shillings to 16 shillings) per thousand.

They find a ready market and penetrate far as Persia, Khiva, Bokhara and Kokhand.
