Bryan Nominated for President. The afternoon session was well under way before the resolutions were presented, and while waiting upon them the convention gave attention to a number of addresses pertinent to the occasion. The resolutions aroused no debate and with these once adopted, the convention found itself suddenly apparently unexpectedly, face to face with the nomination of candidates. Bryan's nomination was made by acclamation, and was accomplished with expedition and tact. There were not to exceed half a dozen speeches in Bryan's behalf. All these were brief and pointed. Each mention of Bryan aroused enthusiasm, and, when there was a call to rise in support of a proposition to make his nomination unanimous, not only did every delegate rise in his seat, but each rose with a shout and a hurrah, and with a waying of hands.

St. Louis, May 10.-The second day of the great street railway strike was Moines; Dr. J. H. Smith, of Cedar Rap- turbulent and riotous. The St. Louis Transit company made no effort to run its cars and the St. Louis and Suburban made none until late in the afternoon, when with police massed along the line and a detachment on each car through. Far from relieving the situation, however, this demonstration had no further effect than to show that both massing their forces on a single line the police could keep that line open. At the close of the day of armed inactivity both sides expressed confidence in the outcome. The strikers accepted the abandoned tracks and silent power-houses as an indication that the company was weakening. The officials of the latter evidently lookd upon their want of success in Tuesday's numerous engagements as only a temporary setback.

> Police Do Effective Work. The police, for the first time since the strike began, showed some appreciation of the situation, and by keeping the crowds moving prevented a repetition of the riotous demonstrations of the previous day. The streets were filled with people, many of them bear ing small placards on their hats and coats expressing sympathy with the strikers, but they were not allowed to congregate. The most important development of the day was a meeting of prominent citizens at the mayor's office in the morning. After assuring Mayor Zeigenhein of their hearty co-operation in all he might do to preserve peace and secure a settlement of the strike, the gentleman proceeded to the Four Courts, where the police board was in session. The same representations were made to the board, and the delegation asked that efforts be made to preserve order.

Day of Manifestoes They were assured that the board was doing all in its power and during the conference the plan of massing the entire police force of the city upon a single line was suggested. This plan cess. Another law and order meeting was held at the Mercantile club at o'clock. It was a day of proclama tions, manifestoes, statements and explanations. While the strikers and the street railway company rested on their arms, so to speak, there was a good deal of epistolary activity along the line. First and foremost there was a proclamation from Mayor Zeigenhein, calling upon the people to pre serve order and avoid gathering on the streets. Chief of Police Campbell sent a report to the commissioners, telling them why he had been unable to control the crowds Tuesday and Tuesday night. The presidents of both the street railway companies addresse communications to the board asking for protection, and the men who were managing the strike issued a statement outlining their position. The operation of cars on the Suburi an system under a strong police guard was decided upon at noon, and the cars began to leave the Dehodiament terminus at 3 p. m. Along the line hundreds of officers, both mounted and on foot were stationed, and for an hour previous to the time set for opening the line they were constantly engaged in keeping the crowds moving. No effort was made to prevent the cars from passing, and by the time half a dozen cars had passed the crowd of spectators had melted away. At all crossings policemen were stationed, but there were no violent demonstrations and very few of the strikers were visi-
